POETRY.
Sometime.
LILLIAN WHITING.
Sometime you'll think of these summer days
Dreamingly fading in purple haze.
Sometime, with a thrill of passionate pain,
You'll long for this sweetness over again,
Sometime when the moonlight is silencing all.
And the pansies sleep by the garden wall,
In the deepening twilight's odorous dusk,
Weighted with tinseling rose-bloom's musk;
You will watch for a gleaming figure fair,
White-robed and noisier, with falling hair;
And gazing deep in the luminous eyes
That made for your life its paradise -
The light, by music, and odorous calm
Of this golden-crested summer will linger like balm.
Till, starting, you waken to clasp but air
And live to a fitting funeral there.
Sometime you'll give all the wide world's praise
For one of those vanishing summer days:
"Oh, well, you know, the days were taking like that," you'll say, "and why not now?"
Sometime you'll clasp it, - Oh, why not now?

What Does 16 to 1 Mean?
The money question at the present time is whether or not the United States shall undertake the free coinage of silver. The ratio under which sixteen ounces of silver were accounted equal to one ounce of gold.

One ounce of gold, American coin standard of fineness - that is 900 parts of pure gold to 100 of alloy, will coin in gold dollars $18.00. Sixteen ounces of silver, American coin standard of fineness - that is, 900 parts of pure silver to 100 of alloy, at the rate of $12 1/2 grains to the dollar (the weight of the present standard silver dollar) will coin $18.00 in silver dollars.
These 16 ounces of silver can be bought in the markets of the world today for $9.94.
There would, therefore, be a profit of $8.06 on investment for $9.94, being about 87 per cent. If a holder of silver could take it to the mint and coin it without charge into silver dollars.

The advocates of free coinage favor a law that will allow any holder of silver bullion, in fact, silver of any kind (as the latter can readily be melted into bars) to have the right to take the same to any mint of the United States and convert it into silver coin free of charge.

It is easy to see if this were done it would not be long with free coinage, before the country would be flooded with silver coins, and the very large profit to the owners of silver mines would quickly start to work mines at present idle, to the immense advantage of the country.

It is also easy to see that everybody who owned money would pay in silver rather than in gold, because silver money would be cheaper than gold money, and gold money would soon be unobtainable. The gold could be used to advantage in the foreign trade, because a gold dollar would purchase about nearly twice as much as a silver dollar as the metal in it is intrinsically worth twice as much as the metal in a silver dollar.

The wages of labor would in effect be cut down almost one half because the contracts of working people with their employers are expressed in the terms of money, and by reducing the money system of the country from gold to silver, the value of the dollar would practically be cut in half. - Millford Journal.

The Judges of the parade will be:

E. G. Hall, Wm. B. Glover, G. Arthur Gray, I. W. Moody, G. W. Hinkley.

Bicycle Races.

Closely following the parade will be the bicycle races.

At 8:30 A. M. a ten-mile open bicycle race; a 10-mile road race for Atlantic riders only, and a junior bicycle race for boys of 15 years and under.

The committee is: J. J. Callahan, F. S. Mason, J. H. Cunningham.

The prizes for the open race are donated by Dr. W. G. Kendall as follows: First prize, bicycle; second prize, $10.00; third prize, $5.00; fourth prize, $2.00.

The prizes for the boys' race: First prize, silver medal; second prize, silver medal; third prize, silver medal.

The judges of the bicycle races will be: W. G. Kendall, A. M. Whitaker, C. D. Lincoln.

Base Ball.

At 10 A. M. the great ball game will commence on the playground for a cash prize of $15.

The committee in charge of this feature is: H. O. Parker, Henry L. Hallett, Emilio Paul.

Children's Entertainment.

A feature of the day will be the entertainment for children in Music Hall at 2 P. M.

The committee is: E. G. Hall, Eben Stocker, C. R. Safford.

Field Sports.

At 3:30 P. M. will come the field sports in charge of: Walter P. Hill, George Bennett and Herbert Carter who will act as judges.

They will consist of running, jumping and catching the grassed pig which at appropriate medals will be awarded.

Aquatic Sports.

At 4:30 the yachts of the Squantum Yacht Club will assemble at Chase's landing, foot of Appleton street, and will take off sailing parties for short trips around the bay. The rowing and yacht races will be in progress from 4:30 to 6:30.

The committee is: A. E. Campbell, Walter Barrell, J. E. Drew, Dr. F. A. Locke, Horatio Nelson.

Prizes will be awarded as follows: To winner of rowing race, 1st prize, $5.00; 2d prize, $2.00. To winner of yacht race, 1st prize, $5.00; 2d prize, $2.00. To winner of rowing race, 1st prize, $5.00; 2d prize, $2.00.

The judges will be: F. E. Badger, George H. DeLuff, W. F. Pierce.

Band Concert.

There will be a band concert by the Atlantic band at the foot of Atlantic street.

The programme:

March—King Cotton, Sousa; Overture—American, Sousa; Selection—Before the footlights, Bendix; Waltz—Lullaby of the Nations, Bendix; Selections—Around the Metropolis, Bey; Myarka—La Zarina, Bey; Medley—A Lullaby for the Nations, Bey; Selection—Happy Minstrels, Laureado; Selection—Revolutions of the war, Bey; March—Piedmont, Sousa.

The committee on music is: William Fanning, George S. Burr, Robert Schanagel.

Fireworks.

At 8 P. M. there will be a grand display of fireworks at the foot of Appleton street.

In charge of the following gentlemen: I. W. Moody, H. S. Barker, S. O. Moxon.

Humiliated Parade.

The final feature will be one of the best, a fancy decorated and illuminated bicycle parade. It will follow the parade on the main Squantum street, and parade through most of the streets of Atlantic.

The work of two other committees should not be overlooked, as they were among the hardest work.

On the subscription committee were: C. E. Cherrington, R. H. Wilde, T. H. Kingston, H. S. Barker, Cornelius Duggan, Walter P. Hill, George S. Burr, E. G. Hall, J. H. Churchill.

The executive committee is composed of: S. O. Moxon, C. E. Cherrington, E. G. Hall, W. P. Hill, D. C. Nelson, J. J. Callahan, A. E. Campbell, H. O. Parker, I. W. Moody, William Fanning, H. Von Enden.

"Hail for Atlantic!"

Government Work.

The plans and documents in connection with the improvement of "Tacon river by the Federal Government were forwarded to the War Department on the 20th of June, and in accordance with the best information obtainable, immediately upon the return of the documents, proposals for work will be asked by the engineers in charge at Boston. The law calls for 30 days for these proposals to be submitted and in all probability actual work will be commenced about the first of September. To the energy and perseverance of Congressman Atwood, the City of Quincy is indebted for this beneficial improvement.

Had Congress passed any bills whatever for public buildings the city would be now considering plans for a new post office, as a bill submitted by the Congressman, asking for an appropriation of $150,000, is now before the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

New Water Commissioners.

Mayor Adams has filled the vacancies in the Board of Water Commissioners caused by the resignation of John T. Cavanagh and W. G. A. Pattee by the appointment of ex-Mayor Henry O. Fairbanks and Marshall P. Wright. Mr. Fairbanks to fill the term of Mr. Cavanagh which expires on February, 1897, and Mr. Wright to fill out the term of Mr. Pattee which expires on February 1898. The new board was organized with Henry O. Fairbanks as chairman.

—Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe, the author of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," passed away at her home in Hartford, Conn., on Wednesday, at the age of 84. She was a sister of the late Henry Beecher.

Gay & Shaw placed in their extensive furniture store today a two-ton safe. It was a large and beautiful addition to their office.

CITY BRIEFS.

The year is half gone.

No LUGGERS today.

Dog days will begin the 25th of this month.

George W. Jones has "touched off" some Fourth of July goods.

Dr. C. O. Young will return to Quincy in August and resume his practice.

Michael Walsh entered the drug store of C. C. Hearn this week to learn the business.

"Crystal Spring" sounds well; that is why the people take to the Crystal Spring.

Miss Nellie Field and West Windham is visiting Miss Maud McFarlane of Butler road.

Work on the foundation of the addition to the Woodward Institute is progressing rapidly.

Volney F. Mitchell of Atlantic has been appointed deputy of Quincy lodge, N. E. O. P.

Work on the foundation walls of the new Savings Bank building is being pushed rapidly forward.

Miss Mollison lodge, I. O. O. F., worked the third degree on four candidates Tuesday evening.

Between thirty-five and forty special officers have been sworn in at the lodge for the night before the Fourth.

Maple lodge, K. & L. of H. No. 313, installed their officers Wednesday evening at Plummer's hall.

Mrs. Margaret Walsh and her sister Mrs. Claxton of Savin Hill have gone to New York to pass the Fourth.

The afternoon has begun to shorten. The sun already rises four minutes later than June 1 to 2.

Miss Doris A. French goes to Centre Harbor, N. H., and Miss Mary French goes to Livermore Falls, Maine, next week for the summer.

W. C. Hart of Francis L. Souther camp is on the committee on music for the field day of Sons of Veterans camp at Elkins park on Labor day.

The map which accompanies the new directory of Quincy, is up to date with all the new streets and is one of the best features. For sale at Southern's.

There was a union picnic of the Women's Relief Corps at Nahant on Tuesday, which was attended by about 75 members of the order from Quincy.

That was a quick hitch which the apparatus from the central station made Tuesday. They reached the Stone church before the last round of the alarm had begun.

The body of Mrs. Elizabeth A. widow of Mr. John Saville, formerly of Quincy, who died in Boston last Saturday, was brought to Quincy Tuesday and buried in the Hancock cemetery.

Quincy furnished a contingent of three who left with the Ancient and Honorable for England Monday: Mr. Wilson Tisdale, who was accompanied by his wife, Mr. H. L. Kincaide and Mr. A. G. Duggan.

The Columbus band gave an open air concert in front of Nash's hotel Tuesday evening which was listened to by a very large crowd which completely blocked the sidewalks. It was however a good natured, orderly gathering.

Seventy-five tax collectors' deeds transferring to the City property taken to pay taxes, were recorded at DeLamotte's today, the fees on which amounted to $102.75. This is the largest transfer ever made in one day by the city.

Commodore Pettengill of the Quincy Yacht club was one of the judges at the Winthrop Yacht club race Saturday. Commodore Pettengill has also received an invitation to serve as one of the judges race of the City of Boston July 4th regatta.

There has been quite a change about among the young lady cashiers in the centre: Miss Jennie Davis of Rogers Bros. has gone to the office of A. J. Richards & Son, Mrs. Ruth of C. C. Hearn's has gone to the office of Rogers Bros., and Miss Thompson has accepted the position as cashier at C. C. Hearn's drug store.

Mr. John F. Harkins, son of Mr. William Harkins, of Main street, received the degree of A. M. at the commencement exercises at the State College, Monday week. The diploma, according to the custom obtaining at this college, were presented by acting Governor Wolcott.

The Quincy Yacht club will make a marked change this year in its manner of inviting its guests to the Ladies' day fete. Heretofore each guest has been tagged. This arrangement was more or less of annoyance to the guests as well as to the management. This year a handsomely engraved invitation will be issued.

A bill in equity was filed in the Superior Court Thursday by C. R. Morse and others against the Security Life Stock Company, asking for an order to close the company on the ground that the old Board of Directors paid out illegal dividends. The shareholders desire to know what rights they have on the question of the election of officers.

A well attended and enthusiastic meeting of the Republican Ward and City Committee was held Saturday evening. A committee was appointed to raise funds to immediately wipe out the long standing indebtedness. It was unanimously voted to form a working Republican club, and papers will be circulated for signatures. When a goodly number have signed, a meeting will be publicly called for organization.

Something should be done to put a stop to the boys who are at present indulging in the so called sport of catching pigeons in traps and then killing them. The owners of these pigeons say they do not care so much for the pigeons as the boys, but the mothers are caught in the squabs in the luffs without any means of procuring food and consequently they starve.

The annual picnic of the Centre Congregational church and Sunday school held Monday at Lovell's grove was the most successful. The day was a beautiful one and the attendance was very large, it being estimated that upwards of 400 were present. A series of games was enjoyed by the young people and other amusements were not lacking. Lemonade was served free during the day, and taking it in was the occasion was a very pleasant one.

In order to accommodate the tremendous traffic between this city and Neponset, the Quincy & Boston street railway company has arranged to run cars over this line every fifteen minutes, and the West End company will run cars to and from Neponset on ten minute time so there will be no delay. This pleasant way of getting to and from Boston has become very popular, and this new change which is expected to take place tomorrow will be received gladly by the patrons. By changing at Field's corner one can ride from Quincy to Arlington for ten cents.

There is a very fine exhibition in the window of the office of the School Committee of the work in drawing done by the pupils under the supervision of Miss Kendall. The work shown consists of color scales and harmonies, of four weeks' work, historic ornaments of two weeks' work, conventionalization and original designs of five weeks' work, and sketch book work done at home. When it is taken into consideration that the working time for drawing is but one and one-half hours per week it will be seen that good progress has been made by the pupils.

WOLLASTON.

The City Council will meet Monday evening.

The stores in City Square will be closed all day today.

The family of Walter B. Wilson went to Maine this week.

Mr. William S. Osborne, of Bigelow street, is enjoying the sea breeze for the first time at that quaint old town, Nantucket.

Mr. Osborne expects to take solid comfort yachting and blue fishing.

The seashore and the mountains are receiving many wanderers from our city but at the same time we are welcoming many strangers so that Quincy promises to be an attractive place this summer.

At the Granite City club Wednesday evening the whist prizes were taken by Mrs. Arthur L. Mitchell and Mr. Henry F. Tilden. At the close of the game, ice cream and cake were served.

When the day schools closed many of the children, boys probably, tore up and strewed the ground with the carefully prepared, papers that their parents had taken home to show their parents.

There will be no Sunday school at the Universalist church during July and August. There will be the regular church service at 10:30 A. M. during July. Rev. Mr. Canfield, who completed the prelate last Sunday, will preach the last two Sundays in the month.

Mrs. Harry W. Tirrell, wife of City Messenger Tirrell, left Tuesday for Prince Edwards Island. Mrs. Tirrell has not enjoyed very good health since the loss of her three little ones and it is hoped the invigorating air and surroundings of her former home will be of great benefit to her.

Mrs. Chas. S. French went to Chesham, N. H., on Thursday to spend the month of July with her daughter, Mrs. Albert Wilton, who has a very cozy cottage on the lake. In August Mrs. French goes to Athol, Mass., to spend the month with another daughter, Mrs. Parke Swift, at her island cottage.

No flower garden in town is more admired than Mrs. L. G. Horton's on Hancock street. Formerly springing late late there is a constant change of blossoms which attract the attention of all passers-by. Aunt Horton is generous with her posies, as our recent bride can testify, for her contribution to the decorations at the Adams-Swan wedding at First church Tuesday evening was over three hundred and fifty beautiful day lilies.

Quincy can boast of another tennis champion in Miss Lulu Farrington. After a hard contest Miss Farrington won the women's tennis championship of the University of Chicago, which took place June 23. The Chicago Tribune says: "The excitement during the final set was intense and a large crowd surrounded the courts. Both young women did brilliant playing. Miss Farrington using her head to the best advantage, but was unable to return Miss Farrington's swift strokes."

Children's Sunday. Children's day was observed in an appropriate manner at the Congregational church at the morning services. The church was prettily trimmed with flowers, and the exercises which consisted of readings, recitations, singing and class exercises, were almost wholly by the primary class and the younger pupils of the schools. There was also singing by a choir composed of Sunday School children.

Rev. E. N. Hardy the pastor gave a brief talk to the children and baptised two children.

At the conclusion of the service the children in the primary class were given pocket plants.

HOUGH'S NECK.

The Union chapel will be open for services on Sunday, and the committee has been on Friday morning.

Rev. E. N. Hardy, the new and talented pastor of the Quincy Congregational church to conduct the services at 3:30 P. M. Everybody is invited, and it is hoped many from Quincy will attend.

No more ramble cloth for Captain Schaaf. The Privateer had anew mainsail for Friday afternoon's race, containing 54 yards more cloth than her present piece of canvas, and it will be an ordinary every day sail of eight-hundred duck.

Mr. Shea and family of Roxbury are in one of J. L. Harvey's cottages off Sea street on the water front.

Mr. Smith and family are at the Tuxedo cottage.

Mr. Besse moved into his new cottage on Belmont street Tuesday, although it is not quite complete.

Mr. Thomas Mullaly, the famous cornetist, has been elected a member of the Quincy Yacht club.

It is too bad to see the street railway property neglected and the other buildings in the group so little used. They can be purchased at a reasonable figure and it is hoped that a live man will get it at the auction on July 4. Cottages and house lots will also be sold by Auctioneers May.

Can it be that the street department has ceased work on Sea Street? The street should be rebuilt with sidewalks between Littlefield's farm and the club house.

It is said that some of the boys are planning for "sport" on the Fourth. Look out for them.

Mrs. Cary has sold her Pleasant View cottage to E. B. Morgan of Somerville.

Nine Bridgewater Normal school girls were at the cottage near the Linden for ten days, and are entertaining many friends.

It was two men from Hough's Neck who were in the yacht which sunk off Hough's Neck island on Sunday. Both were rescued.

A few days ago some ladders arrived at Hough's Neck; they were needed and will make the fire service even more efficient.

The Boston Wheelmen took a run to the beach Sunday. Being composed of young men and women, who came in couples, they made a good appearance. They were entertained by Meers, and photographed by Cook.

W. F. Fullerton, M. D., who has been at the Johns Hopkins hospital during the last year will be at Hough's Neck the months of July, August and September.

The Harbinger, Gleaner, Rooster, Alpine, Privateer, Clara, Rex, Little, Moonshine, Myrtle, and Wabnetta were the winners of the first prize in the Winthrop open race on Saturday. The second boats were Emma C., Tacoma, Harriet, Fantasy, Elsa and No Name. The third boats were Ida, Romance, Arab, Sphinx, Velma and Wee Two.

A bicycle club from Hyde Park encamped in front of the Littlefield farm on Saturday and weathered the storm.

Henry French's school at Newburyport closed on Saturday and he struck a bell line by hand to the old hunting grounds at Hough's Neck. Salts Rest is now open.

John Delany has also moved into his new house.

Mr. and Mrs. Whittemore of Dorchester spent Sunday at the Loretta.

Frank F. Prescott, the city editor of the DAILY LEDGER, will return to Quincy with his family Monday.

J. J. O. Simonds of Belmont will occupy the Fayon on Belmont street with friends during July.

Mr. Geo. H. Peters, who has had charge of the music at the Quincy Yacht club's regatta, has accepted an engagement at Old Orchard for the season. The club's music will be in charge of Mr. Harry C. Daggett, assisted by Mr. Vincent Akeroed of Baldwin's Cade band.

The new houses at Adams shore will have electric lights.

The electric cars are now making good connections with the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. trains.

Shawmut Spring Water.

How many people realize the importance of drinking only pure water in large quantities in order to keep in absolutely good health? When we consider that two-thirds of the human body is in the form of water, and that it is only by the constant renewal of this water that the body can remain healthy, it is of the utmost importance that it should be of the very best quality, perfectly free from the slightest trace of organic matter.

The Shawmut Spring Water stands second to none as a pure drinking water. Hundreds of families are using it every day. It is an important factor in the maintenance of health, and in restoring the organs of digestion and excretion. Cures Rheumatism, Kidney and Bladder troubles, when drugs have proved useless.

Send your order for a 5-gallon sample package. If you don't like it, it costs you nothing. Drink it and you will be satisfied of its purity.

I. O. O. F. Memorial Day.

Sunday was Memorial day for the Old

Fellowship of Quincy. Mt. Wollaston lodge, No. 80, assembled at its hall in the afternoon and had as guests members of John Hancock lodge of Wollaston and Carrie E. Rogers lodge of Wollaston. A line of march was taken to the Congregational church where public services were held, which were attended by about 100

Fellowship, and also members of their families, and also the widows of deceased members. Some additions were made to the church decorations of the morning.

Mrs. Hood presided at the organ, and after the voluntary, Rev. E. N. Hardy, the pastor of the church, offered the invocation. A quartette composed of Mrs. Henry Trell, Miss Carrie Folger, Mr. H. A. Hood, and Mr. Doane, rendered "How Long Will Thou Forget Me, O Lord?" by Carl Pfeiffer.

Rev. Mr. Hardy read the following introduction by Past Grand Jacob of Mount Wollaston: "We meet today in compliance with our annual custom in the month of June to engage in services that shall tend to refresh in our minds the memory of those of our Brothers who have left the scenes of their earthly labors; to call to mind their earnest application of the value of the principles that lie at the very foundation of our faith, hoping that thus we may not only keep ever green in our memory the examples they have left us, but also it may serve to stimulate us to emulate their devotion to the maintenance and prayer for the principles they so constantly manifested and which never ceased until they crossed the dividing line of time and eternity.

The title of "Our Dead" now numbers eighteen. Since our last Memorial Day, three names have been added to the list, as follows:

GEORGE L. GILL, P. G., who died Dec. 16, 1895. He was born in Hingham, but was a resident of Quincy. He joined our order, I think, in 1887, and was M. W. of Wollaston lodge, July 18, 1895. He was made N. G. in January, 1896, and an active member until the surrender of his charter. His love for the order never ceased to exist, and in a petition for the reinstatement of a petition, he was a charter member, also treasurer for several years. Words of mine cannot represent his character as faithfully and vividly as it exists in your minds today. Though the years have passed, and increasing years caused his attendance at meetings to be less than formerly, yet special occasions always found him ready to aid and attend, with his conversation and his ready wit, and his interest in the order and kept well informed as to the affairs of the lodge.

BR. WILLIAM GRAGG, died March 22, 1896. He was initiated into Old Fellowship on the occasion of the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence, March 10, 1887. He continued a faithful member until his death. Being of a retiring disposition he had not taken so active a part in the meetings and business of the lodge as many of its members, but his readiness to perform the duties his membership entailed has always been effectively manifested in a quiet and unostentatious manner.

ROBERT O. SOUTHER, P. G., died May 20, 1896. Born and reared in the greater part of his life in Quincy. He was made M. W. of Wollaston lodge, March 10, 1887, and was N. G. in January, 1896. He was a member of the lodge as long as he lived, and his membership entailed has always been effectively manifested in a quiet and unostentatious manner.

There were many couples who were in the lodge, and his lovely young fiancée from 1886. Born and reared in the greater part of his life in Quincy. He was made M. W. of Wollaston lodge, March 10, 1887, and was N. G. in January, 1896. He was a member of the lodge as long as he lived, and his membership entailed has always been effectively manifested in a quiet and unostentatious manner.

The couple will take a short trip and their home in Dorchester, at 1147 Adams street.

Municipal Lighting.

Published by Request.

The following appears in the Annual Report of the town of Plymouth for 1895:

"Understanding that there is to be no formal report of the Committee on Municipal Lighting (appointed at the last annual meeting) to the town meeting, the committee desires to state briefly to the town certain facts and recommendations relating to the subject.

"The writer was given some time to the collecting of reports and to a personal investigation of a number of the lighting plants. An increasing number of towns and cities in this Commonwealth, and elsewhere, furnish their own electric light, and a great saving over what has been the case heretofore. There is no apparent reason why an electric plant should not be managed by the town as economically and wisely, and for the people's interest, as well as the high-grade of the lighting plant, and to be a part of the public water supply; and in this State the private ownership of public water supplies is generally and properly discouraged. The city of Boston lately investigated this subject, and, in 1895, reported in favor of the ownership of the public lighting plant. The city of Salem is agitating the subject. The town of Peabody owns its own plant. Wakefield has recently bought the local lighting plant, and has a population of between 7,000 and 8,000, and its valuation is nearly the same as that of Plymouth. The electric light plant there is exceedingly well planned and arranged. There are 15, 1895, reported in favor of the ownership of the public lighting plant. In their forthcoming annual report the cost in detail of running the station for one day, (or night), December 21, 1895, will be shown. The cost of fuel, oil, and other expenses, and the cost, after making all deductions, including interest and depreciation charges, was 234 cents per acre, or $75.00 per acre, or at the rate of about $35.00 per acre for half the year. Many other instances might be cited, but perhaps enough has been said to warrant the recommendation that the town of Quincy should investigate and report on the proper method and probable cost of establishing an electric light plant to be owned and operated by the town.

Respectfully submitted,
WALTER H. SEARS.

—Thursday evening, July 9, of the young men's Metropolitan Republican club will hold a banquet at the Brunswick, Brockton.

The town of Brookline in town meeting assembled, has voted to co-operate with Mayor Adams of Quincy and other municipalities in taking such legal steps as may be necessary to determine the legality of the proposed extension of the electric power plant, by the Quincy Electric Company, to the town of Brookline in connection with the recent legislative investigation.

Brookline also appointed a committee of five citizens to consider carefully all of the existing legal laws relating to counties and County Commissioners, conferring with the citizens of other municipalities, and to report in print at the next town meeting, such changes as may be necessary in their judgment the town should make the next General Court to adopt.

—Harrison A. Souther, of Dorchester, the veterinary surgeon, has gone into seclusion.

Church Wedding and Reception.

The Adams-Swan nuptials, that closed the June weddings in fashionable society in our city Tuesday evening, was a charming one. In the old church the pulpit was banked away up with green boughs and elderberry blossoms that made a cheerful soft effect while above them high up stood the many clusters of day lilies, their purity and fragrance making a most beautiful effect. Through the white spaces the stately lilies the brilliant red of the pulpit shone.

At 7:30 the pastor Rev. E. C. Butler with the groom Mr. W. E. Swan of Worcester entered from the chapel, while the bride, Miss Mary E. Swan, of Hingham, was escorted by Mr. H. H. Houghton, Harry and Fred B. Rice, Mr. Swan a brother of the groom and John Talbot. The petite bride simply attired in cream white satin, with some rare lace, a gift, and pearls for ornaments.

The friends of the bride and groom gave away. Mr. Penno's calm, dignified, bearing was impressive and commented upon by all. Mr. Butler's service was, as always, impressive, and after the observance of the reading of the ring and the closing benediction, the newly made couple preceded the ushers between the conventional bride and groom and flowers attached to the pews.

Man and Wife.

(From the Boston Globe.)

The following letter tells a plain, straightforward story, in which every man and woman is interested. Hundreds of just such letters have lately been sent to publishers by grateful people, whose hopeless lives have suddenly been brightened by the wonderful discovery of Prof. Dixi Crosby, of Dartmouth College. No wonder that men like Eugene Low pronounce Puritana "As great a discovery as electricity."

3 Mt. Vernon Place, Charlestown, To the public:

We know the misery that is caused by stomach troubles, for both my wife and I have been so afflicted with suffering of the worst sort that there seemed no longer any hope of health or even comfort. In fact, my wife's life was despaired of, and I was about to give up active employment.

Mrs. Cale was for a number of years a victim of dyspepsia, which grew more and more severe until she was completely prostrated. She was sent into the country by her doctor, but when she returned she could not stand up without support. For a long time she was unable to eat solid food, and even on a diet of prepared milk she was unable to gain strength or escape suffering. We sought the best advice we could obtain, but the result was failure in every case.

When we first tried Puritana we were without other hope and as far as my wife was concerned, I did not believe that she would ever recover. After a few weeks there was a marked change and from that time on her improvement grew more rapid from day to day. The stomach trouble disappeared and her whole system was brought into a healthy condition.

Mrs. Cale belongs to the Daughters of Rebekah and other Charlestown societies, and when she could attend the meetings, and also eat her share of the dainties, it was a great surprise to the ladies who had known of her infirmity. For the first time in years she found that she could eat a piece of New England pie, and now her stomach digests any food.

My own suffering has been so great that I could not engage in any exhausting occupation. The effect of Puritana in my case has been only less wonderful than in the case of my wife. I have received greater benefits from it than from all other medicines and the doctors put together, and recommend it in the highest terms to my friends.

We bless the day when we heard of Puritana, for it has given us new life.

Thomas Cale New Bill & Co., Mr. Cale has been for many years connected with the Boston & Maine railroad, and his word is as good as any man's bond.

Twilight in the Blue Hills.

F. WALTER OSBORNE.

I stand among thy shadows now,
As twilight glows and fan my brow,
No songbird trills!
For darkness mingles slowly round,
And stars gaze from the depths profound;
And the wind sighs from the south,
O, ye Blue Hills!

Save that of the imagined roar
Of ocean beating on its shore,
With-moans and thrills.
The parting Sun hath left its smile
On crimson clouds that mite on mile Illuminate space, a heavenly isle
O'er the Blue Hills!

And far below, each city light
Gleams like a star dropped from the night.
The meadow rills
Wind shyly down the valleys past,
Thro' every deepening glade more fast.
As if afraid of shadows cast
By those Blue Hills!

The deep, dark valleys lie between These hills, and cities, dimly seen;
Their dappled shadows entire These rugged solitudes entire These radiant shadows entire
As my lone spirit makes its shrine
Among these hills.
Brookline, Mass.

Notes and Comments.

—The Waltham Free Press rises to remark that it takes but little stock in the "bad ventilation" nonsense in regard to public school buildings. "Scholars break down because they are overworked and not because of difficulty with ventilation. There is a constant crowd, crowd, crowd, and if a pupil is found with a spare minute in his possession it is at once taken away from him."

—One fortieth of an acre of land, located at the corner of Washington and Bedford streets, Boston, and recently leased to R. H. White, is assessed at $100,000, making the land worth $5,000,000 an acre. The entire land valuation of the town of Hingham, which has a large area, is but $156,198.—Hingham Journal.

—There are a good many leading Republicans in the district who think the thing to do is to nominate Congressman Morse, despite his letter of withdrawal. They give as their reason that he is the most efficient representative for the district who has ever had at Washington.—Milford Journal.

—The doing away of the grade crosses in Boston will throw about 25 men, formerly employed as gate keepers, etc., out of employment.

—A golden-bronze statue of Ben. Franklin has been erected in Lincoln Park, Chicago, the gift of Joseph Medill of political and newspaper fame. It is said to be the finest statue of this philosopher, statesman and father of the newspaper press in this country. There are only two other bronze statues of Franklin, one in Boston and one in New York. A third is being constructed in Philadelphia. The Chicago statue is the work of the noted sculptor, R. H. Park.—Boston Home Journal.

—Judging from the fact that Major McKinley's daily mail contains about 6000 letters, it is to be inferred that there are legions of statesmen out of a job who are taking time by the forelock, with the hope of being remembered later on.—Fall River Globe.

—Ex-Secretary Whitney makes the whole question very plain. The maintenance of the double standard at the present time is not a question of desire, it is a question of ability. The commercial value of silver has declined greatly in the markets of the world. International exchanges have to be paid in gold; if we open our mints to the free coinage of silver and gold at a ratio of a comparative value which is largely at variance with the commercial value of the two metals, we must take the entire silver supply ourselves and alone maintain its parity with gold, or else we shall go to a silver basis. And this change would mean panic and distress.—Hull Free Press.

—Plymouth people are very much pleased over the fact that the Maryland courts have at last given a decision on the Sticksy will, in which a large bequest was left to the town. The bequest amounted to $75,000, but that amount will not be received, as the will was made by the heirs and several clauses were set aside by the court. The bequest that will come to the town are $10,000 for the improvements of historic Burial Hill; $20,000 for improvements around Cole's hill; $10,000, the interest to be expended on Pilgrim Hall, and $35,000 for beautifying the grounds around the national monument.

—The construction of the Randolph & Braintree roads between the two towns forms the connecting link between the Quincy & Boston on the north, and the Brockton Street Railway on the south, and opening a thoroughfare, same as with Hurlbrook, that must be popular in days to come. This Company is fortunate in having the privilege of riding through—Brockton, Avon and Randolph—walked is not surpassed by any inland towns. Randolph's beauty claims the attention of every stranger visiting the town, and as they are charmed and well lighted. This road makes close connections with the Randolph and Quincy & Boston roads for Boston, Houghton Neck, and Nantasket beaches.—Randolph Register.

Hon. John Shaw Interviewed.
The Cleveland Leader interviewed Hon. John Shaw of Quincy, while returning from St. Louis.

"What we want in this country," said Mr. Shaw, "is work for all the people at good wages. There can be no prosperity so long as a large number of the people are unemployed. In 1892, when the McKinley law, labor was fully employed. There was work for every man who desired work. Capital was fully employed, and business in every line was good. The result was a degree of prosperity that had never been equalled in the United States. The Democratic party is responsible for the change that has taken place since. They were the leaders in 1892 by appeals to class prejudices and to the passions of the people. They arrayed the rich against the poor. They won that election under a pledge to pass a certain law. They repealed the McKinley law and put a law of their own in its place, and what was the result? The people of the United States who are compelled to labor for a livelihood know in Turkey will be made much easier through the influence of the labor of the Red Cross Society than could possibly be secured by diplomatic representation or attempts at coercive measures.—Brooklyn Times.

Sailors' Snug Harbor.

The trustees of the Sailors' Snug Harbor situated in that part of Quincy known as Germantown, near Quincy Point, made their annual visit Monday to that most comfortable home for superannuated seamen. In the party were, C. L. Young, president of the institution; Eben Bacon, treasurer; J. G. Whitney, secretary; Robert Stevenson, G. B. Upton, Henry Emmons, G. S. Cushing and Hon. Winslow Warren, all of the board of trustees.

They had for guests the secretary of the collector, D. S. Knowlton, George Whitely, president of the Union National Bank; Alfred Bowditch, N. W. Curtis and others. The steamer "Albatross" was chartered for the trip and after leaving India wharf, she steamed down alongside the Servia, giving the Ancients a parting salute, and passing down among the islands of the harbor sped pally along to Germantown.

Here a landing was made, and the party walked to the Snug Harbor, but a short distance away. The buildings, situated in the midst of nearly 100 acres and surrounded by great trees, are reached by hand graveled paths and avenues, bordered by beds of flowers, well kept, tidy, and trim as the great vessels in which these old tars have spent all their years of active manhood.

The building in which the men have their home is a large and handsome brick structure, the greater part of which is divided up into airy rooms large enough to contain a single bed, and a small table. Near by is the little cemetery. At the head of each grave is placed a tombstone with a simple inscription. Annual Picnic.
The first annual picnic of the employees of the Tabular River and Stud works of Melvin Bray & Co., on Saturday, at Lowell's grove, was a very enjoyable and successful affair, nearly 1,000 being in attendance. This company is now the largest employers of labor in the city and as skilled workmen are required they are among our best citizens.

—The interest of the day centered in the five mile race and the ball game, but the latter lacked excitement from the start. In the bicycle race there were several mishaps. The finish between Connell and Oursich for second place was particularly exciting.

—100-yard dash—Flynn first, Ryan second. Time 12 1/2 seconds.
—100-yard dash for members—Cuniff first, McLane second.

—100-yard race—Mullane first, Flynn second.
—Sack race—McPhee first, Ryan second. Throwing baseball—Raiche first, distance 307 feet, 1 inch; Benson second, distance 300 feet.

—Bicycle race, two fifths of mile—J. Wetters of Boston first, Dunn second, Jacob third. Time 1 minute, 25 seconds. One mile bicycle race—Wetters first, Oursich second, Feather third. Time 2 minutes, 44 seconds.

—Five-mile bicycle handicap—Wetters first, Connell second, Oursich third. Time, 14 minutes, 15 seconds.
—Base ball for purse of $50—West Quincy, 10; R. & S. Co. nine, 6.

—The committee of arrangements for the picnic were John Whitehead, George C. Elm, Herbert C. Seymour, Alfred T. Barlow, L. S. Robinson, Thomas Raiche, Archie V. Flynn, G. F. West and B. A. Melan.

Judge Flint for Senator.
The friends of Hon. James H. Flint of Weymouth are beginning to urge upon the district his candidacy for the Senate from the 1st Norfolk district.

Judge Flint has been approached upon the matter, and signified his willingness to accept the nomination if his friends desire to give it to him.

Judge Flint has just closed his third year in the General Court as the representative from the Quincy-Weymouth district, and has during that time served on the committees on probate and insolvency and street railways, and has for the past two years been chairman of the latter committee.

It is admitted throughout the district that the Hon. Judge Flint is one of the best men in this year, and the Republican voters of that town feel that Judge Flint is the man.

There has been customary in the past to swap the names from town to town in the district, giving each town two to send its candidate. It is now some years since Weymouth had a turn at it, and if the Weymouth Republicans can agree upon a candidate it is understood that there will be no opposition to her claim for recognition.

There is a feeling among the leading Republicans of Weymouth that the party can be united on Judge Flint, and that there will be no opposition to his nomination.—Globe.

CREAMED BACON. Put some slices of bacon in a pan and set in the oven to bake until they are brown and crisp. Put them on a hot platter; add to the fat in a pan a tablespoonful of flour, stir until smooth, add gradually a cup and a half of milk and cook two minutes or until smooth. Pour over the bacon in the platter.

PICKLED CHERRIES. Select large ones that are perfect. Put one quart of vinegar, three pounds of sugar, half an ounce each of ground cloves and cinnamon in a bag, into a porcelain kettle and let them come to a boil. To this add five pounds of cherries and boil one minute. Pour into cans and put the covers on.

CHERRY PIE. Pick the stems out of your cherries and put them in an earthen crock, and set them in the oven till they get hot, take them out and seed them, make a tart with or without nuts, sugar to your taste. The heating of the fruit gives the flavor of the seed which is very rich; the seedling of them while hot is not a delightful job. Made this way they need no water for juice.

Shawmut Spring Water

How many people realize the importance of drinking only pure water in large quantities in order to keep in absolutely perfect health? When we consider that two-thirds of the human body is in the form of water and that in order to supply the losses in excretion and evaporation it is necessary to drink from one-half to one gallon of water daily; it is of the utmost importance that

The Shawmut Spring Water stands as second to none as a pure drinking water. Hundreds of families are using it every day. It is an important factor in maintaining health, building up and restoring the organs of the body to healthy action. Cures Rheumatism, Kidney and Bladder troubles, when diet has proved useless.

Send your order for a 5-gallon sard package. If you don't like it, it costs nothing. Drink it and you will be satisfied of its purity.

THE OLD CHERRY FARM.
"Such a redolent thing to do!" declared
Aunt Fanny Mulford. "I should say Hazel wasn't in her sane senses."
The Mulford connection, far and near, were terribly exercised over the fact that Hazel had inherited a small estate of six hundred dollars for the old Cherry Farm.
"An old place that ain't worth shucks," they asserted.
When Uncle Heczekiah Mulford died, leaving a thousand dollars to each of his children, Hazel, the two girls were looked upon as heiresses by the numerous kindfolk living in and around the little village of Dipping Springs.
But when Hazel, in spite of all opposition, insisted on investing six hundred dollars which she had just received, as already stated, and invited Aunt Comfort Mulford to live with her, their discontent knew no bounds.
"She might have invested her legacy safe with me," complained Uncle Zeke,
"or I'd of given her five per cent. interest on it. She could of lived good on that;
but no, she must go and spend her money first thing 'fore Uncle Heczekiah was fairly cold in his grave."
"That old place won't grow nothing but poison and cockleburrs," growled Ann Lorance. "She'll starve to death on it, sure."
"It'll be a judgment on her if she does," declared Uncle Zeke, grimly shaking his head as he lit his pipe with a coal from the fire place.
And the rest of the kindfoks agreed with him, and prophesied all manner of ill-fortune for Hazel. All that, with the exception of Cousin John Mulford and his wife, Arvilla.

They pushed her in her unpopular proceeding. Cousin John even went and mended the roof of the leaky but picturesque little cottage, which stood on a grassy hillside, sheltered by the sweeping branches of half a dozen or more black-berry trees which had given the place its name.
"It's a pretty place," averred Cousin John. "An' Hazel will have a home there if she ain't got nothing else. Her an' Aunt Comfort'll live as happy as cows in a clover field."
But the other relatives shook their heads and drew long faces over Hazel's future prospects.
"She might of bought a lot of town if she must have property," they grumbled.
Hazel only laughed at their forebodings.
"I never had a home of my own," she said, "and I guess the old place will support me and Aunt Comfort as well as the robins that live up in the cherry trees."
And when the three sons of the cottage were secured as clean as soap and water could make them, the walls newly whitened, and the rooms filled with prettily household furniture Hazel had bought, and which Cousin John brought out with his young wife, the young mistress of the Farm felt a serene content in her possession of all the ill-natured disturbers of the Mulford clan failed to disturb.
"That you air, Hazel—sneezing as a bug in a rug!" said Cousin John mopping his face with his red cotton handkerchief, as he started the lumbering oxen on their homeward way. "An' when you git yer plunder all put to rights, me an' Arvilla'll come and make you a visit."
"Be sure you do," cried Hazel, brightly.
"And when the cherries are ripe, Arvilla can have all she wants to put up."
"Mezma Mulford, Uncle Heczekiah's other legates, was no less fond in her denunciation of Hazel's investment.
"How does she ever expect to git married, I'd like to know," she commented, "away off in that lonely old place, with nobody but poky Aunt Comfort for company? But I don't care, I'm sure, if she wants to make an old maid of herself.
I'm a-goin' to have the good of my money while I'm young."
She accordingly indulged herself in the purchase of numerous and expensive dresses and gawags, banged and frized her hair in the latest style, carried a scarlet parasol in her village walks, and after enjoying the triumph of exhibiting herself and her new possessions to the inhabitants of Dipping Springs, she announced her intention of going to the seashore for the summer.
"Goin' a husband-huntin'?" declared the gossip. "There ain't nobody good enough for her in Dipping Springs."
But if Melzma heard then she paid no heed to their gossip, but packed her new big Saratoga trunk with her new finery and set out on her long journey.
As the weeks passed on, Hazel and Aunt Comfort enjoyed themselves in their new home, in spite of the evil prognostications.
And indeed, though the dissatisfied kindfolk shook their head over Hazel and her ways, they were very well pleased to ride out to the farm on summer afternoons and eat their fill of the ripe, black-berry cherries, or drink tea from Hazel's flowered china tea cups; or to spend the day and dine on fried chicken, green peas, new potatoes and other early vegetables, raised by the industry of Hazel and Aunt Comfort.

POETRY.
Meditation.
Upon a mossy bank I lie,
The summer sun is low;
The rippling stream that wanders by Reflects the radiance of the sky,
And spreads a heavenly glow.
Ah! sky of dreamy violet,
What amaranthine bloom?
What varied jewel deeply set
In hues of Heaven's own comet, Lightens the nether gloom?
From out of the cloud-land of the West,
There breaks a sudden light;
It touches stream and mountain crest,
And Nature's wildest lands are dressed,
With roses ever bright!
How blest it were to crown our days
With radiance from above!
Along life's rude and rugged ways,
To wander warm, effulgent rays,
Of peace and holy love.

SATURDAY, JULY 18, 1896.

Probable Tax Rate.

THE PROPOSED tax rate is just about as large as the law permits, and much nearer the limit than in recent years, although the limit increases rapidly. In 1889 the first year of the city, the limit was about $117,000. This year, Mayor Adams told us in his inaugural it would be $205,000 by one method, and $203,124 by the other. It is fortunate, in view of the appropriation, that the limit is so large, for by the tax rate introduced in the City Council it is necessary to raise $205,000.

But this large levy for current city expenses is responsible for an increase of about $27,000 in the total levy, and is sure to materially increase the tax rate, even if there is a large increase in valuation. The figures which enter into the tax levy are nearly complete with the passage of the order for $202,500 now pending in the City Council. The total State tax is $11,777.50, and the total county tax $12,078.97. There are but two more polls than in 1895. The amount of maturing notes and interest required, is known and the overpayments and valuation only are to be estimated. Here are the figures for the two years side by side:

Tax levy,	$175,000.00	$205,000.00
Notes,	78,410.00	77,480.00
Interest,	18,114.40	20,242.65
County (less polls)	11,777.50	6,238.72
State (less polls)	12,078.97	5,932.20
Polls,	11,695.00	11,684.00
Overpayments,	4,974.60	5,000.00
Total,	$302,540.36	$329,737.57
No. Polls,	8,853	8,840
Valuation,	$17,257,855.00	$18,000,000.00
Tax rate,	$16.83	$18.30

*Estimated.

The estimate of the valuation has been made as favorable as possible, to reduce the tax rate, and it is doubtful if it reaches eighteen million dollars. The gain in valuation for the city years has been:

Year.	Valuation.	Gain.
1889.	$5,750,000
1890.	12,399,345	$2,549,345
1891.	13,677,410	1,278,065
1892.	14,427,659	750,249
1893.	15,266,250	838,591
1894.	16,628,520	1,362,270
1895.	16,847,455	218,935
1896.	17,257,855	410,400

Church Wedding.

One of the most fashionable marriages which has been solemnized at Wollaston for some time was the Emily-William marriage, which took place in the First Baptist church, on Thursday evening, before an audience of relatives and friends of the contracting parties, which completely filled the edifice.

The contracting parties were Miss Grace Wollaston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Emery of Lincoln avenue, and Mr. Hartley Loring, son of the civil engineering firm of White & Wetmore of Brockton.

The ceremony, which took place at the First Baptist church at eight o'clock, was performed by the Rev. Preston Gurnea, pastor of that society, assisted by the Rev. Mr. Hay of the New Jerusalem church of Brockton.

As the bridal procession moved up the aisle to meet the groom and his best man, Mr. George H. Wetherbee, Jr., his business partner, organist, played the Wedding March from Lohengrin, and, as the party returned, Mendelssohn's Wedding March.

The bride was gowned in an ivory white gown, with train and high neck, with garniture of pearls; the veil being fastened by a sunburst of opals and pearls, confining strands of lily of the valley. She carried a bouquet of the same flowers and maiden hair fern. The bride was attended by the maid of honor, her sister, Miss Sadie F. Emery. Miss Emery wore a white organdy, simply trimmed with white satin ribbon, the round collar having a garniture of daybreak pinks. She carried in her hand a bouquet made of the same flowers.

The ushers were Mr. Justin F. and Mr. Frank A. Emery, brothers of the bride, Mr. Charles L. Hammond of Atlantic, Mr. Fred H. French, Mr. W. L. Fuller, and Mr. Oscar B. Leonard, of Brockton.

The church was beautifully decorated by friends of the bride with ferns, potted plants and wild flowers.

After the ceremony a reception was given to the members of the family at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. White were assisted in receiving by the maid of honor and the best man. The many beautiful gifts which Mr. and Mrs. White received were very numerous. Sparrow furnished the creams.

After the reception they left for a short tour among the mountains. They will spend the summer at the Webster house at Franklin Falls, N. H., and will return to the Province of Quebec. He left Boston last Monday evening in the company of his brother, Col. H. E. Russell and Gen. Francis Peabody. They arrived at Dalhousie, N. B., Wednesday morning, and then took the steamer Admiral for Little Falls.

Late in the afternoon the camp was reached, and early in the evening the three gentlemen, wearied with their long journey retired. The next morning at 8 o'clock when his brother tried to awaken him, he found that life had fled. Heart disease was supposed to be the cause.

The camp in which ex-Governor Russell died is owned by R. J. Adams, a well known dry goods merchant of Boston. It is situated in the township of Pabos, county Gaspé, province of Quebec, and is 108 miles from Dalhousie, the nearest station on the Intercolonial railway.

The only means of reaching the camp is the steamer which makes two trips each week between Dalhousie and Gaspé. The body is expected to arrive in Boston this Saturday evening.

Q. Y. C. Open Races.

The regatta committee of the Quincy Yacht Club held a meeting on Tuesday evening to make up the programme for the three days' open racing, which occurs on July 29, 30 and 31. An excellent programme was outlined. It is virtually a continuation of next Saturday's regatta excepting that the prizes in all classes save the knockabout class will be $10 and $5. In the knockabout class there will be one prize, $10. There will be the five association classes, viz:

First Class—All yachts 25 ft. and less than 30 ft. S. L.

Second Class—21 ft. and less than 25 ft. S. L.

Third Class—18 ft. and less than 21 ft. S. L.

Knockabout class: Fourth Class—15 ft. and less than 18 ft. S. L.

There will be no restrictions on sails except in the knockabout class.

The races will be sailed under the association rules.

Nearly 100 yachts are entered for these four classes.

The Monitor for July contains an interesting article on "Pius VII and Napoleon," by Rev. F. A. Cunningham, which will be read at the next meeting, by Catholics and others. Rev. Julian E. Johnston, the new curate at St. John's, contributes a very appreciative poem.

CITY BRIEFS.

Open regatta on this afternoon.

Miss Edith Randall left Monday for East Wollaston, N. H.

Edward Lowe of this city is spending his vacation at North Scituate.

City Hall should have a new flag, as the one now in use is rather ragged.

Miss Eliza J. and Kate K. Donovan of Concord, N. H., are visiting in this city.

W. D. Harding and W. C. Hubbard have returned from a week in Maine, fishing, etc.

Mrs. Daniel Flowers and children have returned from a brief visit to friends in Lowell.

High school pupils who are deficient in certain studies may take an examination Sept. 5.

Mrs. A. E. Faxon returned last week from a visit to her son, Mr. John G. Faxon, in New York.

George G. Monk is enjoying a five weeks' vacation, the first he has had for four years.

G. O. Langley has beautified his board fence with a coat of whitewash—great improvement.

Dr. C. B. Underwood, the dentist, is doing a good business since he opened in the Adams building.

Mrs. John W. Nash, wife and mother, have gone to North Conway, N. H., for a four weeks' rest.

The Aluminum factory which was closed last week to take account of stock is running again full blast.

Mrs. Frank Patch, who has been confined to the house for four weeks with illness, is slowly improving.

Rev. E. N. Hardy endorsed the open air religious meetings on Sunday very heartily from his pulpit on Sunday morning.

Mr. E. W. Baxter and family of Greenleaf street are at the Adams Hotel, South Wollaston, Mass., for the summer.

The old Hainesworth estate at Brackett, owned by Mrs. Annie J. McGrath, was sold by Auctioneer Crane to Mr. Frank S. Patch. The selling price was $1000.

The Catholics of Quincy will not hold a picnic this year, but each part of the parish will undoubtedly hold a lawn party, the dates of which are not at present fixed.

Alonso Jones, who was recently appointed a justice of the peace, has resigned his commission, and the same has been accepted by His Honor the Acting Governor.

Mrs. N. B. Farnham has at his residence a cactus with thirty buds and blossoms, part of them being pink and part a bright red. It is worth while to call and see it, as it is very handsome.

The Orangemen paraded in Boston July 11, and then went to Lake Walden for a picnic. The programme included many sports. Sunday they were addressed by Rev. Scott F. Hershey, D. D., at the People's Temple.

Mrs. William Field of this city spent last Saturday with her son, William A. Field, at his home in Haverhill, Mass.

The engagement was announced last week of Mr. Ernest V. Pitts, and Miss Edith P. Gray, only daughter of Mr. Pitts, of Quincy, to Mr. Gray, both young people are very popular and are being overwhelmed with congratulations.

The City Treasurer and City Auditor sent their July 1 statement to the City Council Monday, showing the receipts, disbursements and balances for the month of July of the year 1896. Only about one-third of the total appropriation has been spent.

The tennis match on Pennock's court, at Braintree, Tuesday, between H. H. Hackett of New York and William Packard of Quincy, for the championship cup of the Wollaston street tennis club, was exciting one. Mr. Hackett winning by the score of 6-1, 6-2, 6-3.

Mr. J. H. Gilbert, who has resided at the corner of Hancock and Saville streets for nearly ten years is contemplating moving shortly. The stand is very good for his business but it is rather noisy and undesirable otherwise, with the steam cars in the rear and the electric cars in front.

It was obtained that the load of hay gathered on Sunday should collapse in front of the Evangelical Congregational church? It was there several hours late in the afternoon, and several were overboard to say: "It might have been expected." "Six days shalt thou labor," etc.

The Quincy Yacht club gave another one of its hops on last week Friday evening. There was the usual fashionable crowd present. Mr. H. H. Faxon was present and christened the new punch bowl with the words: "May it be the best of the city, which was by Daggett and Rowell, was sublime.

The Quincy & Boston street railway is to build an addition to its present car house in City Square in the rear of the present building. The addition, which is to be of brick will be three stories high. The contract has been awarded to Peter J. Williams who will commence work immediately.

For some weeks Constable Farnham has been watching for Joseph A. Mitchell, for obtaining money under false pretences in Boston. He finally located him on Bridge street, North Weymouth, and succeeded on Saturday, with the assistance of Inspector Bogan, in arresting him. He was assigned to the Boston House of Correction.

The money was obtained at different times from Mrs. Prior, a lady about 54 years of age residing in Boston.

The Quincy & Boston street railway did an enormous business Sunday. Travel was heavy on all its lines, it being necessary to double up by running two cars instead of one and on some trips it was increased to run three cars; the total number of cars in use being forty. With the thousands of passengers carried, every one was landed safely at their destination, which speaks well for the management of the road.

Mr. Eugene C. Hultman of Washington street has accepted a position in the topographical survey of the government Geographical Survey at North Creek, N. Y. Mr. Hultman is a graduate of the Quincy schools and is civil engineering from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, class of '96, and he takes with him to his new field of labor the best wishes of many friends for success in his chosen profession.

The Committee on Streets of the City Council and the officials of the Electric Light Co. held a meeting Wednesday evening at City Hall, when the subject of street lights was considered. It was figured out that deducting what the company paid out for the city for taxes that the lights cost the city $40 each. The company it is understood asked that the city enter into a contract with the company for five years upon the same terms as the last contract.

On Friday night of last week, just before midnight, there was a heavy runaway on the tracks of the N. Y. N. H. & R. R. The horse started from near French's stable and crossing the depot platform started up the tracks on the road toward Quincy Adams. He crossed two of the bridges all right but in crossing the bridge in the rear of L. M. Pratt & Co.'s store he was thrown over the bridge and the horse was hung. A crowd of men soon gathered, but it was after one o'clock before they succeeded in getting him out. The animal was not injured much and it was fortunate that there was no train due.

WOLLASTON.

The regular school of the Wollaston Trap club was held on Saturday afternoon notwithstanding the intense heat. Elcock was high man with 19 birds. The score: Elcock, 19; A. A. Lincoln, 18; Starrett, 16; Mendenhall, 16; Bates, 13.

Services at the Wollaston Unitarian church have been discontinued until the first Sunday in September.

Stephen A. Crook, a trusted employee of the Tubular Iron and Steel Co. of Wollaston, who died at the Quincy City Hospital on Monday last from acute pneumonia, will be missed by his associates who for many years were together.

Mrs. Helen Pitts and sons are moving from Orchard place to Faxon avenue.

Miss Eliza Gifford of Salem, is guest of Mr. and Mrs. Hardy, Saville avenue.

Miss Libbie Lowe of Oueda, N. Y., is visiting her brother, F. L. Lowe, for a few weeks.

George A. Devlin returned to Marlboro Tuesday after a visit to his former home in this city.

Miss Mary McLane, the obliging clerk at Gordon's five cent store, is enjoying a five weeks' vacation.

Isabella S. Mitchell, of South street, is spending part of her vacation with friends in North Quincy.

Master Robert Johnson of Brookline is visiting his grandmother, Mrs. J. Q. A. Wild, of Granite street.

Rev. E. A. Robinson of the Wollaston Congregational church will preach at the Adams chapel, Houghs Neck, Sunday, at 3.30 o'clock.

Mrs. Timothy Cashman, who has just had a successful operation performed at the City Hospital, is improving, and getting along nicely.

Mr. William Lund and family of Wollaston are spending a few weeks with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Lund of Washington street.

The predicted disastrous thunder showers that were to visit New England Wednesday night did not take place in Quincy, but it sprinkled a little.

The County Commissioners viewed Union st., South Weymouth, Monday, and took an electric ride through Quincy on the return to see the sights.

W. W. Osborne is taking his annual vacation, and his young friends in Bigelow street are enjoying daily excursions to the beaches and places of interest.

Again the DAILY LEDGER led the town in reporting the death of ex-Governor Russell on Thursday, thanks to the American Press Association.

The placing of an obelisk on duty near the fountain on Sundays is a good idea, as perfect order is maintained and the churches are not disturbed.

The Quincy & Boston street railway carried something like 25,000 passengers Sunday on its several lines, not including the Braintree & Houghs Neck line.

Richard Forrest, the motorman so seriously injured in a collision on the Quincy & Boston street railway, is getting along very well, considering the nature of his injuries.

Mr. Frank E. Hall and family will be missed from Spear street where they have resided for several years. They have moved to Houghs Neck for the summer and have not decided where they will live in the fall.

The Quincy Yacht Club may well feel proud of the able manner in which its high officers handle large crowds. It is an object lesson in what system and good management can do.

When William E. Russell was in Harvard William Everett of Quincy was his instructor in Latin. The pedagogic friend was won, once for all, by the young man's proficiency in that language.—Boston Advertiser.

No one appeared at City Hall on Friday to attend the advertised electric light hearing as they had been informed through the columns of the LEDGER that none would probably be held.

The cellar for Mr. Richard J. Larkin's house on Hancock street is completed and Mr. Larkin's workmen are rushing the basement work. When completed, Mr. Larkin will have one of the finest dwellings on the street.

There were but a few ladies and gentlemen present at the Granite City Club on Wednesday evening. The big, black clouds and probably frightened many away. The rain, prior to the evening, was very heavy, and Mr. W. W. Ewell, was very much annoyed.

Mr. John W. Moore and family have moved from Chelsea to this city. We welcome back to Quincy this excellent family, who several years ago was engaged by Henry H. Faxon, Esq., to take charge of his real estate in this city.

Maple Lodge, Knights and Ladies of Honor, No. 1012, of this city, has lost one of its members of Randolph by death. The funeral will take place on Saturday at 2 P. M. The lodge will turn out in a body, taking the electric car leaving the Square at 12.30.

None of the new gifts to the Quincy Yacht club attracted more attention on ladies' day than the large group of photographs by the commodore of the club, which Commodore Pettengill presented to the club on that day. They are a good looking body of men.

Eight boys are attending the Sloyd school opened Wednesday by the Y. M. C. A. and more are expected. They are all happy and doing well, and are very busy with their work. The class meets Tuesday and Thursday mornings.

Mrs. Bessie, a lady who has counted more than eighty years, is visiting her grand-daughter, Mrs. Holton, No. 22 Chestnut street. This lady, whose great-grandchildren are young women, is well and bright; and one whom it is pleasant to meet. Her home is in Brockton.

At Salem, Tuesday, July 14, occurred the death of Thomas Munroe, father of Frank W. Munroe of this city. He was formerly a resident here, but for several years has resided in Salem, where he was prominent in G. A. R. circles, being a member of Post 34. He leaves a widow, two sons and one daughter.

Quincy people appreciate the frequent calls of the health department wagons to remove refuse food and are looking forward to the time when there will be a cart calling once a week at least for rubbish. In these times when the back yard must look as neat and attractive as the front lawn, it is a question to know what to do with the rubbish that collects. It is the despair of all housekeepers and landladies.

Summer Vacation.

The Universals club will be closed until the first Sunday in September. It is impossible for Rev. H. L. Canfield, who has been engaged for the last two Sundays in July, to be present, which will be a great disappointment to many. Owing to the absence of the pastor, who is enjoying his vacation in New Hampshire, it has been decided to close during the heated term.

—John Q. A. Brackett, John D. Boutwell, William Clinch and George S. Lounsbury are the only living ex-Governors of Massachusetts.

WEST QUINCY.

Miss Mary L. Pierce of Willard street married last week her guest last week Miss Alice Foster of Hanson.

Miss Sarah C. Lincoln, who has been a teacher at the Willard school since Sept. 1891, was on Monday elected a teacher in the Highland school at Somerville.

The Lyons Granite Company held its annual meeting Monday evening. The officers elected were: James Lyon, president; Charles Lyon, secretary; and the directors are the above and J. A. O'Connor, Barnabas Clarke, James McGrath and John Smith. They declared a dividend of five per cent on the capital stock.

Twenty evening a number of school children gathered at the residence of Mr. Neil McDougall on Clark avenue, to celebrate the eighth birthday of his son, Malcolm. Mr. McDougall provided a splendid supper for the children, as they always do on such occasions. Among those present was Miss McDougall from Atlantic and Edith Johnson and Walter Stearns. There was a jolly good time all around.

Mr. William E. Badger of West Quincy was in the engine room on the steamer Columbia, Commodore Pettengill's flag ship, on Thursday, and all the guests felt safe with such a competent engineer.

SOUTH QUINCY.

Rev. John P. Cuffe is spending a few days in Portland, Maine.

A new house will be erected on the Main estate on May street. Work has begun tearing down an old shed.

The real estate and stock in trade of the firm of Lillie & Bros. Company will be sold at auction by the assignee, Wednesday July 22. John H. Deegan will be the auctioneer.

The bust of ex-Governor Russell by our townsman, R. E. Brooks, will be ever more highly prized now.

Miss Mabel S. Baxter returned Thursday from Wollaston, well pleased with the Christian Endeavor convention, but not with Washington weather.

QUINCY POINT.

A lady, whose name could not be learned was quite seriously injured Sunday morning by being run into by a street railway car. She had just alighted from a street car and had taken but a step or two before a bicycle rider came tearing down the street and ran into her. She was thrown down and considerably bruised, besides being injured about the limbs. She was taken into a house near by where her injuries were attended to. The wheel was badly smashed and its rider braked somewhat.

The family of Mr. H. H. Connor is again seen at the Brockton cafe. The annual illumination will be on Friday as usual, but it is a little early to fix the date as yet.

The prospects are that there will be a contest of speed in the near future between the two local photographers as to which can take a picture in the shortest time.

The Alpine, one of the Lynn yacht club's crack cruises, arrived off the Quincy neck club's anchorage on Thursday evening. She is over here to take part in Saturday's open regatta.

Onset Camp Grounds.

ONSET, July 16. DEAR PATRIOT: Thinking some of your readers would like to hear a word of this beautiful camp-ground, I send you a few lines.

Twenty years ago this summer I came down here to the first land sale. Not a house was here. The streets were laid out, trees cut off, and underbrush cleared away. A person could have the choice of lots for about $20 to $100; about fifty were taken at that time. But what a change now. Quite a village has sprung up; water has been introduced, supplied from a pond about two miles away in the woods; the main streets have been made good, shell roads which are lighted by lamps—some have electric lights. A street railroad connects the grove with the Onset Junction station. The excursion route from Onset to Quincy is $2.00.

The association has a large temple, costing over $10,000, which can be used in bad weather. The meetings are usually held in the grove, close to the bay. The cool, southwest winds, here most of the time, are cool like a rest in a hot day.

People are here from all parts of the United States. The steamer from New Bedford comes Sundays and Wednesdays, with a band. The Bridgewater band gives three concerts each Sunday. Dancing parties at the temple Wednesdays and Saturdays until 12. An entertainment is to be given this evening by local talent.

This is a temperance camp; not a person here is seen intoxicated. A person who does not wish to be a Spiritualist should not come here.

The full of facts of personal tests and experiences. Meetings are held for the public every day—morning for discussion, and afternoon for speakers and test of the Spirit.

This has been a great week: Sunday, the 12th, Prof. Lockwood, Jennie Haggen, Jackson, and tests by our old friend George Smith; 13th, Prof. Lockwood; 14th, Jennie Haggen and Susan; 15th, Prof. Peck and May Pepper; 17th, A. E. Tidale. Sunday, 19th, A. E. Tidale and May Pepper.

The cranks are well represented by Wm. G. Prescott and Henry Chubbuck of Quincy and J. E. Hayward and G. Bowditch of East Braintree.

Mr. Hayward expects to go to the Harwick camp for a day. G. Bowditch is to be there. Rev. S. L. Beal of Brockton is to preach.

Mr. A. J. Maxham sings at all the meetings at Onset. He is to sing campaign songs for the Republicans this fall.

Come to Onset and be happy.

Yours for a crank, H. C.

Band Concert.

The City Band of Quincy will give a public concert, in front of Mr. Nash's hotel, on Saturday evening at 8 o'clock. The programme:

PROOF OF THE PUDDING.
"But what do you want to do?" demanded the general, angrily. "What is the good of a ten-pound note to a pauper? I ask you that, Matilda, and you can't answer me. If you could give the girl a thousand pounds—something that could be invested and give her a fraction of an income—it would be all very well. But in the name of fortune, the use of staying off the workhouse for two or three weeks with a dose of a ten-pound note?"

"My dear William, you have totally misread the mark," replied his interlocutor, calmly. "There is no talk of a ten-pound note, for Theodore would have no money of his own. He would have to go to the workhouse, for he would sooner take service as a kitchen maid than think of such a thing. But the poor child is in great grief; and even if she had the heart to walk from her father's grave into a general's situation, it would be of no use. All I want is to see her in a place of shelter till she is a little more fitted to cope with the world."

"And I may I ask what asylum is going to be the home of receiving Miss Brakespear?" asked the general.
"It is a question in the neighborhood whether the general's bluster governed Miss DeLaury, or whether Miss DeLaury's composure and little shafts of satire governed the general. But by leaving his son, Arthur, and the servants knew, and they consequently possessed their happy souls in peace."

Miss DeLaury did not immediately answer the general's question, and he therefore grumbled on.
"I never liked Brakespear," he said. "It was he who ruined Arthur's career, and I've never forgiven him, and I never shall. A fool and a maniac! What did he do to ruin his son's life? He led him to a disease that no man understands?"

"It is very much to be regretted that Dr. Brakespear died before his researches were complete," remarked Miss DeLaury. "If he had discovered how to prevent cancer, he would have been one of the world's greatest benefactors."
"Humph! A man has no business to set up for a public benefactor when he has burdened himself with a private family. What did he do to ruin his son's life? He led him to a disease that no man understands?"

"Five hundred pounds!" exclaimed the general. How can any woman live on the interest of $500? I ask you, Matilda, where could you live on the interest of $500. I tell you the man was a scoundrel!"
"I certainly could live on the interest of $500, or can Theodore," said Miss DeLaury. "But luckily she is young, and when her first sorrow is passed, she will be able to work. Besides, there are other possibilities."

"I know you refer to Arthur. Once for all, Matilda, let me assure you that Arthur is ever fond enough to marry Miss Brakespear, I cut him out of my will. Isn't it enough that the father has turned his own boy into a medical man? He shall never marry the girl!"

"Arthur is enthusiastically fond of his profession, William,"
"Exactly. He is going to follow in Brakespear's footsteps and ruin himself in research. But I'll put my foot down upon it at once. Brakespear's influence was pernicious enough. He shall never marry Brakespear's daughter. Do you hear?"

"I hear. But I can't promise that Arthur will heed. Young men usually go their own way."
"Do you mean to imply that Arthur is seriously attached to Miss Brakespear?"
"Very seriously, I believe."

"Matilda, do you mean to insinuate that they are engaged?"
"Not at all. Arthur would do nothing dishonorable; and it would hardly be honorable for him to propose to a girl before he had finished his education."

"But you imply that he means to propose to her as soon as he is settled in life?"
"Undoubtedly."

"Then they may both go to the devil!" cried the general. "You may try to frustrate me as much as ever you like, Matilda; but I tell you plainly I shall not leave my money to the possible children of Miss Brakespear!"

"I don't ask you to do so. All I want is a little breathing time for this poor child."
"Oh, I forgot. You were going to tell me of some asylum where she could be temporarily received."

"Yes, William. I want her to come here."
"The general sprang to his feet. 'Here!' he ejaculated. 'Yes!' repeated Miss DeLaury. 'No!' thundered the general. 'I shall take rooms for myself and her at Simpson's farm.'"

"You will do nothing of the sort, Matilda. You cannot create a scandal." "Then I must have Theodore here."
"Well!" he groaned, "I suppose I must endure it. You are a very unfeeling woman, Matilda, but you never had the slightest sympathy for me. But look here! One thing I do insist upon," he said, beginning to stride up and down the room, "What day does Arthur come home?"

"The first of August."

Poetry.
At the Milking Time.
ANNA M. MITCHELL.

In the lane the meek herds cluster,
Waiting for the herder's call,
Pales the purple sunset lustre
As the milkers gaily muster,
Where the spring's slow waters crawl.
Tireless workers seek a cover,
Weary workers homeward throng,
Wide-winged bats in still air hover,
On its grassy nest the plover,
Stilled the mystic lull-song.

Now the peary hair grows dimmer,
Shadowy, deep, strain lights glimmer,
Palest moonbeams sit and shimmer.
At the milking time.

O'er the golden bars are flocking,
Rose-winged eaglets of the dawn,
On the early zephyrs rocking,
Rapture banners lay and swing.
The sad moon-face wasted, wan,
All the drowsy world is waking.
In the breezy breath of morn,
Blossoms first - sweet flowers - are waking,
Silver dewdrops lightly shaking,
As on swiftest pinions borne.

Birds are ditting, gay cocks crowing,
Toilers to the far fields going,
Now the foaming streams are flowing
At the milking time.

Miscellany.
PROOF OF THE PUDDING.
"But what do you want to do?" demanded the general, angrily. "What is the good of a ten-pound note to a pauper? I ask you that, Matilda, and you can't answer me. If you could give the girl a thousand pounds—something that could be invested and give her a fraction of an income—it would be all very well. But in the name of fortune, the use of staying off the workhouse for two or three weeks with a dose of a ten-pound note?"

"My dear William, you have totally misread the mark," replied his interlocutor, calmly. "There is no talk of a ten-pound note, for Theodore would have no money of his own. He would have to go to the workhouse, for he would sooner take service as a kitchen maid than think of such a thing. But the poor child is in great grief; and even if she had the heart to walk from her father's grave into a general's situation, it would be of no use. All I want is to see her in a place of shelter till she is a little more fitted to cope with the world."

"And I may I ask what asylum is going to be the home of receiving Miss Brakespear?" asked the general.
"It is a question in the neighborhood whether the general's bluster governed Miss DeLaury, or whether Miss DeLaury's composure and little shafts of satire governed the general. But by leaving his son, Arthur, and the servants knew, and they consequently possessed their happy souls in peace."

Miss DeLaury did not immediately answer the general's question, and he therefore grumbled on.
"I never liked Brakespear," he said. "It was he who ruined Arthur's career, and I've never forgiven him, and I never shall. A fool and a maniac! What did he do to ruin his son's life? He led him to a disease that no man understands?"

"It is very much to be regretted that Dr. Brakespear died before his researches were complete," remarked Miss DeLaury. "If he had discovered how to prevent cancer, he would have been one of the world's greatest benefactors."
"Humph! A man has no business to set up for a public benefactor when he has burdened himself with a private family. What did he do to ruin his son's life? He led him to a disease that no man understands?"

"Five hundred pounds!" exclaimed the general. How can any woman live on the interest of $500? I ask you, Matilda, where could you live on the interest of $500. I tell you the man was a scoundrel!"
"I certainly could live on the interest of $500, or can Theodore," said Miss DeLaury. "But luckily she is young, and when her first sorrow is passed, she will be able to work. Besides, there are other possibilities."

"I know you refer to Arthur. Once for all, Matilda, let me assure you that Arthur is ever fond enough to marry Miss Brakespear, I cut him out of my will. Isn't it enough that the father has turned his own boy into a medical man? He shall never marry the girl!"

"Arthur is enthusiastically fond of his profession, William,"
"Exactly. He is going to follow in Brakespear's footsteps and ruin himself in research. But I'll put my foot down upon it at once. Brakespear's influence was pernicious enough. He shall never marry Brakespear's daughter. Do you hear?"

"I hear. But I can't promise that Arthur will heed. Young men usually go their own way."
"Do you mean to imply that Arthur is seriously attached to Miss Brakespear?"
"Very seriously, I believe."

"Matilda, do you mean to insinuate that they are engaged?"
"Not at all. Arthur would do nothing dishonorable; and it would hardly be honorable for him to propose to a girl before he had finished his education."

"But you imply that he means to propose to her as soon as he is settled in life?"
"Undoubtedly."

"Then they may both go to the devil!" cried the general. "You may try to frustrate me as much as ever you like, Matilda; but I tell you plainly I shall not leave my money to the possible children of Miss Brakespear!"

"I don't ask you to do so. All I want is a little breathing time for this poor child."
"Oh, I forgot. You were going to tell me of some asylum where she could be temporarily received."

"Yes, William. I want her to come here."
"The general sprang to his feet. 'Here!' he ejaculated. 'Yes!' repeated Miss DeLaury. 'No!' thundered the general. 'I shall take rooms for myself and her at Simpson's farm.'"

"You will do nothing of the sort, Matilda. You cannot create a scandal." "Then I must have Theodore here."
"Well!" he groaned, "I suppose I must endure it. You are a very unfeeling woman, Matilda, but you never had the slightest sympathy for me. But look here! One thing I do insist upon," he said, beginning to stride up and down the room, "What day does Arthur come home?"

"The first of August."

"Very well, then. Miss Brakespear may come here till the thirty-first of July, but on that day she must go, if I turn her out of the house with my own hands."

Soon after this passage of arms, in which the gallant general was utterly defeated, the poor girl was utterly discomfited by an imperceptible woman, Theodore Brakespear was introduced into the general's household. The poor girl was in deep mourning, and in still deeper grief. Dr. Brakespear had been but forty-five, and it had seemed to William, and to his daughter that, long before he was old, he must have wasted from the terrible disease, to which he had devoted his whole mind, all its secrets, and not only poured upon the world his noblest benefactions, but raised himself to the highest pinnacle of fame. It was not to be. A fall from his horse, serious internal injuries sustained, death rapidly ensuing; such was the history of the gifted man who had given his life to science. Dr. Brakespear's genius lay buried in the grave, and nothing was left to Theodore and the world but a mass of confused notes, which the doctor had never even attempted to classify. Sometimes, when Theodore thought of her dead father and the blighted past, her eyes were dimmed with tears; but at other times they were radiant with a light that made her pale, grave face beautiful. At such times, the general, who had a keen eye for beauty, was obliged to admire her, and this forced admiration irritated him. He would like to have found out that she was a fraud, or that her abundant hair was false; but there was nothing against her except her shyness, which at times made her awkward. When she was seated and at her ease, she was graceful, pretty, and attractive.

"It passes my comprehension how a girl so slight as that can stand up to a man like the general one afternoon, when Theodore had split a cup of tea into his lap."

"You offered her cake as if you were giving the word of command," said Miss DeLaury. "I assure you, William, accustomed as I am to your eccentricities, you made me jump. I don't wonder Theodore was terrified."

"I don't care. She has no business to be so gauche. Why last night she knocked down the stairs—Arthur had come into the room, and now stood looking at her. She opened her eyes suddenly. At the foot of the sofa was a man with a shock head and a bad countenance, clothed in ragged old clothes, his hands red and soiled, his boots heavy and hob-nailed. He was a stranger to her."

"Where is the key of the storeroom?" he muttered, hoarsely.
"Now the storeroom was situated half-way up the stairs—a good-sized chamber, whose window was strongly barred, and where a quantity of valuable plate was kept, as well as the tea and sugar. Theodore had been inside it many times, and knew the place as thoroughly as his own pocket. The general's most precious possession. In an instant her hand was on the key-basket. The trap made a growl forward."

"The trap made a growl forward. 'Let's see!' Theodore withdrew her hand, and her visitor pounced upon the basket and poured its contents on the table. There were two or three bunches of small keys, but there was no key that looked as if it unlocked a storeroom. Theodore, however, had moved toward the window, and there, as she looked out, she saw a man with a shock head and a bad countenance, clothed in ragged old clothes, his hands red and soiled, his boots heavy and hob-nailed. ### Poor Accommodations.

Never have we heard so much complaint by our citizens, who travel on the steam and electric cars, as at the present time. There is not a day but many get disappointed. The street-car conductors are found much fault with on the Quincy Point line, because they cannot get to the Quincy station two or three minutes after the steam cars have gone to Boston; and many have to wait an hour for another train. And how natural it is for a live Yankee to find fault at such times; even if the conductor is not to blame.

Now, a large part of the trouble is owing to the poor accommodation given by the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad.

One train an hour to Boston for a city of twenty thousand inhabitants is not the thing. There is no station on the Old Colony road that has so many passengers as Quincy; yet many places with one-quarter the travel have better train service. If the managers of the road would only look into the matter for a few moments we think they would see their mistake.

The street cars are often obliged to wait one or two minutes for the outward train, and do not have sufficient time to run from the Quincy station to Chubbuck street, and allow a car there to catch the next train to Boston, which leaves at twelve minutes past the hour. If there was another siding near North street, many more passengers on this line would not be disappointed so often.

We learn that the company would put in another train-out if they were granted the right, although they do not want anything by the present arrangement; and they say their passengers who get left at the Quincy station take the street line to Boston, rather than wait a long hour for the next train; consequently the Quincy road gets another fair.

The Quincy and Boston street railway company are now carrying between 1,000 and 2,000 daily to Boston; owing in part to the poor accommodation the steam road is giving our citizens and the fact that the Quincy and Weymouth ought to be smart enough to demand some change that would be more to their convenience. The railroad companies are ready to do much for them if they see there is a real demand for it.

About the City—1.

OUR LIBRARY WITHOUT.—There is enough in our city of Quincy to give one pleasure if he or she has eyes to see all around him. John Burroughs says in one of his fascinating papers, that one can take the same walk every morning and see something new. This is the case in Quincy. The outside of our beautiful public library, to leave the treasure that it holds within, and to study this one of the masterpieces of the late Henry H. Richardson, architect. The early morning walk, just as the sun is rising to reflect its light from the glossy vines that cover the north wall.

See the rays sparkle and reflect light, amidst the domes of numberless birds that find shelter in the eaves of the library, a lesson in color. Later admire the extent of lawn in front of the building, so perfectly trimmed and kept. Stand upon the entrance steps and see in front of you in the middle of the sidewalk across Washington street, one big symmetrical old elm. There are at the corner of the library grounds two beautiful old American elms that have taken the biggest part of a century or two to attain to their perfection. A complete amphitheatre of evergreen in variety encircles the space around you. Near, clean walks lead from the street to the entrance.

The building in beauty of color and form stands out against our brilliant summer sky, undefiled from dirt, or grime, or smoke, that in many European cities hide the architectural beauty. Our pride, our library, is not hidden by surrounding buildings, but stands alone in its loveliness. Next your tired body upon the seats so happily placed at its entrance. See it all by the rays of the electric lights when the beauty of the scene is transformed. See by bright moon light and the trees seen to convert all into a bit of fairy land. Some evening watch the moon over the eastern corner as the light brings the building into bold relief. Study our library at all seasons and at all hours from mid summer to mid winter when the sun completes the miracle of beauty by loading the green branches of the evergreens with a mantle of purity. All this beauty lies at our feet in suggestions. Are we sufficiently grateful to the architect who prompted the gift, the head that wrought the design for the building, the hands that carry out the wishes that framed this for our benefit? Lately a wealthy lady in our city called fashionable circles had some foreign guests at her home.

"Did you show them our library," said one.

"Oh no," was the reply "not that kind of building."

The guests were left to be entertained in some fashion while the lesson taught by our old time Quincy boy, Mr. Crane, was lost and one bit of classic beauty left unseen by them.

The outside of our Public Library can educate as well as the inside.

Frightful Fall.

PATRIOT MULLAH, a toaster employed by F. & S. Sons, met a frightful fall at his quarry Friday morning.

The unfortunate man left his team standing on Quarry street and walked to the quarry, and stood on the bank looking in, when the derrick boom swung around and striking him in the back knocked him into the quarry.

He fell a distance of 50 feet striking with a dull sickening thud on the rocks below. He was taken up in an unconscious condition and removed to the hospital.

At the hospital it was found that his skull was fractured, and that he was cut and bruised in a horrible manner about the body.

The unfortunate man lived about an hour after being taken to the hospital. He was 32 years of age, unmarried, and boarded at St. Copeland street.

Probate Court.

Mrs. M. F. Walsh has been visiting friends in North Troy, N. Y.

Mrs. Charles Geddes and son are on a visit to New Brunswick.

A course in German will be offered at the High School next year.

Mr. Arthur B. Holden is at South Harpswell, Maine, for a couple of weeks.

Mr. Joseph C. Morse and a few friends caught 28 crabs some a few days ago.

The Quincy Grocers' Association held its annual outing next week Thursday.

Contractor Williams is rushing work on the new brick car house of the street railway.

Our markets are well stocked with early vegetables, which are selling at reasonable prices.

The Quincy Triang's Wheelmen have voted to wear caps on their wheels for ten days out of respect to N. H. Parsons.

The whist prizes at the Granite City club on Wednesday evening were taken by Dr. H. C. Halliwell and Mr. W. W. Ewell.

WOLLASTON.

Mrs. Chandler W. Smith of Wollaston and Mrs. George B. Keith of Hutton have been in New York for a few days.

A party of young friends of Miss Grace Patterson, daughter of Mr. William Patterson of Wollaston, gave her a delightful surprise party on Saturday evening, which was the fifteenth anniversary of the day of her birth. A most pleasant evening was passed. She was the recipient of several handsome presents, one of them being a gold ring with a moonstone, a present from several of her friends.

Mr. W. E. Simmons and family of Wollaston have returned from a few weeks' sojourn at their beautiful summer home on the shores of Long pond, in the Plymouth woods.

At the regular meeting of Wollaston Lodge, K. of H., District Grand Deputy Dictator W. F. Murray was present and gave an interesting talk on the cause of change in the world, and how it affects the benefits which would result therefrom.

Special attention is called to the change in time of the morning service at St. Christopher's Episcopal church. From 7 o'clock to 7:45 and the evening meeting Sunday evening at 7 o'clock.

The Wollaston Cycle club took a run to Nantasket on Sunday and enjoyed a shore dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence W. Packard of Dorchester are guests of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Roberts.

Mr. N. G. Nickerson of Wollaston has sold his house and lot at the corner of Central avenue and Fayette street, to Jos. M. Lewis' house on Central avenue.

Wendell G. Hull, who will occupy a lot in land on Marion street, containing 6000 square feet to Henry Gifford. Mr. Nickerson has leased half of the Bailey house on Grand street, which he is now building, to Mr. Collier of the Massachusetts Boot & Shoe Co.

Letters for Miss Bertha Niz and Mrs. Martha A. Bailey were advertised Monday at the Wollaston postoffice.

The Rev. E. A. Robinson, pastor of the Wollaston Congregational church, is passing his vacation at South Yarmouth. Mr. Robinson is accompanied by his family. During his absence the pulpit is to be supplied as follows:—July 25, Rev. H. P. Fisher, Brockton, Mass.; Aug. 2, Rev. W. S. Fitch of Abington, formerly of the W. S. church of Wollaston; Aug. 9, Rev. H. G. Megathier of Andover Seminary, Class of '98.

Miss Howard, Miss Fairbanks, Miss Brown, Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Wm. P. Chase and child, of Wollaston, are at Long Island, Cacao bay, for a few weeks.

QUINCY POINT.

Freel Jones has been appointed manager of the excursion steamer Columbia.

Excellent concert given at Lovell's grove Sunday by Mansfield's band of Maplewood. Division 1, A. O. H., of Boston held a picnic in part of the grove, and thousands visited the free part.

Rev. Allan H. Henson of North Weymouth left Monday for Prince Edward Island. He will not move to Brockton until September.

Mrs. John Federhen, 31, and children have gone to Rymond, N. H., for the summer.

SOUTH QUINCY.

The Calvary Baptist church will hold their picnic at Merry Mount Park, Tuesday, to which every one who is interested is cordially invited to attend, and to bring or send refreshments to the chapel on Franklin street, after 10 o'clock in the morning. Special cars will leave the chapel at 10 A. M. and at 1:30 P. M. for the park, those desiring of going can meet there or take any car, as no special rates are offered.

The Ladies' day sail of the Squantum Yacht club which was held Saturday afternoon was proclaimed a grand and brilliant success by all who were fortunate enough to participate. A score or more of the yacht were gathered in the water, and a most enjoyable sail in Quincy bay was enjoyed. A hop followed at the club house in the evening.

Some miscreant stole a hammock from the orchard of George W. Hall, of Quincy, Downs several days ago. Fortunately the miscreant was seen in the act and the hammock is returned, the owner will have justice served and make an example of the thief.

Mrs. Clara T. Mann of Randolph is visiting friends at Norfolk Downs.

The moonlight sail and other festivities of the Squantum Yacht club will be held Saturday night.

A goodly number of the relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. John Sutherland of Pierce street, Norfolk Downs, gathered in the hall near the depot Wednesday evening to extend congratulations and to assist in the celebration of observing their silver wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Sutherland were united in marriage at East Boston in 1871, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Mr. Clark, since deceased. Five children have been born to them of whom are now living, W. F. and Austin. Some few years ago Mr. and Mrs. Sutherland came to Quincy taking up their residence in the suburb known as Norfolk Downs where they have since resided.

The guests began to arrive shortly before 8 o'clock and they were received by the ushers: Mr. W. F. Sutherland, Mr. Austin Sutherland, their two sons, Mr. Frank Hughes, Mr. William A. Betts. These guests did not come empty handed for they brought with them many beautiful presents to testify of their good wishes for future happiness.

Shortly after 8 o'clock, to the sweet inspiring music of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, executed on the piano and violin by Miss Winslow and Miss Thomas, the party marched in from the door, led by Mr. and Mrs. Sutherland, and the guests followed in the hall the bride and groom of twenty-five years ago halted in front of the platform and received the individual congratulations of those present.

The platform was very prettily decorated with large potted plants, among them were several banquet lamps with delicate shades which made a very pretty picture.

After the march there was a short musical programme, consisting of piano solos, Miss Winslow, violin solo by Miss Thomas and cornet solos by Mr. Arthur Murphy.

At the conclusion of the musical programme an adjournment was made to the banquet hall where the wedding supper was served by Caterer W. H. Holbrook.

The remaining hours of the evening were passed in social intercourse, and in dancing, music for the latter being furnished by Messrs. Frank Bugbee and Arthur Metcalf.

WEST QUINCY.

The foundation of the Gridley Bryant school, which is the building contractor has commenced work.

Miss Grace Turner of West street is on a visit to Palermo, Maine.

Miss Cassie Thayer of Crescent street is going to Burlington, Mass., to visit her father, Eugene McCormick, clerk at E. H. Doble & Co., has gone to Lincoln, Ill., to visit his brother.

The West End street railway of Boston has been granted a location on Adams street, Dorchester, and the next thing will be another connection with Quincy via Granite avenue and East Milton.

The Horace Johnson estate on the corner of Crescent and Cross streets, was sold at auction Monday to Mrs. Daniel Hayes for $4,400.

The eighteen months old daughter of George S. Snowing of Ballou street, West Quincy, was badly scalded the other afternoon by getting into a tub of hot water. It seems that Mrs. Snowing had been doing some washing and had placed a tub of scalding water on the doorstep. While she was absent the baby, who was playing about, fell into it and was severely scalded about the left side and neck. The child was in terrible agony all night and it was thought at one time that it would not recover.

A Mink at Large.

There is a mink in the vicinity of Rogers street, which formed quite an attachment to the house owned by John Henry, and as his brood was nightly growing he determined to exterminate his minkship.

Accordingly he loaded his gun with buckshot and went out to hunt for the unwelcome intruder, who soon put in appearance. Mr. Henry took aim and pulled the trigger but the cap failed to explode. A new cap was put on the gun and it was no use he could not discharge it. Finally the mink who seemingly had been waiting patiently to be shot, got tired waiting and wandered away.

Mr. Henry being somewhat disgusted with the gun carried it into the house and threw it into the back yard. The next morning the family were startled by a loud report, and upon investigation it was found that for some reason the gun had been discharged and the charge of buckshot had torn a large hole in the ceiling. The mink is still at large.

ATLANTIC.

The Epworth League will have a lawn party next Monday evening, weather permitting on Atlantic street, opposite Newbury avenue. One of the attractions will be a chowder supper.

Large congregations at the Methodist church last Sunday listened to two very strong and earnest sermons by the pastor, Rev. J. E. Price. He always gives us a "strong meat" of the gospel, too strong for many to digest, nevertheless it feeds his people and gives them a keen appetite for more. It is an encouraging sign to see the congregation and Sunday School increasing so steadily during the midsummer vacation season.

Some of the young ladies connected with the Epworth League are carrying on a flower mission, making one or two trips a week to the city, taking flowers to the sick and unfortunate. One day this week they took in fifty bouquets, making over thirty calls. They find many interesting cases. At one time they called upon an aged lady, who is in her nineties, a missionary, but for several years past has been confined to her bed in one of the most dilapidated sections of the city. She was so grateful for their visit that she gave them a letter to her sister.

Rev. Ira E. Price announces that he takes no vacation this summer. He says he has been preaching nine years, and has never had a vacation yet, and does not propose to commence now. As a rule, he preaches three times each Sunday, and teaches in the Sabbath school and leading the morning class-meeting and league meeting.

When in Doubt—

Well, you know the railroad men's rule, of course: "When in doubt, take the safe side."

That is an admirable test to apply to the purchase of goods such as we handle. If you are inclined to go elsewhere because of a seeming "bargain," or an apparent opportunity of getting something for nothing, yet are conscious of a doubt in your mind, "take the safe side,"—come to us.

We offer you old-fashioned reliability combined with new-fashioned enterprise. You're on "the safe side" in our establishment.

Stonewall's Picnic.

The largest picnic of the season at Lovell's grove was the annual on Saturday of the Quincy stone cutters and their families. It was a perfect day and the 2500 or more present enjoyed the sports, the dancing and the other diversions so customary at this popular resort.

One of the leading events of the day was a five-mile bicycle race on the track in the grove. It was an exciting contest and attracted a crowd. Arthur Parsons of Quincy in the flush of victory was thrown from his horse by a boy who got in his way, and in his fall received his death blow. He was removed to the howling alley and medical aid summoned. Dr. Gilbert and Dr. Hunt attended him at the grove, and desired his removal to the Quincy hospital. But the boy who was taken down was taken there. He was attended by Dr. Hall and Dr. Hunt, but did not recover consciousness, and died before midnight.

The Quincy had met their own way in the game of the day. The Quincy had met their own way in the game of the day. The Quincy had met their own way in the game of the day.

Shawmut Spring Water.

How many people realize the importance of drinking only pure water in large quantities in order to keep in absolute health? When we consider that two-thirds of the human body is in the form of water, and that in order to keep the system in perfect health and to keep the organs of the body in perfect health, it is of the utmost importance that it should be of the very best quality, perfectly free from the slightest trace of impurity.

The Shawmut Spring Water stands second to none as a pure drinking water. Hundreds of families are using it every day. It is an important factor in maintaining health, building up and restoring the organs of the body to healthy action. Cures Rheumatism, Kidney and Bladder troubles, when drugs have failed.

Send your order for a 5-gallon sample package. If you don't like it, it costs you nothing. Drink it and you will be satisfied of its purity.

CO. K at Framingham.

Co. K of the 10th Regiment went into camp at Framingham Monday evening during a heavy rain. A regimental guard was soon established by the Fifth Regiment. The few sentries who were on duty remained under arms.

The Herald says: The camp of the Fifth regiment was looking exceedingly neat and trim, through the efforts of Quartermaster Wesson and his sergeant, Russell, who for the past two days have been working night and main to make the place look better than they did upon the arrival of the main body of the regiment, under command of Maj. Oakes, at the camp.

It was hot and close at Framingham on Wednesday; maximum temperature, 88; relative humidity, 82.

The details of the Fifth, says the Journal, came on to the line well together. Formation was prompt, requiring no material rectification of alignment. The Lieutenant of the Guard drew his sword a little prematurely. The march past and manual were good. There were 72 men in the detail.

The Fifth repeated the good work performed Tuesday, says the Globe, and mounted a guard of 72 men. Steadiness, good alignments, snappy manual and excellent cadence in the march characterized the ceremony.

Amory-Gaudelet Wedding.

Mr. William Amory of "Seven Oaks" and Miss Louise Gaudelet were quietly married on Saturday by the Rev. Walter Russell, pastor of the Church of the Holy Trinity, Quincy, at the residence of Mrs. F. Gordon Dexter of 161 Commonwealth avenue, Boston.

Mr. Amory is of a well known Boston family and many have enjoyed his hospitality at his summer residence on "Seven Oaks," near the "Seven Oaks" farm, near the "Seven Oaks" farm, near the "Seven Oaks" farm.

Miss Gaudelet formerly lived with her mother on Beacon Hill, Boston, and was known as an accomplished musician. Later she became secretary to Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, sitting at position until the time of his death. She then went to live with her friend, Mrs. Gordon Dexter, the well-known society leader, with whom she had made her home. She is a finely accomplished, broadly cultured woman, very handsome and attractive personally.

Mr. and Mrs. Amory were at Seven Oaks over Sunday, and their wedding trip will be a cruise in Mr. Amory's fine steam yacht to Bar Harbor.

Popular Excursion to Newport.

The New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad has arranged for a popular excursion by special train for Quincy, Braintree, So. Braintree, Randolph, Stoughton, North Attle, Taunton and Mattapoisett, to Somerset inclusive, to Newport and return, on Thursday, July 25th, for which round trip tickets will be sold at very low rates.

Newport at midsummer is at its best, one of the grandest watering places ever known. Its natural attractions are unequalled and no visitor or sojourner there would complain of the hours lagging or the minutes passing heavily. Its walks and drives, marine sports and pastimes in endless variety, its wonderful estates and resorts all combine to entrance the beholder and serve to make the outing one to be remembered with pleasure and satisfaction.

Fell in a Pain.

Cyrus N. Thayer, who drives a butcher wagon from Randolph, was cutting a piece of meat in his cart near the West Quincy depot on Saturday, when he was suddenly seized in the back by a sharp pain in the loins, and he fell to the ground.

Dr. Davis was the first to reach the scene, and after working over him for some moments succeeded in bringing him back to life.

Squantum Ladies' Day.

Bright cloudless skies and a cool easterly breeze were the elements that greeted the Squantum ladies club Saturday at its ladies' day observance, and made it the most successful of any yet held by this club which is fast taking its place among the leading clubs of Boston harbor.

The guests began to arrive shortly after 2 o'clock when they were received by the committee, Mr. Benjamin Sargent, Dr. F. A. Locke and Capt. J. E. Drew, the latter being dressed in complete suit of immaculate white duck and looking as charming as ever.

Meanwhile the skippers of the several yachts in the fleet were busy getting their boats in trim to receive the fair guests, while waiting for the tide to rise enough for them to make the club fleet.

At the club house were entertained with a concert by the orchestra. It was 3 o'clock when the first yacht arrived at the float and for the next half hour the skippers were busy getting their living freight on board.

At 3:30 the signal to get under way was given and the several yachts then passed in review of Vice Commodore Hamilton Flood who was on the flagship Payomet, and then sailed away for a cruise about the bay.

The return was made about 6 o'clock, after which refreshments of ice cream and cake were served in the club house.

In the evening there was dancing at the club house, and those who desired were given a moonlight sail in the harbor.

The affair throughout was very enjoyable and was the most pleasant and will go down as a red letter day in the annals of the club's history.

The yachts to participate in the afternoon sail and their guests were:

Flagship Payomet—Vice Commodore Hamilton Flood, Miss Blanche Taylor, Miss Emma Polson, Miss Elaine Flood, H. W. Harkins, Chester McIntosh, W. C. Polson, Rufus Dicks.

TWO Y. M. C. A. CLASSES IN SLOYD.

Seventeen boys are already members of the Y. M. C. A. Sloyd school, and new members are joining every session. It has been decided to divide the class, putting the young boys in a separate class for elementary work. The advance class has been held Tuesdays and Thursdays and the beginners' class on Wednesdays and Fridays. From nine to eleven are the hours for both classes.

Four more boys can be accommodated in each class. They can begin next week and will be charged only for the twelve lessons. Boys from nine to sixteen years will be admitted.

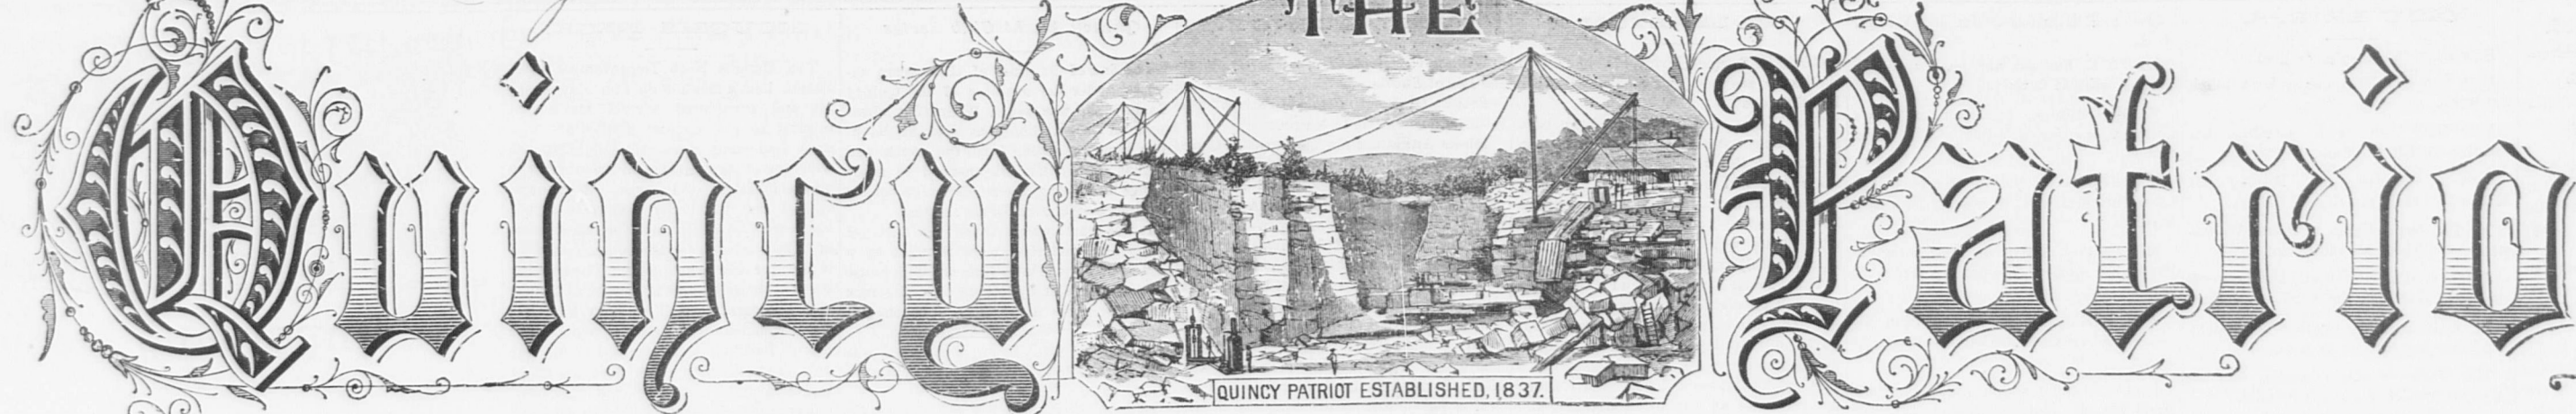

The Association furnishes benches, tools and material free, charging only for the exact cost of instruction, except where the boys are old enough to belong to the junior department when they are expected to pay one dollar for a year's membership in the Association, which entitles them to many other privileges.

The following boys are now registered: Thorpe Babcock, John Sheppard, Charles Rowlett, Richard McGraw, Freeman Higgins

Enameled White Bedsteads.
We might write a book on the virtues of white enameled bedsteads, but now that people everywhere are coming to understand them, the sentence was scarcely finished when she exclaimed,
"There he is now!"
Mabel, as she stepped into the room from the store room where she was sitting, for a cake.
"Why, that iron agent;
I'll go and talk to him. He's going to the front door like a commuting runner. The government, according to the Indian standard, requires that the knife upon which the oath is taken be crimson with his own blood, from a self-inflicted wound."
The novice stands in the center of a group of six, who hold six bloody knives crossed above his head. The candidate is given a new knife that was not innocent of human blood, and while the weird chant is sung, he cuts a long slash in his breast, or more than once he is expected to special distinction, and allows the warm blood to gush over his face. He then takes the oath and is formally accepted into the brotherhood.
The purpose of these societies is similar to that of the highlanders or the Males, to avenge the real or fancied wrongs of the members and to otherwise further the interests and execute the will of the majority - Chicago Record.

Poetry.
The Old Gate.
J. B. M. WHITE.

I open the way to the meadow grass,
Where the lowliest flowers are born,
And the lowliest cattle slowly pass,
At eventide or morn.

In summer days the children come,
To search for berries there,
The bees go by with droning hum,
And the butterflies are seen.

The wild birds pause awhile to rest,
And sing their sweetest song,
The moon hangs fair in the distant west,
And the twilight shades grow long.

I open the way to the meadow grass,
Alone in sun or shower,
The lowliest cattle slowly pass,
At morn or evening hour.

Miscellany.
Cousin Margaret and the Agent.

"What shall we call her, Mamma - Cousin, Aunt, or Miss?"
"You must call her Cousin Margaret, for she is very particular about it. She is your grandmother's own cousin, though a great deal younger than your grandmother. We children were taught to address her as 'cousin,' and I hope none of you will forget it," looking around, as she spoke, at my younger sister, Mabel, and brother Joe - the latter just arrived at that age known as the "small boy."

When in Doubt—

Well, you know the railroad men's rule, of course: "When in doubt, take the safe side."

That is an admirable rule to apply to the purchase of goods such as this handle.

If you are inclined to go elsewhere because of a seeming "bargain," or an apparent opportunity of getting something for nothing, yet are conscious of a doubt in your mind, "take the safe side,"—come to us.

We offer you old-fashioned reliability combined with new-fashioned enterprise.

You're on "the safe side" in our establishment.

Always Going Ahead.

Our offices never stand still. The history of our ten years of business makes one continuous story of progress. We are trying to make our 10 branches model dental offices, trying to make them different and better than any other office in the city. We use only one grade of material—this is the only one that is perfect. We use the best. Our prices apply to rich and poor alike.

The triumph of modern dentistry is our crown and gold.

WE READ in a July number of The Nation that Quincy is the second banner town, or city, in having the smallest proportion of delinquents from its shelves for distribution, Los Angeles, California, being first on the list. This is rather surprising, and may be partially due to the fact that our schools, clubs, church societies, etc., take many books of reference, or may be that we have very zealous librarians who assist the boys and girls in selection of good books; but the fact remains and scores another for Quincy.

Fearful of the Tunnel.

Superintendent of Streets Wells, Senior Superintendent O'Brien and Alderman William J. Donovan have completed their inspection of the Moon Island sewer outlet. They find the tunnel between Cow pasture and Squantum neck has not been cleaned out since 1884, and as its condition is doubtful, immediate steps will be taken to have it cleaned.

They also found at Moon Island some iron bolts that had been taken away beyond the safety point, and judging from this was the opinion of Foreman Callahan that the iron work must be in an extremely dangerous condition, and should be replaced. The tunnel is about 100 feet long, and runs to the bottom of the shaft and shut off the tunnel, in which event the sewage would have to be emptied into the bay.

The works were found to be well kept, but it is imperative that some improvements be done this year.

Beside an inspection of the plant at Moon Island the party inspected the city's property at Squantum Neck, and also visited the crane erected to commemorate the landing of May's Starfish.

Tax Rates.

The valuation of the city of Gloucester shows a loss this year of $36,312, and the tax rate is increased from $10.40 to $17.70. The city of Wollaston raises $7,826.52 this year on account of Metropolitan sewer, and her total levy is $18,747.65. The tax rate is $18.10 against $17.80 last year.

Quincy's valuation is $22,995,091 and her tax rate is $17 against $16.80 in 1895. The tax rate of Milton is $9, and of Needham $12.00.

Litchfield-Bicknell.

Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree and Hingham people were interested in a pretty church wedding on Wednesday, July 22, at the Old North church, at Hingham, which was beautifully decorated with wild flowers, palms and ferns. The bride was Miss Litchfield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Bicknell of West Hingham, and the groom, Mr. John Quincy Litchfield, a successful teacher of Quincy, being principal of the school at Atlantic. The bride appeared in white satin with tulle veil, and the bridesmaids, Miss Annie Kelley and Miss Olive V. Bicknell, also wore white. Mr. J. W. Day, pastor of the church, officiated, and Mr. Arthur M. Raymond presided at the organ. The groom was accompanied by his brother, Mr. John Weston Litchfield. The ushers were Mr. Henry L. Merrill, Mr. Arthur M. Raymond, Mr. John Brooks and Mr. Elmer Carter. A reception followed the marriage ceremony at the residence of the bride's parents, attended by fully two hundred. The presents were numerous and valuable. The groom's gift to the bride was a diamond ring, and Mrs. Litchfield will take a short wedding tour, and upon their return will reside at Atlantic.

The Ancient Home.

The Servia, with the members of the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company who took the excursion to England, was sighted at 3.30 A. M. Friday, from the Hull sign, and the passengers arrived in Boston on time so that the programme of the day could be carried out.

The excursionists were welcomed down the bay. The usual stop at quarantine was short, and as an enlarged number of custom officers made their inspection of baggage on the boat, no time was lost in reaching the Cunard pier.

The excursionists were met at the wharf by the "stay-at-home" and a line of militia, and were conveyed to the Washington, School, Beacon street, to the State House, where Gov. Wolcott, in behalf of the Commonwealth, made an address of welcome, to which Col. Henry Walker responded, the march the route was through Park street, Tremont, Boylston, Washington street, High, Pearl, Congress, State, to Merchants Row, and thence to Faneuil Hall.

Many were the honours who were accompanied by Alderman Lee, the President of the Board, and President Conroy of the Common Council, delivered an address of welcome, and there was an informal luncheon in the hall, at which remarks by Col. Walker, E. A. Horton, Rev. A. A. Berie and others were made.

First Church.

Large bunches of yellow tansy, so pungent and aromatic, were put before the pulpit Sunday. The solid color of these composite flowers, showed well with its graceful green, and with the pulpit background, was a symphony in color. The Rev. Dr. Butler gave a welcome theological sermon on Christ.

His able discourse, simple yet strong in light, did not neglect the things of the heart, but was one to be remembered. He said that the central facts of theology were not touched by the things of the heart, but were one to be remembered. ## Street Railway Rights.

An important hearing has been advertised to be held next Monday evening by the City Council, relative to certain locations now held by the Quincy and Boston Street Railway Company.

In the rebuilding of the Quincy Point line, the company, which had been refused locations for turnouts on Washington street, took the liberty to put in spurs, both at Riverside street and North street. The order before the City Council asks the company to show cause why said spurs should not be removed.

The company has also put in recently two turnouts on Hancock street that it might run cars every fifteen minutes between Quincy and Neponset. One is near the entrance to Mount Park and the other north of Squantum street near the Church of Sacred Heart.

The company claims the right to put in these turnouts, and the City Council, a Selectmen of the town, which is a broad one containing a clause, that said company "may put in all necessary turnouts, at all times, but others different from the City Council." And further to show cause why said spurs should not be removed.

Lavender Leaves.
MINNIE IRVING.
The waving corn was green and gold,
The damask roses blown,
The bees and busy spinning-wheel,
Kept up a drowsy drone,
When Mistress Standish, folding down
Her linen, white as snow,
Between it laid the lavender,
One summer long ago.
The slender spikes of grayish-green,
Still moist with morning dew,
Recalled a garden sweet with box
Beyond the ocean's blue,
An English garden, quaint and old,
She nevermore might know,
And so she dropped a housewife tear
That summer long ago.
The yellow sheets grew warm and thin
And fell in many a shroud;
Some went to find a soldier's wounds,
And tried to share their pain,
And Mistress Standish rests her head
Where graves their shadows throw
And violets blossom, planted there
In summer long ago.
Be still between the royal rose
And lady's all,
Springs up the modest lavender
Beside the cottage wall,
The spider sweeps her gossamer
Across it to and fro,
The ghost of linen laid to bleach
One summer long ago.

Notes and Comments.

—The London Globe of Monday, says: "Whether McKinley or Bryan is elected, British interests are bound to suffer. While the victory of McKinley is certain to harass our trade with the United States, that of Bryan could not fail to produce a financial convulsion which might shake the Old World to its very foundations."

—Thomas H. Swope, a prominent citizen of Kansas City, has given a tract of land 1,400 acres in extent to the city for a park. The proposed park is four miles from the city limits, and is valued at $250,000.

—Welcome, three welcome, Ancient! Gentlemen, you have placed the United States of America in the right light before the queen. You have shown her by your presence, right before her army, how much superior you are to any similar body of English soldiers. You have compelled England to recognize the U. S. as a military power not to be sneered at. You have postponed international complications; for England, after seeing you, would never pull the back of the American eagle. —Roxbury Gazette.

—How is this for business honor? Of 35 heavy business failures investigated recently by Mr. Cannon, president of the New York State Bankers' Association, seven were fraudulent, or "pure and simple steals," 13 concerns would give little or no information about their affairs, and 17 of those which did give information proved to be in no condition to entitle them to any credit.

—John D. Rockefeller, the Standard Oil multi-millionaire has presented the city of Cleveland, O., 270 acres of land to be used for park purposes. The property is worth over $600,000. The park will bear his name, and will be one of uncommon beauty.

—Candidate Bryan's great grandnephew is living at the age of 94. She assists her daughter in the family washing and mends the clothes. Although quite an expert in the science of longevity, says the Boston Courier, the lady need not expect to live long enough to see her oratorical descendant make an inaugural address as President of the United States.

—The New York Sun says that out of 700 or more German newspapers in the country, only 31 of them support Bryan.

—Somerville is becoming one of the important cities in Massachusetts. It has a property valuation of $49,000,000, a population of about 55,000, and a total tax levy of $785,000.

—Men, it is said, marry at twenty-five for love, at forty for convenience, and at sixty because they are old fools. After that they wed because they are delightedly astonished to discover some one who is willing to have them. What about women, though? Following the same line of reason it may be said that a woman marries at twenty because she is tired asking permission of pa and ma every time she wants to do so; at thirty because she is tired of earning her own living, at forty because she wants to show the neighbors that she is still able to get a beau, and at fifty or sixty for a reason similar to that influencing her at twenty—grandchildren and nephews and nieces being as tyrannical to old age as fathers and mothers are to youth.

—An old Democratic farmer in Maine has just had an objection lesson which has a direct bearing on the currency question. It has convinced him of the fallacy of the silver man's argument, and it will convince others. It happened thus: the old farmer, not having a good opinion of National Banks, kept his money in the barn. In one bag he had $200 in gold and in another $200 in silver. The barn burned down, as barns too often do. For the melted gold he received $200, while for the melted silver the very best he could do was $120. He is now a gold man, and will vote against Bryan and Sewell. All his free silver neighbors have boiled with him. —Exchange.

—There are fourteen Boston in the postal guide, but only one Boston in the country to which a letter will be sent if the state is omitted from the address.

—Inventor Edison is going to take two weeks' vacation this year. This will be his first outing for many years, and he will be bound to all the watering places and see the kinetoscope, have his picture taken by electricity, listen to the talking machine and have a real good time.

—The Journal has several times advocated the use of trolley sprinklers in watering thoroughfares through which electric street cars run, and has called attention to the successful operation of such sprinklers in Toronto and other cities. A trolley sprinkler was at work in Salem Sunday, and although its use was evidently experimental, yet no one who has seen such a sprinkler in operation can doubt that thoroughfares where electric cars run can be watered by trolley more cheaply and effectively than in any other way. —Somerville Journal.

The Randolph Register says the reception given to Quincy Lodge, New England Order of Protection, of Quincy, by Pilgrim Lodge, at Randolph, on Tuesday evening, was one of the most enjoyable affairs ever given by the lodge. The Quincy delegation, about fifty in number, came by special electric, and had a good time all the way along, as well as after their arrival. They were a jolly party, and were finally entertained.

—The big loads of paving stones that pass through River street every day are from the Quincy quarries and are for the Dedham & Norwood Electric Railway, now building—Hyde Park Gazette.

—The new East River bridge between New York and Brooklyn is to cost $20,000,000.

—State election in Alabama takes place Aug. 3; Vermont, Sept. 1; Arkansas, Sept. 3; Maine, Sept. 14; Florida, Sept. 14; Georgia, Oct. 7.

—It costs money to establish and run a daily paper. The late Boston Daily Standard used to cost more than $200,000 a year, and four months, contributed by about 400 stockholders.

—A New York dispatch says that the coal miners, satisfied that there will probably be no advance in prices August 1.

—President Faure of France wore a pair of white kid gloves when he took the hand of the Empress dowager of Russia to kiss it, and they have been assigned to a glow box of raw workmanship, which is henceforth to be regarded as a relic.

—It is true, as has been stated, it is a fact worth knowing that the plague is not a worm. A farmer in Rome, N. Y., who has been making experiments, declares that when the worms under the soil to crawl over a row of salt it will kill them.

—A society to check the decline in population has been formed in France. It proposes to attain its object by legislation. Families containing more than three children are to be free from taxation, while those having no children will be taxed heavily. The legacy duties are to be revised and the laws regulating the division of estates among children reformed. —The American.

—It is clear, says the American, that tobacco and tobacco smoke are antiseptics and germicides of considerable power, and that their action on the pulmonary circulation is useful in relieving or preventing any tendency to chronic congestion of the lungs. Many doctors in various countries have remarked the comparative immunity from pulmonary disease enjoyed by workers in tobacco factories.

—An aluminum quadrant has been devised to measure the antic power of the Roten rays. The aluminum is arranged in concentric layers ranging from one to ten millimetres in thickness. Measurements are taken by holding the quadrant between an excited Crookes tube and a phosphorescent screen or a sensitized plate.

—The member of Christ Episcopal Church, West Islip, N. Y., are angry because the memorial chapel given to the parish by Mrs. Harry L. Nichols, in memory of her daughter, has been rented to Mrs. James Duffin, who has opened in it a pickling and preserving establishment, with an intelligence office as an annex.

—With summer scarcely here it seems like crowding matters to begin plans for the winter window display. The best authorities, however, say that slips of decorative material, such as paper, and some other plants should be started now. Just as soon as the slips are started well, pot them and sink the pot in the ground. Pinch off any flower buds that come and keep the growth as a shape uniform. This will give good looking plants. A row of straggling slips or ill-shaped old plants are no ornament in the window but that is the kind of display you will have if you put off preparations until the first of September or later. —Mrs. Whitaker, in N. E. Farmer.

—"In order to preserve intact the American credit," said Grant when he was President, "let every obligation, unless otherwise specified, be payable in gold." And again he said, "any man attempts to repudiate this American principle, let him be driven from public life."

—During the last election in Paris the pasting of electoral placards on the walls of the Elysee was prevented. The law authorities of the city of Paris, in connection with the election of the city of Paris, have ordered that all public buildings except churches, and while an election is going on all the monuments, statues, fountains, as well as buildings, are to be closed. The Town Council has ordered that no placards be pasted on the walls of the city of Paris, and that the persons who tried to save the President's place.

—Without doubt the Venetian question has advanced the principle of international arbitration a quarter of a century. Much credit is due to Secretary Olney for bringing the correspondence on the subject to a point where decisive action cannot be escaped. Lord Salisbury, in his discovery of one who is willing to have them. What about women, though? Following the same line of reason it may be said that a woman marries at twenty because she is tired asking permission of pa and ma every time she wants to do so; at thirty because she is tired of earning her own living, at forty because she wants to show the neighbors that she is still able to get a beau, and at fifty or sixty for a reason similar to that influencing her at twenty—grandchildren and nephews and nieces being as tyrannical to old age as fathers and mothers are to youth.

Is especially true of Hood's Pills, for no medicine ever contained so great curative power in so small a space. They are a whole medicine.

As the disappointed doctor of the past generation remarked, "It seems too bad to discriminate against anybody in that way."

"I know it does," Charon replied, "but I have to do it. Here is the blood-purifying pill which I know the box in the other world."

4. The liquor men say: "Prohibition doesn't prohibit." This means two things: First, they intend to break the law as much as often as they can. Second, that the people, after enacting prohibitory laws, have failed to enforce them. This is not an argument against prohibition. It is an argument against a business that lures and defies law.
5. Any American citizen who says it is impossible for us to put down these evils, to enforce the laws that are upon the statute books, against the liquor interests, in many cases the same man who would say that he ought to abdicate. We are able to do it.

The Quincy Patriot.

SATURDAY, AUG. 8, 1896.

City Hall.

August seems a clearing up month. It is the closing month of vacation, and September brings us to a renewal of work, always welcome to healthy natures. At the same time old places have become new, a change, a renovation seems reasonable. While our more fortunate citizens have been away, to mountains, sea-side, or to London to see the Queen, work-a-day, less favored mortals have wandered around this old town, not only for recreation, but they have seen through spectacles more clearly than ever before. They see much to be glad about, much to be proud of, but also, some things they wish were different.

Strangers visiting Quincy, after being taken to see our grand old granite hills, our beautiful library, our big fountain, the Adams house, our splendid academies, and many large schools, ask about our public affairs.

Our little town Hall is pointed out, not without some hesitation, for that has not kept pace with public improvement, nor is it in proportion to our necessities. A visit there, early on Saturday, one passes through two business offices devoted to various departments, and is directed to a small closet devoid of ventilation, shaft, fan, or window, to change the air. A gas jet, for ventilation, is the only thing that is there. Below stairs we are told, less attractive offices can be found. Is the Board of Health responsible for the sanitary conditions where men are held in confinement?

If a woman were carried to our station house, to be kept over night, would she be received into a place where the privacy and decency required by her sex, however degraded she might seem, could be maintained?

Why then not all the departments of public work beneath one roof? If rentals have to be made outside our City Hall, presumably those outside the hall. Cannot the city be the gainer by owning all their own places of business, being their own tenants?

A great deal has been agitated about improvements at City Hall, and it is not dignified or businesslike to transact our city affairs as we do. In spite of the cry of heavy taxes, high valuation, and the tax, etc., we can not afford to be behind the times in our public services. Our public servants are conscientious, earnest gentlemen.

Quincy is not old enough yet for any corruption in municipal affairs to creep in. As a city increases in size, the more it comes in unless we begin well. We need breathing room; some privacy is needed to conduct public as well as private business judiciously. With the Adams block, Dring's and Merrill's block, the new Savings bank block going up, an enlarged and convenient place to transact public affairs is necessary. The interests of the public will not suffer, for we are now paying rents for offices which should be under our own Town Hall roof. Let us weigh carefully these suggestions.

Hay Rack Party.

Quincy is fortunate in having a citizen like Mr. Henry H. Faxon, and the young people in particular are thoroughly appreciative of his many kindnesses.

The other evening a small party of young men and women called on Mr. Faxon for the purpose of hiring a hay rack that was well fitted out with springs and all modern improvements. Much to the satisfaction of all Mr. Faxon not only offered them the use of the rack but Saturday evening he furnished them with one of his best horses and sent his man to look after the turnout.

The young people endeavored to persuade their friend to accompany them on the ride but other engagements prevented Mr. Faxon from taking an active part in the expedition, although his best wishes and much in the way of wholesome advice went with him.

The start was made from the home of Mr. Everett Hardwick, and the party was composed of the following: Mr. Howard Spear, Mr. "Bill" Wason, Mr. Charles Shackford of Weymouth, Mr. J. P. Parrot of Brookline, Mr. Charles H. Hardwick, Mr. Everett V. Hardwick, George B. Whitney of New York City, Miss George A. Blanchard, Miss Daisy King, Miss Hattie Pierce, Miss Ada B. Thompson, Miss Grace Pulsifer of Ashmont, Miss May and Miss Clara Merrill. Mrs. George B. Whitney of New York chaperoned the party.

Ridge Hill, in Norwell was their destination. Arriving there at 8 o'clock the hay rack left its previous course to enjoy the dancing and music. At precisely 10 o'clock the party started for home and on the way a few blood curdling ghost stories helped to make things in general interesting.

Quincy was reached at 11:30 o'clock and all was calm and serene before Sunday morning.

Those who took part in the ride fully appreciated the generosity of Mr. Faxon and a 11:50 o'clock cheer was suggested outside of his door, but for fear of disturbing their friend, the young people departed on their several ways in peace.

Around the City.—II.

Taking Granite street one finds old Quincy. The restlessness of the big square houses, like the one of Mr. Clapp lives in, is welcome contrast to the little modern villa-like homes around other parts of this city.

The quiet home of E. W. H. Bass still keeps its picturesque features. Particularly in the rear where the old-fashioned porch, back of it, is primitive comfort from which a sweep of villas, hills, and the homes of various industry can be seen.

Within the home, old time walls have partially given way to spaces made generous by changes, and it is within the entrance hall that a century old piece of furniture is seen.

Furniture it almost is, yet when its keys shrink from moisture it has taken up, we were told that musical tones will respond to touch of its keys. This relic, almost one century old, was a piano made by Mr. Mackay, predecessor to the Chickering. There are six octaves of keys. The inside is a clean and free of bluish crust or dust as it ever was. The case is rich mahogany inlaid everywhere with brass. There are six legs which are ornate. One large drawer and two smaller ones were made to hold music. These are daily receptacles for anything.

The proportions are harmonious and this piano, which is almost dead to musical touch just now, but which Mrs. Bass assures us will respond when dry weather comes, is a most beautiful as well as useful piece of furniture.

Prof. Stearns of Harvard College gave it to Mr. Bass' mother, who was his cousin. With a little polish or rubbing and a shade of dressing to the various brass ornaments with the hair lines of brass that outline it, and most especially with the perfect workmanship that has dated time, this is a valuable possession.

A connoisseur in old furniture in our city has tried in vain to induce the owner to sell. He is pleased to show this old relic in his articles and it is the old thing in our city that older residents often turn for inspiration.

CITY BRIEFS.

City Hall should be remodelled.

Mrs. George A. Cameron is spending a two weeks' vacation at Arnold's Mills, R. I. There will be five Saturdays and Sundays this month, and also five work days.

Mr. M. C. King of the DAILY LEDGER office is taking a week's vacation.

Miss Katie MacDonald of Melrose is visiting Mrs. Daniel Flowers of Newcomb place.

An addition is being made to the house occupied by George F. Spooner on Canal street.

On Sunday evening eight persons were admitted to the Swedish Lutheran church on Granite street.

Quincy is still in the Fifth Norfolk Representative district. It is Weymouth which has moved out.

W. S. Lofgren is building a pretty house on Hancock street, opposite Merry Mount park, for Richard Larkin.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Gardner and daughter, of Hancock street, have gone on a trip to Bradford, N. H.

The Young People's society will hold another entertainment at the Swedish Lutheran church this evening.

Arthur Keith has returned to Washington and the Sphinx has been taken out of commission for the balance of the season.

Mr. F. P. Hill, foreman of the LEDGER office, and wife, returned Monday from a two weeks' vacation in New Hampshire.

Capt. A. W. Stetson and Chevaliers C. M. Jenness and Archibald F. McLeod left Tuesday with the Patriarcha Militant, L. O. F., for Buffalo.

Paul Kevera W. R. C. No. 105, will hold a lawn party on Wednesday evening, Aug. 12, at the residence of Mrs. George Crane, Washington street.

Herbert J. Butler of the Tremont theatre orchestra, of Boston, who has been spending a fortnight with Mr. and Mrs. George Monk, returned home Tuesday.

Mr. Thomas Evans, the good natured driver of the N. Y. & B. Despatch Express Company, has gone to Rangley Lakes for a week.

William V. Hayward is adding an L. to the Hollister house, which has recently moved from Chestnut street to Cottage street.

Messrs. George O. Langley and J. Percy Sears took the prizes at the Granite City club on Wednesday evening, in the whist contest.

The Cleopatra has won two legs in the cup of the Duxbury yacht club. There were four races in the series and the third will be held today.

Mrs. H. O. Studley, Miss Eliza Crane and Miss Eliza Stetson enjoyed an electric car ride to Arlington and return on Friday afternoon; time about five hours.

Nathaniel Nightingale, one of our smart old gentlemen, has recovered his hearing by an old Indian remedy applied by himself. He is about the oldest man in active business in the city.

The executive committee for the Hospital festival visited sites on Tuesday evening and met again last night. On Saturday evening there will be a meeting of the general committee.

Mr. Walter H. Hersey, with several of the class of '96 of Bridgewater Normal, will be at Quincy, as a member, went to Provincetown for a day's outing on Tuesday.

A substitute for the schoolhouse heating order was accepted by the City Council Monday evening, but not adopted. President Bryant divided the question.

Ex-Mayor Hodges of this city has been appointed on the campaign committee of the free silver Democrats who met in Boston on Saturday.

Mrs. Kennedy, supervisor of elementary science in the Quincy schools, will give five talks on plant study in primary schools and five for grammar schools, at a summer school which opens in Peabody Aug. 24.

Prof. Daniel B. Hagar principal of the Salem Normal school since 1885, died Tuesday at Massapequa Lake hotel at Sharon, aged 70 years. Many of his graduates live in Quincy.

The freight house of the Old Colony railroad, near the Kneeland street depot, is being demolished and two more tracks are being laid on the outside of the passenger station, making five new tracks this summer, just double the old number.

The City board gave another of its open air concerts in front of Nash Hotel Saturday evening and as usual drew a very large crowd. The several numbers of the programme were well rendered and were loudly applauded.

Axel C. Max, who is reported to have been in Boston Wednesday night with a crowd of drunken Sweden stone-cutters from Quincy, was arrested for carrying a knife on one Robert McDade, Max and his companion, Nicholas Henderson, are unknown here.

One of the men at work putting up the derick guy at the new Savings bank building received quite a severe shock from the street railway trolley wire Thursday morning when he came down a very long ladder upon which he was at work in double quick time.

The winners of the July tournament at Costello's were as follows: Dancers, George O. Pevery first, John W. Sanborn second; candle pin, C. J. Murphy first, Quincy Mr. Charles F. Lippert, second; to the alley, C. J. Murphy first, Quincy Mr. Charles F. Lippert, second; Mr. John Riley, Quincy; Mrs. Anna Foss, Water Village; Mrs. Clara L. Bell, Quincy.

Every little while our attention is called to the flyer nuisance. The other day as we entered our yard three or four large posters were blowing about on our trim lawn which we gathered up and consigned to the flames without reading. The throwing of flyers, pamphlets, etc., a great nuisance and there should be a city ordinance to prohibit it. The reporter did not, however, have a chance to sample them, although the neighbors said they were fine and just beauties.

Among the amounts paid out by County Treasurer Charles H. Smith for damages by dogs during the first six months of the year, were the following sums to Quincy: Edward F. Cullen, $12; Margaret Cullen, $5; James Fogarty, $2; C. H. Huff, $10; Ann Lynch, $7; Edward A. Lincoln, $12; Thomas F. Mahoney, $6; and Arthur M. Welch, $9.50.

Wednesday afternoon, while a heavy block of granite was being hoisted at the new Savings bank buildings, one of the guy posts broke off and the derick fell with a crash. Fortunately no one was near the derick at the time, although one of the sidewalk committees who was superintending the job got a blow on the leg from a flying rope that made it tingle, and caused him to walk off rubbing it.

In falling the top of the derick struck the side of the building occupied by Johnson Bros. and tore off some of the clapboards, and those inside were considerably frightened.

Granite Cutters' Strike.

The stone cutters and blacksmiths employed by the Brintnree Red Granite Co., some twenty-five in all, were ordered out Wednesday by the Quincy Branch. The trouble arose from the company not paying the men who belong to the Quincy Union the union bill of prices. The men call for such work as they were doing to be paid for by the superficial foot, but at the rate they were paid it is alleged that the average man was unable to earn much more than $1 per day, and the best work men not over $2 per day. The company state that according to their contract they are unable to pay any more for cutting.

As Brintnree Red Granite Co. is not a member of the Quincy Manufacturers' Association the cutters are reported to have been a boycott.

As Frank A. Locke, the piano tuner, will take his vacation day on Tuesday at a time only, all orders will receive prompt attention. a5w

WOLLASTON.

Mrs. F. J. Perry and the Misses Maud and Annie Perry are spending a few weeks in Cape Cod.

ATLANTIC.

Mr. Frank Curran is the guest of Dr. George W. Adams, at Crest Cottage, Nahant.

The Wilder Bros., Harry and Richard, took a trip to Hillsboro, N. H., on their tandem, and report a delightful ride.

Miss Emma Gay Curran is spending a few weeks at the Kinnell House, Hillsboro, N. H.

Mrs. James E. Curran, Mrs. Elijah Hall, Mrs. R. H. Wilde, were the guests of Mrs. Everett Pope at Ponkapog last of Mrs. Oving.

The Atlantic, on Saturday, defeated the Boston Red Sox by a score of 21-17.

Mrs. W. L. Scholtes of Billings street is preparing for a pleasure trip to Maine.

Atlantic has become one of the prettiest parts of Quincy, and is growing fast. Charles Carter offers today some very desirable lots there.

The electric cars do not leave Neponset on the quarter hour, but at 7, 22, 37, and 52 minutes past the hour. The new timetable appears today.

The Quincy and Boston street railway have recently placed a large sign at the Neponset end of their tracks, announcing the many points of interest to be reached by their cars.

Rev. Edward Norton, pastor of the Memorial Congregational church, Atlantic, is enjoying his vacation this month. Church services are to be continued as usual during the absence of the pastor.

Thomas & Deacy who run a lively stable on Taylor street, Neponset, have opened a branch stable on Madison street, Atlantic, so that Atlantic people may now be well served in this line without going out of town.

The new street which is being cut through the Carter corner on quantum street is nearing completion. This street, when completed will be a worthy addition to Atlantic's slightly locations for pretty houses. An excellent view of the bay can be had from this street.

The church bell presented to the Memorial Congregational church, Atlantic, by Mr. Henry H. Faxon, was cast this week at the Blake Bell Foundry, Boston. It will be in the key of G, and its sweet tones will very shortly summon the church going people to worship.

Dr. W. G. Kendall and his large family of pure bred dogs are seen almost every night taking a trip through Atlantic, the doctor on his bicycle and the dogs running behind. The Kendall family are fond of dogs, and the necessary alterations for the new heating and ventilating system in the horticultural exhibitions in Boston.

The Atlantic band will give another open-air concert at Atlantic next Tuesday evening. This concert will be held on the field corner of Newbury avenue and Boston street, the band stand having been moved there, it being a more central location and of easier access to out of town people. The Swedish language is taught in the grounds. The Quincy and Boston street R. R. will run sufficient cars to accommodate Quincy people.

Patrick Barry is having a piazza built on the front of his house on Atlantic avenue.

The Rev. Roger M. Sargent of St. Louis, preached at the Memorial church, Atlantic, last Sunday.

Mrs. Eliza Larkin of Newbury avenue, has returned from a two weeks' vacation at Narragansett Pier.

The foundation for the new bell tower at the Memorial Congregational church, Atlantic, has been completed, and the carpenters will commence the erection of the belfry as soon as the weather permits. Mr. John McNitt, of Boston, is to be the builder.

QUINCY POINT.

The latest riders on the bicycle are Mr. and Mrs. John Shaw of Fort Holes.

The alarm from Box 74 at 5:30 Saturday afternoon was pulled in for a slight fire in a mattress in the chamber of the house at 175 Washington street, owned by Daniel S. Baxter, and occupied by Archer Allen.

The fire, which was probably caused by children playing with matches, was quickly extinguished by use of the chemicals.

A Notable Consolidation.

Last January the principals of the Berkeley School, were enabled to purchase Chauncy Hall school, in consequence of the death of its senior principal, in deference to the age and fame of the latter school, the combined schools, Chauncy Hall and the Berkeley, will hereafter be known by the older name, that of Chauncy Hall. This combination, in which the best elements of both schools will be retained, will give to Boston and vicinity a private institution peculiarly adapted for special courses of study and for the fitting of pupils not only for Harvard and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, but for all collegiate and professional schools. Parents desirous of making inquiries in regard to this institution, should write to the principals, Messrs. Taylor, DeMott & Co., 441 Broadway, New York City, for catalogue containing all necessary information.

HOUGHES NECK.

Several good catches of snails have been reported by local fishermen.

Guests at the Milton cottage are Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Greaney of Dorchester, and Miss Carrie Pierce of Boston.

The St. John's cadets of Worcester have arrived, and this year instead of bringing their tents they are quartered in one of Mr. Emery's cottages near the Loretto.

Mrs. Thomas Crosby, Mr. and Mrs. Stevens, E. W. Blake of Boston, George Tate and Dennis Koller of Canton are guests at the Bland cottage.

Miss Susie Briggs of Dedham, Miss Ethel Jordan of Montrose, Miss Estella Gilbert and Mrs. Cheney of Newburyport are guests at the Lewellyn cottage.

W. E. Kelley and family of Hyde Park, who have occupied a cottage near the Main avenue nearly every season, will sojourn this month in the Fayol cottage on Bell street.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Morton are enjoying the sea breeze at their cottage, the Harbor View. This cottage has been remodelled this season and is now one of the finest at Houghes Neck.

The second annual evening of the Co. No. 5, was held Wednesday evening at Houghes Neck, and notwithstanding the threatening weather a large party was in attendance, representatives being present from the several companies throughout the city. The guests included Chief Engineer Williams, the assistant engineer, and city firemen.

Previous to the ball the orchestra gave a promenade concert. At 9 o'clock came the grand march and circle which was led by Captain W. H. Taylor, who was followed by the Chief Engineer and the invited guests.

During a brief intermission at midnight and while the storm was at its height refreshments were served in the upper hall by the ladies. Dancing was then continued until 1 o'clock in the morning.

A dispatch from Vineyard Haven says the two old steamers, Metropolitan, in tow of steam tug Mercury, from New London, and Island Home, in tow of steamer Kate Winslow, from New Bedford, arrived here Wednesday evening. They are to be taken to Boston and broken up at Houghes Neck, Quincy.

The Brockton Enterprise says, "On their return from their fishing trip at Houghes Neck, Orestes Gray and Gill presented one of their fellow officers, who has lots to say about down east clams, with a bucket of bivalves averaging eight inches in length. The clams were the compliments of J. L. Harvey."

The Cape Cod resort is now at its height. The Cape Cod resorts are among the most popular in the land, hence the Old Colony system of the N. Y. N. H. and H. R. R. fall in for their share of the summer traffic.

Among the most attractive spots along the route, or in connection with this line, are the Falmouths, Marion, the Warehams, Scituate, Chatham, Green Harbor, Oak Bluffs, Wood's Hole, Fairhaven, Mount Beach, Matapoisett, New Bedford, and other places of interest.

A party of ladies went to Blue Hills last week on a huckleberry party. They report having found lots of berries.

Jesse Baxter, who has been employed in the quarry, has taken sick this week and was sent home.

The Quincy Patriot.

An Immense Business.

Notwithstanding the very hot weather on Sunday, our people could not keep still. Many who owned horses or bicycles rode to the parks or beaches; and those who did not, went on the street cars.

The Quincy and Boston Company had all they could conveniently attend to most of the time; and a few hours towards night it was almost impossible to accommodate all who wished to ride.

President Graham and his able Superintendent Weeks are excellent managers, and are bound to please the travelling public if possible; but when there is such a rush as on last Sunday, it is almost an impossibility.

On this day the Quincy and Boston on its various routes carried over twenty thousand people; more than the total population of this city. It does not seem possible, but this is the fact and if any of our citizens think that there is no need of extra turnouts, or double tracks, they are mistaken.

Quincy to Nantasket.

A new arrangement went into effect on the Quincy & Boston street railway yesterday morning, and hereafter it will be possible to get into an electric car at the depot and go direct to Nantasket beach without change of cars and in order to do this the cars of the Hingham street railway will run through to Quincy leaving this city every half hour from 6:20 A. M. to 9:50 P. M., for Nantasket beach running direct by one of the most picturesque routes to this famous summer resort. At Hingham close connection is made with cars for Dover Landing.

Leaving Quincy the cars pass down the new alignment to North Weymouth, where they branch off and follow the new street road from North Weymouth through Hingham to the beach the route skirting along the shore for nearly its whole length. The trip is a most unusually pleasant ride. The running time by this route when a change of cars was necessary, was one hour and twenty minutes but now that cars run through without change, the trip will be made in a little over an hour, saving nearly thirty minutes over the route via East Weymouth and the New York and New Haven electric.

Although the weather was rather unfavorable for the Friday morning the first car had fifteen passengers when it left the Quincy depot.

The Tenth District.

The Massachusetts 10th Congressional district contains, as representative citizens, a large number of intelligent business men. Under the new apportionment it is possible, says the Boston Herald, for a Republican candidate to be elected to Congress, even though he has in opposition to him only a single Democratic candidate. But in order to secure such a triumph it will be necessary for the Republicans to put up a first-class man who could appeal for support to those voters of the district who under ordinary conditions would favor a Democratic nominee.

The district is not wanting, says the Herald, in able, conscientious and responsible citizens, who would honor both their constituents and the state by service at Washington. Ex-Mayor Charles H. Porter of Quincy is a man who deserves the confidence of his friends and the respect of all who know him. He has filled a prominent place in the public life of the state, and both as a soldier and a citizen has always done his duty.

The more business men Massachusetts can send to Congress the better it will be for her interests. The Herald mentions other men of ability and integrity whom the Republican party could select for this honor.

The Hospital Fete.

A meeting of the general committee who have the coming annual fete of the City Hospital in charge was held in the council chamber at City Hall, Saturday evening.

Herbert M. Federlen presided and after the reading of the records of the previous meeting the executive committee made its report which was to the effect that the dates of holding the fete be changed to Sept. 6, 17 and 18, and that it be held at Merry Mount park.

This report was accepted and adopted.

Hon. William B. Rice, for the committee, stated that the various societies and organizations should decide as early as possible what they would do toward the attractions at the fair and report that the committee might lay out its program.

Continuing Mr. Rice said the trustees were disappointed in the amount appropriated by the city and that the Hospital was considerably in debt and this year it was desired to raise $10,000 more than he believed it possibly to raise that amount.

The holding of this fete was a good thing for the city if no money was made, as it brought the people together. He urged all of the citizens to organize in their sections and work to have the affair a grand success.

There was then some informal talk on the place selected. Mr. Henry H. Faxon was for holding it at Lovell's grove, but the vote was not recorded.

Upon motion of Mr. T. King the chairmen of the several committees were added to the executive committee.

The Red Lion.

Mr. Jesse P. Woodbury with his family from Framingham, N. H., has just left after an extended visit with his brother-in-law Mr. George W. Morton, at the Red Lion, at Hough Neck.

During his stay the two aged lady aunts of the family, Mrs. Stafford and Mrs. Thompson, from Milton, joined them and remained over night. These ladies are way beyond the eightieth milestone and enjoyed the improved Red Lion which they had never experienced to visit.

Mr. Morton has remodeled his summer home, building the upper story out over the entire piazza, and opening, by an arch, the lower floor with new fire place and mantel, new kitchen and offices with all the appointments for household service have quite transformed the place.

The traditional Red Lion is built in over the two fire places below, and a large picture of a lion ornaments the walls of the living room. Mr. Morton secured some deep panels which are added to the dining room walls.

The walls of both rooms are tinted rose pink, and with the addition of rugs, chairs, etc., the place is very inviting.

He has built the upper story with windows jutting out, so that a fine view of the bay can be gained, both north and south.

The outside is painted in soft colors lending still more to the picturesqueness of the whole. Although the place is said to be a beautiful and unique home and one whose hospitality is traditional.

Outside, the pretty barn, flower, garden, trees and shrubs make a place where one can be secluded from the public. Against the outer substantial sea walls the tide comes beating, and at night sleep comes there with the rhythmic music of the waves.

Lawn Party.

Paul Revere Woman's Relief Corps, No. 103, held a very largely attended and enjoyable lawn party Wednesday evening at the residence of Mrs. George Crane on Washington street. The grounds were brilliantly illuminated with Chinese lanterns and there was refreshments, games and dancing.

CITY BRIEFS.

Mr. Leonard Hewson spent Sunday at Hanover, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Gordon are at Falmouth for a fortnight.

You notice the large number of shooting stars Monday night?

Miss Inez Dunbar is spending her two weeks' vacation at New Haven.

Mr. George Richards is resting from work at Marblehead for a week.

The Sewer Commissioners have opened an office in the Adams building.

Mr. J. C. Dorgan, manager of Derby's store, is back from his vacation.

Miss Maggie Garrity of Cottage avenue is suffering with a sprained ankle.

Mrs. Henry Baker of Rockland spent Saturday with Mrs. George Monk.

Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Loud spent Sunday in Waltham, with their son William.

Miss Emma D. Coughlin and Miss Addie Perry spent Thursday at Wintthrop.

G. V. Bowditch will accompany the Quincy yacht club on its annual cruise.

Miss Lizzie Gibson has gone to visit friends at Fair Haven, Vt., for two weeks.

Austin & Winslow lost a horse on Monday. Cause of death, overwork by the heat.

Wm. P. Martin left Wednesday night for a few weeks' visit and rest at his farm in Maine.

Miss Susie Somers of Newcomb place has returned from a visit to friends at Roxbury.

Dr. Joseph W. Sheahan has sailed for Paris. The doctor was accompanied by his son George.

Mr. C. G. Batson and family have gone to Hough Neck for the months of August and September.

A load of iron for the new Savings Bank building arrived on Friday, and work will now begin with a rush.

The Electric Light & Power Company are now running a day circuit to furnish current for electric fairs.

Wales, the ice cream man, has opened a branch establishment at Nantasket beach, near the Rockland cafe.

Work was suspended in nearly all the stone yards and quarries Monday morning on account of the oppressive heat.

Miss Ruth and Eleanor Randall of Adams street are at the Pilgrim House, Plymouth, Mass., for a short visit.

Miss Lizzie Garrity who has been at New Brunswick for four weeks sailed for home on Tuesday arriving on Friday.

Miss Mary Kent and Mrs. James Tower of Newton, sisters of Mrs. John A. Pratt, spent last week with friends in this city.

The schedule filed by Charles Stanley, an insolvent debtor, at Dedham this week shows liabilities of $5,632.10, and no assets.

Commencing Wednesday the street cars from Hingham come through to Thomas corner, North Weymouth without change.

Mrs. A. F. Welch and two children of Danvers, Mass., are spending a few days with Mr. L. D. Goodridge, on Hancock street.

We were the recipients Tuesday morning at the PATRIOT office of a handsome bunch of sweet peas from Mr. Fred H. Holmes.

Mrs. G. O. Langley, Miss May Langley and Mrs. Elizabeth A. Beckford left Thursday for a three weeks' rest at Haverhill and Durham, N. H.

The many friends of Mrs. Jeremiah Hardwick will be sorry to learn that she is in poor health at her home on Washington street, corner of Foster.

Miss Mary A. Gourley, who was injured in a bicycle accident on Monday, is quite sick at her home on Sea street; her injuries are more severe than at first thought.

Boston papers report that Patrick Connor of Quincy fell from Central wharf into a boat at 4:30 Monday afternoon and dislocated his shoulder. He was removed to the hospital.

The lawn party in aid of St. John's church will be held on next Tuesday evening instead of Wednesday. Wednesday is circus day, and it is not the desire of the parish to collide.

The two families are not upon good terms as neighbors should be, but why the two men should desire to avenge any real or imaginary wrong by destroying plants is not known, for they offered no explanation of their acts in court, when the affair was settled.

Quincy Yacht Club Cruise.

An unusual amount of interest is being aroused among the members of the Quincy yacht club over the first annual cruise of the club which takes place today, and the present indications a large fleet will participate.

The Commodore and Fleet Captain have secured four very handsome golf yacht club water charms which they will give as prizes. For the quickest run from Quincy to Marblehead and two for the quickest run from Marblehead to Newburyport.

Those who have notified the Commodore and Fleet Captain that they will participate in the Yacht-Holiday, which will be the flag ship, Gladstone, Vice Commodore Sanborn; Bearline, John Cavanagh; Mudjickewits, Davis & Abbott; Arbutus, Merritt & Hall; Dorothy, F. C. Crane; Myth, J. W. Nightingale; Evelyn, Dr. H. A. Jones; Moondyne, Shaw Bros.; Nokomis, A. W. Ryder; Gipsy, H. R. Drinkwater; Don, C. E. Pierce, and Adolph, H. Moeb.

Dishonest Room-Mate.

Among the boarders at John Shea's on Hancock street are Fred Boss and a blacksmith, employed by S. Scammell, whose name could not be learned. These two men roomed together and Wednesday while the blacksmith was at work Boss piled open his room-mate's trunk and stole $18. Thursday night, in the presence of Inspector McKay, Boss was accused of the theft and upon the promise that he would not be prosecuted he acknowledged the theft and returned the money.

Wanted to Look Pretty.

Jessie McParland and Dollina McKee up to last Saturday were employed as domestics at the residence of Alexander W. Thompson on Elm street. Last Saturday night Jessie ceased to be employed by Mr. Thompson, and when she left the house it is alleged that she helped herself to Dollina's pretty shirt waist without first obtaining the required permission. Dollina did not like this method of doing business, and as she valued the waist at $5, she reported the matter to the police who placed Jessie under arrest Thursday night and Friday morning had her before the court.

Stole Feed Wire.

Antonio Restello was arrested Thursday night by Inspector McKay for the larceny of a coil of feed wire, owned by the Quincy & Boston street railway. The wire was left in the yard near Hodge's bakery. Early last Saturday morning the wire disappeared. The matter was reported to the police and Inspector McKay succeeded in tracing the wire to Restello whom he arrested as noted above.

Stolen by Restello, who sold it at $40 was stolen by Restello, who sold it at a junk dealer for $6. The wire was recovered.

Little Ralph Winslow is confined to the house with slow fever.

Mrs. Charles H. Winslow is at Bath Beach, New York, for two weeks.

Munroe Hayden, our aged citizen, has gone down to the Cape to rusticate.

W. R. Lagren is building a new house on Cranck place for Nels Lundegaard.

Mrs. C. H. Hardwick and Miss Abbie Vinton are at Bar Harbor for two weeks.

Mrs. H. W. Gray is confined to the house, a sufferer with inflammatory rheumatism.

It was expected that the assessors would announce the tax rate Friday, but they were unable to do so but promise it next week.

Miss Louise M. Cook of this city has returned from a four weeks' trip to the Cape; several weeks being spent at Provincetown, and a short time at Wellfleet. She reports it a delightful trip.

The many friends of Miss Mary A. Gourley of Canal street will be glad to hear that she is making substantial strides toward recovery from the effects of the accident she was involved in the early part of the week.

The beautiful showers this week helped to cool the parched earth, and make it more delightful for both man and beast. After the intense heat of the past week a shower is very refreshing, if only for a short duration.

Rev. Charles S. Nickerson is about to move his family from Abington, where he has been residing for two or three years, to Wollaston. Mr. Nickerson makes himself very popular wherever he goes and Wollaston is fortunate in securing him.

The milk wagon of James Morehead was run into by an electric car on Hancock street, Thursday night. The wagon, driven by a boy came down Bridge street and not seeing or hearing a car, he drove onto the track directly in front of the car which struck the rear end demolishing both wheels and otherwise damaging the wagon. No one injured.

The Massachusetts Street Railway Superintendents held their annual outfit Tuesday at Fall River and New Bedford. The party left Boston on a special train and upon their arrival special cars were taken. All the famous resorts of these cities were visited and a grand good time enjoyed. Among those from Quincy to participate were President Graham and Superintendent Weeks of the Quincy & Boston, B. F. Dyer, Eugene McCormick has returned from a visit to his brother at Lincoln, Ill.

WOLLASTON.

W. M. Wright and family of Wollaston are enjoying a two weeks' outing at Dublin, N. H.

There will be a game of base ball at the Merrymount Park, this afternoon, between the Methodist and T. R. & S. Company. P. Duffy will be in the box for the T. R. & S. Co. team.

Dr. E. R. Johnson, a graduate of Boston University School of Medicine, who has been in practice in Wollaston, has moved to Wollaston Heights. Dr. Johnson was at one time physical director of the gymnasium at the Y. M. C. A. at Quincy and has many friends who will be glad to know that he has located in this vicinity.

The Carrie E. Rogers Bohadk Lodge of Wollaston has postponed its meetings until the first Monday in September.

M. R. Sparrow of Wollaston made and sold over seventy gallons of his "matchless" ice cream on Sunday. He furnishes an excellent article and everybody enjoys it.

Work was suspended Wednesday noon at the Tabular Rivet & Stud Co. on account of the heat.

Owing to the heat, Wednesday the Ladies' handicap golf match at the Wollaston links did not take place.

No doubt lonely pedestrians plodding along Newport avenue, Wollaston, Wednesday evening, were attracted by the novel peals of laughter which issued from the lawn of Mrs. Ferguson, where a party of young people were having a private reception.

Owing to the severe heat, the Wollaston laundry and many other places were obliged to stop work one or two days of the week. But now, since the change in the atmosphere the Laundry Company is in hopes to complete all orders by tonight.

West Quincy.

Mr. and Mrs. George Vinton and Aunt Lydia Trask enjoyed a trip to Provincetown on Tuesday.

The excessive heat has delayed work somewhat on the Griddle Bryant school building.

Sydney Somes, a driver for the O. T. Rogers Granite Company, was overcome by the heat at the quarry on Tuesday. He was taken to his home in East Milton, where he is in a precarious condition.

Miss Mary P. Kinchen of Crescent street is at Plymouth this week.

Miss Mary Geer of West street has gone to Portland, Me., on a visit.

Eugene McCormick has returned from a visit to his brother at Lincoln, Ill.

A Very Wild Flower.

BY MILDRED HOWELLS.

Within a garden once there grew
A flower that seemed the very pattern
Of all propriety; none knew
She had an heart with wandering slaters.

The gardener, old with care and pain,
Had trained her up as she should grow,
Nor dreamed of her labor vain
That such rebellion should be shown.

A name sufficiently high-sounding
He diligently sought for her,
Until he thought that the "Rebelling
Elizabeth" he should prefer.

But when grown up the flower began
To show the tastes within her hidden;
At every chance upon the wind
In spite of being sternly chidden.

They told her beds for flowers were best;
But daily greater grew her failings;
Up to the fence she boldly pressed,
And stuck her head between the palings.

Then to the street she struggled through,
Tearing her ragged hair and skin;
And all along the road she grew,
Regardless of dust and mire.

You'll find her now by country ways,
A lattered tramp, though comely yet,
With pink cheeks and saucy gaze,
And known to all as "Bouncie Bet."

—St. Nicholas.

Notes and Comments.

—Mayor Quincy has received an important statement from Collector Taylor of Boston showing that on July 1, 1896, there were $9,508 unpaid poll taxes, which is equal to last year's registration.

—The girl who does not like ice cream ought to find the time to marry smooth and easy these days.—Taunton Herald.

We think the smooth cream girl would have a better chance these hot days.

—A Brooklyn man is advertising cats for sale. We have plenty our way and would sell some cheap.

—Col. Walker of the Ancient and Honorable as a tactician was happily inspired when he alluded to the Marston Queen of England as one "whose queenliness as a woman and whose womanliness as a queen had for three years clothed the crown with dignity and honor and won the admiration of the whole world."

—Secretary Carlisle in one of his standard country exists in the world today in which the laboring man receives fair pay for his day's work. Wage earners of every class are especially interested in this statement.

—Fortune knocks once at every man's door, and the woman usually open it.

—Who wouldn't be a summer girl if it's true that they go to the seashore carrying an opera glass bag full of bathing suits, and return bringing a Gladstone bag filled with engagement rings?—Home Journal.

—Secretary George G. Brown of the Brooklyn Board of Education has declined an increase of salary from $5,000 to $6,000 a year because he says the city cannot afford it while its bonds go begging. Very commendable, but still $6,000 a year is a pretty fair salary.

Walter Baker & Co.'s big chocolate factory at Lower Mills has closed for the month of August, as usual. About one hundred of the old employees are kept on the payroll, while many of the girls find employment at the sea shore and maintain posies as table waiters.—Norfolk County Gazette.

—An aged man, sauntering across Superior street, Saturday morning says (Cleveland Plain Dealer), was somewhat rudely jostled by a youthful wheelman. The shock of the collision tumbled the rider off, and the old gentleman promptly grabbed him by the ear. "Durn you," he said with considerable asperity. "I've got mind to take you across my knee and spank you good." But he didn't do it. He just held the young fellow a minute, and then let him go. "Why didn't you spank him, uncle?" said a bystander. "Well," replied the old man, with a humorous twinkle, "I certainly would if I hadn't been a little afraid that mebbe it was a girl."

Three important events are scheduled to occur in the twin cities of Minnesota.—St. Paul and Minneapolis—during the first week of September. The National Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic will occur in St. Paul; an Encampment of the Knights of Pythias in Minneapolis; and at Hamline, midway between these cities, will be held the great Minnesota State Fair. Very low passenger rates are announced by all railway companies for these events, making a splendid opportunity for anyone to visit the Encampments, these young but great cities, the State Fair, and if desired the whole Northwest.

—The colored people of Baltimore have started a movement for the erection of a monument to Mrs. Stowe's memory. It will without doubt be a reality in the future; but the finest monument to Mrs. Stowe's memory will continue to be the gratitude felt in the heart of every person with a drop of negro blood for the author of the book which had so much to do with making the time ripe for their freedom.—Home Journal.

—The Brooklyn, Bridgewater & Taunton Street Railway company has been granted a charter for an electric road from Brooklyn to Taunton, through West Bridgewater and Raynham. The company is capitalized at $200,000.

—We agree heartily with the Boston Board of health, that expectorating in a street car is a "public nuisance, a source of filth and cause of sickness, and should be prohibited." By the action of the board the disgusting habit is now made an offense against the law. This applies only to Boston, but it is to be hoped that a similar policy will be inaugurated in Quincy.

—By the will of the late Everett Clark of Waukegan, the Universalist church there gets $1600.

—A prehistoric city, which apparently had a population of over 200,000 was discovered recently in Mexico by J. R. Kelley, an American archeologist. This ancient city is situated in a narrow valley between two high ranges of mountains. Nearly all the buildings are of broken stone, and are in a state of almost perfect preservation. The houses contain ornaments and utensils of peculiar design.

—Who wouldn't be a summer girl if it's true that they go to the seashore carrying an opera glass bag full of bathing suits, and return bringing a Gladstone bag filled with engagement rings?—Home Journal.

—Secretary George G. Brown of the Brooklyn Board of Education has declined an increase of salary from $5,000 to $6,000 a year because he says the city cannot afford it while its bonds go begging. Very commendable, but still $6,000 a year is a pretty fair salary.

Walter Baker & Co.'s big chocolate factory at Lower Mills has closed for the month of August, as usual. About one hundred of the old employees are kept on the payroll, while many of the girls find employment at the sea shore and maintain posies as table waiters.—Norfolk County Gazette.

—An aged man, sauntering across Superior street, Saturday morning says (Cleveland Plain Dealer), was somewhat rudely jostled by a youthful wheelman. The shock of the collision tumbled the rider off, and the old gentleman promptly grabbed him by the ear. "Durn you," he said with considerable asperity. "I've got mind to take you across my knee and spank you good." But he didn't do it. He just held the young fellow a minute, and then let him go. "Why didn't you spank him, uncle?" said a bystander. "Well," replied the old man, with a humorous twinkle, "I certainly would if I hadn't been a little afraid that mebbe it was a girl."

Three important events are scheduled to occur in the twin cities of Minnesota.—St. Paul and Minneapolis—during the first week of September. The National Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic will occur in St. Paul; an Encampment of the Knights of Pythias in Minneapolis; and at Hamline, midway between these cities, will be held the great Minnesota State Fair. Very low passenger rates are announced by all railway companies for these events, making a splendid opportunity for anyone to visit the Encampments, these young but great cities, the State Fair, and if desired the whole Northwest.

—The colored people of Baltimore have started a movement for the erection of a monument to Mrs. Stowe's memory. It will without doubt be a reality in the future; but the finest monument to Mrs. Stowe's memory will continue to be the gratitude felt in the heart of every person with a drop of negro blood for the author of the book which had so much to do with making the time ripe for their freedom.—Home Journal.

—The Brooklyn, Bridgewater & Taunton Street Railway company has been granted a charter for an electric road from Brooklyn to Taunton, through West Bridgewater and Raynham. The company is capitalized at $200,000.

—We agree heartily with the Boston Board of health, that expectorating in a street car is a "public nuisance, a source of filth and cause of sickness, and should be prohibited." By the action of the board the disgusting habit is now made an offense against the law. This applies only to Boston, but it is to be hoped that a similar policy will be inaugurated in Quincy.

—By the will of the late Everett Clark of Waukegan, the Universalist church there gets $1600.

—A prehistoric city, which apparently had a population of over 200,000 was discovered recently in Mexico by J. R. Kelley, an American archeologist. This ancient city is situated in a narrow valley between two high ranges of mountains. Nearly all the buildings are of broken stone, and are in a state of almost perfect preservation. The houses contain ornaments and utensils of peculiar design.

A Very Wild Flower.

BY MILDRED HOWELLS.

Within a garden once there grew
A flower that seemed the very pattern
Of all propriety; none knew
She had an heart with wandering slaters.

The gardener, old with care and pain,
Had trained her up as she should grow,
Nor dreamed of her labor vain
That such rebellion should be shown.

A name sufficiently high-sounding
He diligently sought for her,
Until he thought that the "Rebelling
Elizabeth" he should prefer.

But when grown up the flower began
To show the tastes within her hidden;
At every chance upon the wind
In spite of being sternly chidden.

They told her beds for flowers were best;
But daily greater grew her failings;
Up to the fence she boldly pressed,
And stuck her head between the palings.

Then to the street she struggled through,
Tearing her ragged hair and skin;
And all along the road she grew,
Regardless of dust and mire.

You'll find her now by country ways,
A lattered tramp, though comely yet,
With pink cheeks and saucy gaze,
And known to all as "Bouncie Bet."

—St. Nicholas.

Notes and Comments.

—Mayor Quincy has received an important statement from Collector Taylor of Boston showing that on July 1, 1896, there were $9,508 unpaid poll taxes, which is equal to last year's registration.

—The girl who does not like ice cream ought to find the time to marry smooth and easy these days.—Taunton Herald.

We think the smooth cream girl would have a better chance these hot days.

—A Brooklyn man is advertising cats for sale. We have plenty our way and would sell some cheap.

—Col. Walker of the Ancient and Honorable as a tactician was happily inspired when he alluded to the Marston Queen of England as one "whose queenliness as a woman and whose womanliness as a queen had for three years clothed the crown with dignity and honor and won the admiration of the whole world."

—Secretary Carlisle in one of his standard country exists in the world today in which the laboring man receives fair pay for his day's work. Wage earners of every class are especially interested in this statement.

—Fortune knocks once at every man's door, and the woman usually open it.

The Trout Brook.
FRANK H. SWETT.

Half hidden by tall meadow-grass that sways with every breeze,
And running through deep, silent pools, and under spreading droves,
Now stealing through the quiet ways of solitary wood,

And now beneath a timbered arch where once an old mill stood,
Across the fields and to the brow where valleys fall away,
Then over beds of shelving rock its waters dance and play.

And now and then as though in joy of such delightful fun,
It springs into a waterfall that glistens in the sun,
And eddies round and round about, in strange fantastic glee,
Then steadies down and flows away sedately to the sea.

Miscellany.
MANDARYN'S FOOL.

"Ye ain't got 'n angry for tematers, be ye?"

Someone had knocked at the screen door, and as there was no response, a man's strident, god-humored voice put the above question concerning tomatoes.

But somebody had heard.
A woman had been sitting in the kitchen with a pan of Seek-no-further apples in her lap. She was paring and quartering these, and then stabbing the quarters through and stringing them on yards of white twine, preparatory to festooning them on the clothes horse which stood in the yard.

This horse was already decorated profusely in this way. A cloud of wasps had flown down from the drying fruit as the man walked up the path. He swung off his hat and waved the insects away.

"I say, have ye got hungry agin for tematers?" he repeated.

She glanced at him, and then at the hooked on the inside.

He turned and surveyed the three windows that were visible in the bit of a house.

"They wouldn't both be gone," he left them, and he said to himself.

"I'm 'bout sure Ann's to home," she's the one I want to see.

A woman in the bedroom which opened from the kitchen was hurriedly smoothing her hair and putting into the glass.
She was speaking aloud with the air of one who constantly talks to herself.

"Just as sure as I don't comb my hair the first thing somebody comes."

She gave a last look in the glass, and then she went to the door. There was a faint smell on her lips and a flush on her face.

Her tall figure was swayed by a slight, eager tremor as she saw who was standing there, and she exclaimed:

"Goodness me! 'Tain't you, Mr. Baker, is it? Won't ye walk right in? But I don't want no tematers; they always go agin't me. Aunt Mandaryn ain't to home."

"Oh, ain't she?" was the brisk response. "Then I guess I will come in."

The speaker pushed open the now unfastened door and entered. He set his basket of tomatoes with a thump on the rug, and wiped his brow with the back of his hand.

"Fact is," he said with a grin, "I knew she was gone. I seen her goin' crost pastur'. That's why I come now. I ain't got no longin' to see Aunt Mandaryn—no more, not a grain of longin' to see her. But I thought I'd would be agreeable to me to clap my eyes on to you."

The woman simpered, made an inarticulate sound, and hurriedly resumed her seat and her apple paring.

"Ain't you set down, Mr. Baker?"
she asked.

Her fingers trembled as she took the darning needle and jabbed it through an apple quarter. The needle went into her finger and into her mouth. Her large, pale eyes turned wistfully toward her companion. The faded, already elderly man quivered.

"I'm just a-come in, as I can be if I see blood," he whispered.

Mr. Baker's heavy underlip twitched; his face softened. But he spoke roughly.
"Ye needn't mind that bitter blood," he said; "that was just 'tainted.' I don't do it for nothin'. I ain't drove any this mornin', I c'n just as well as not take hold 'n' help ye. I s'pose Mandaryn wants a handerlin' lot for ye to do while she's gone?"

"Two comb's," was the answer.
"The old fat! That's too much. But 'tween be for both of us, will it, Ann?"
The woman said, "No."

She looked for an instant intently at the man, who had drawn his chair directly opposite her. He was already paring an apple.

"I'd know what to make of it," she said, still in a whisper.

"Ye make of it?" he asked.
"Why, when folks are so good to me 's you be."

"Oh, sho, now! Everybody ain't like your Aunt Mandaryn?"

"Sh! Don't speak so loud! Mebbe she'll hear 'em back."

"No, she won't. No matter if she is!"
The loud, confident tone rang cheerily in the room.

During the silence that followed, Mr.
Baker watched the man's daff fingers.
"Everybody says ye're real capable," he remarked.

A joyous red covered Ann's face.
"I just about to all the work here,"
he said.

She looked at the man again.
There was something curiously sweet in the simple face. The patient line at each side of the close, pale mouth had a strange effect upon Mr. Baker.

He had been known to say violently in conversation at the store that he "never seen Ann Tracy 'till wantin' to thrash her Aunt Mandaryn."

"What in the world do ye dry'n' Seek-no-further for?" he now exclaimed with some fierceness. "They're the fattest kind of apples I know of."

"That's what Aunt's," was the reply.
"She says they're most as fat 's I be, 'n' that's fat 'nough."

These words were pronounced as though the speaker were merely stating a well-known fact.

"Then what she do 'um for?" persisted
Mr. Baker.

"She says they're good 'nough to swop for groceries in the spring."

Mr. Baker made a deep gasp in an apple and held his tongue.

Suddenly she raised her eyes to the sturdy face opposite her and said:
"I guess your wife had a real good time, didn't she, Mr. Baker, when she was livin'?"

Mr. Baker dropped his knife. He glanced up and met the wistful gaze upon him.

Something that he had thought long dead stirred in his conscience.
"I hope so," he said, gently. "I do declare I tried to make her have a good time."

"How long's she be'n dead?"
"Most ten years. We was livin' down to Norris Corners then."

The man picked up his knife and absently tried the edge of it on the ball of his thumb.

"I s'pose," said Ann, "that folks are sorry when their wives die?"

Mr. Baker gave a short laugh.
"Wall, that depends."

"Oh, does it? I thought folks had to love their wives 'n' be sorry when they died."

Mr. Baker laughed again. He made no other reply for several minutes. At last he said:

"I was sorry enough when my wife died."

A great pile of quartered apples was leaped up in the wooden bowl before either spoke again.

Then Ann exclaimed with a piteous intensity:

"Oh, I'm awful tired of bein' Aunt Mandaryn's fool!"

Mr. Baker stamped his feet involuntarily.

"How long they call you that?" he cried, in a great voice.

Heard James Littlefield tell Mr.
Baker hoped nobody'd ask Mandaryn's fool to the socials. And Mr. Fletcher's fool told me that what folks called me."

The QuinCY Patriot.

Taxes in Quincy.

The rate of taxation in Quincy this year is very high—$18 on $1,000—the highest ever known either as a town or city. But this the citizens would probably bear without much grumbling if the assessors did not place the valuation so high. Much property is valued for more than it is worth. Choice lots on President's Hill, with a fine ocean and landscape view, are offered for less money.

Choice corner lots, or land on the main thoroughfares, fit for mechanical business, may be worth 20 to 50 cents per foot; but there is much that is taxed too high; more than it would bring if it had to be sold. High valuation and high rates make it very burdensome on our people.

Of course the assessors are not to blame for the high rates; the council make the appropriations, and the assessors simply assess it on the property they find. If they do it honestly and fairly on the property, not in excess of its market value, they are not to blame; but it is the councilmen. As long as the School Committee demands such large appropriations, our citizens cannot expect to have good streets and sidewalks, and other things, which we are much in need of without heavy taxes. On the road we are now traveling, as if the taxes might be higher before they are any less.

Retrenchment is certainly needed. Still we should have for a city better streets and sidewalks and other necessary improvements. When can we expect them?

A New Street.

The Sewer Commissioners are not idle and they evidently mean business. They are now making a preliminary survey for the brick main sewer which will extend from Coddington street near Newcomb street to the pumping station near Merrymount park.

While the direct route of this main is not as yet determined, it will probably run from Coddington street through land of Henry H. Faxon, Mrs. A. W. Russell and the late E. B. Pratt to the private way known as Spring avenue to Greenleaf street.

Should this route be decided upon, an excellent opportunity will be offered the city at a nominal expense, to extend Newcomb street to Greenleaf street, for while the work of being constructed the street could be built.

The advantages of such a street are readily seen. Besides opening up a lot of property, and enhancing its value, there will also furnish an outlet for Faxon place, Saville avenue and Spring avenue, as well as to furnish a pretty drive from Coddington street to Greenleaf street.

From Greenleaf street to the pumping station near Merrymount Park the route of the sewer main has not as yet been mapped out; but should the same plan be followed from Greenleaf street to the Park as from Coddington street, the new street could be extended still further, to the Park, where it would intersect with the proposed new boulevard along the shore to Squantum.

The matter of this street is of course as yet visionary, but as it is possible that much of the land that would have to be taken would be given to the city, or sold at least at a nominal sum for damages, it is not perhaps too early to agitate the matter of this new street.

Personal.

Hon. E. Wood Perry, ex-Alderman of New Orleans, and who was appointed by the Governor of Louisiana to represent that State at the Paris exposition in 1879, is now on his summer visit to the North to see his numerous relatives and friends. Last week he visited his old friends at Wollaston who have known him from his boyhood, and on Friday and Saturday, Aug. 14 and 15, was the guest of Mrs. A. Harlow at Quincy Point.

Mr. Perry is a native of Boston, and for many years was a resident of East Boston, till business called him south when he removed with his family to New Orleans. He has living two sons and one daughter. His oldest son is E. Wood Perry, Jr., who was educated in Europe and is now a distinguished artist of New York City. Dr. Alfred W. Perry, the eminent physician of San Francisco, is the other son. Mrs. Hannah Maria Holmes, widow of Capt. Holmes of Plainfield, N. J., is his daughter, a lady of talents and culture.

The New Orleans Times Democrat lately published an interesting account of a visit to Mr. Perry at his residence with an excellent likeness of him.

He is in his 90th year, in excellent health, as erect as ever, and takes a lively interest in the great moral, political and economic questions of the day.

City Hospital.

The fact of the city taking control of the Hospital is one to be considered later, in the future when Quincy has really grown to be a city. It will take more time for us to bridge over the gap between a town and a rapidly growing city. We have had and have problems to deal with, and shall not drop them for some time to come, and meantime the hospital is taking good care of itself; or if it is not, it is the fault of the corporators who own it, and not the fault of its managers.

Each year, a meeting is called when any who make the body or corporation, can and should go, to attend to its affairs. These meetings are very small, sometimes hardly a quorum gets together. During the year too much fault is found by those who neglect the duty of attending these meetings. Any citizen not now a member, can become so by payment of one dollar and signing the book. The managers need the help such membership gives; they need the dollars coming in, but the cause, a hospital in our midst where the ailing, the suffering poor; those maimed by sudden accident; men who, having no homes of their own, can find a place to sleep on a clear day, one can see the need of a home, where our self-sacrificing physicians give daily, and gratuitously their care; this is what needs support; the support of willing hands, generous hearts and open purses.

It needs help from those who are self-supporting; especially of the young who are not burdened with families.

The Boulevard.

There is a prospect that Quincy may get the boulevard from Squantum to the Blue Hills reservation, or at least from Squantum to Merrymount Park, although as yet nothing definite has been given out by the Metropolitan Park Commissioners as to whether Quincy will get its boulevard this year or not. One thing is certain, Quincy has not been forgotten by the Commissioners, who have recently instructed Mr. Elliot, their chief engineer, to look over the proposed route, which would seem to indicate that there is at least a possibility of Quincy getting something.

Girls Wanted a Ride.

William Garbarino left his father's team alone on Union street for a few minutes Monday morning, and while left thus two young girls came out of Whitcher's factory, and getting into the team drove off, leaving William to make his way home on foot. The girls drove to East Milton and from there went to Weymouth, where they were overhauled by William in the afternoon, who took the team away from them, and gave them a chance to get home as best they could.

CITY BRIEFS.

George H. Ford is at Eppling, N. H. The moon falls on Sunday morning.

The tax rate is forty cents higher than ever.

The annual prize shoot of Co. K will be held Sept. 7, Labor Day.

Commissioner Knowlton is doing some excellent work on repairing our streets.

Mr. Eben W. Sheppard returns Sunday from a trip through the wilds of Maine.

Miss Nellie Nightingale, bookkeeper for F. F. Crane, is enjoying a brief vacation.

Mr. John W. Walsh has gone to Bethel, Maine, to spend his two weeks' vacation.

Charles Hayward of Scituate, made a brief visit to his old friends in Quincy, Monday.

It was six years ago Wednesday that the terrible railroad accident happened near Danvers street bridge in Quincy.

The contract for wiring the two new schoolbuildings has been awarded to Bert Curtis.

Mr. and Mrs. John Shaw went to Scouset, Nantucket Island, Saturday for two weeks.

No one could possibly find a great deal of fault with the weather that we have been having this week.

Miss Lila Cummings of Boston is spending a few days with Mrs. M. C. King on Chestnut street.

John Faircloth, driver of the Hook and Ladder Co., of the central fire station, is having his vacation.

The regular monthly meeting of the School Committee will be held on Tuesday evening next at 8 o'clock.

The Daily Globe says the Boston water supply is running short. Quincy is well supplied by the recent rains.

Work on the new addition to the Woodward Institute is progressing rapidly, the frame work being nearly completed.

John Johnson is building two new houses on Penn's hill, one for John Foley and one for Charles Turner.

The bricklayers commenced work again on the savings bank block Monday morning and work will not be held forward.

Herbert Holmes, clerk at F. F. Crane's furniture store, is spending his vacation cruising about the harbor in the Hester.

Mr. Thomas Carey of South street, an operator of the Associated Press, is visiting in Palmer Falls and Port Edward, N. Y.

Mr. James B. Pollock, of New York, formerly of Quincy, arrived in Boston from a brief trip to Europe Thursday morning.

The thirtieth annual reunion of the 30th Regiment will be held at Co. A, at the Atlantic hotel, Nantasket beach, Sept. 2.

F. F. Crane, the auctioneer, held a successful sale of household furniture and oil paintings at Faxon hall Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. John T. Hayward and Misses Laura and Annie Hayward are guests of Prof. W. R. Tyler at Mattapoisett.

Congressman Atwood was in the city Friday. He has many enthusiastic friends in this city who are working for his re-election.

James Thompson and T. H. Newcomb will probably be nominated for representatives to the General Court from this district.

Mr. Maurice Cantilli, who has been located in Cleveland as the representative of a local granite firm since March, has returned to Quincy.

Dr. Gordon is expecting to take his vacation soon. He has remained at home by reason of the illness of Mr. Butler and other patients.

Captain Mark A. Hanson and Patrolman Nicol are taking their vacations this week, and Patrolman Canavan is doing duty as night officer at the police station.

Rev. Mr. Butler is now on the road to good health again, after his late serious attack of prostration by an extreme cold, and over mental and physical exertion.

One of the handsomest rainbows seen for many a day was that of Tuesday evening. It extended from horizon to horizon, forming a perfect arch of beautiful colors.

Those of our citizens who have ten thousand dollars' worth of property in Boston this year will have to pay one dollar more tax than last year. Rate, $12.90.

The sweet peas in the flower garden at Constable Farnall's residence, on Washington street, continue to grow and have now reached a height of nine feet, and are as full of blossoms as ever.

Cutter, Wood & Stevens of Boston filed a petition as creditors of the Quincy Cycle Co., at Dedham, Tuesday, asking that a warrant in insolvency be issued against said company. A hearing will be held on the petition at Dedham, Oct. 7.

Ralph M. Fogg, the popular dentist in French's block, will leave on Monday with Mrs. Fogg for New Hampshire, for pleasure and recreation, and his office in Quincy will be closed until Sept. 30. No doubt they will enjoy a delightful rest among the hills of the Granite State.

Commissioner Knowlton commenced work Tuesday morning rebuilding Adams street, between Whitwell street and Furnace brook. Something like two feet of crushed stone will be put on for a foundation and drainage will be looked after to take care of the surface water.

From the present indications the mass meeting of the Republicans of Quincy at Hancock hall, Sept. 2, to form a McKinley club, will be a success, and enthusiasm will be lacking. Some of the speakers to be invited to the meeting will be present to address the meeting; among whom is Curtis Guild, Jr.

City editor Frank F. Prescott returned to his desk Friday after a delightful trip with his wife through New Hampshire, Vermont and upper New York to Niagara Falls. The "wonder of the world" exceeded their expectations. As they stopped off every night they saw many points of interest.

New life has recently been infused into the Bay State Aluminum Co. by the addition of local capital of an amount sufficient to place the company on its feet, and the factory will now be run to its full capacity.

Mr. Leon C. Ward still retains his position as manager, and will have as an assistant W. Walter Ewell.

William Good, a brother of T. Walter Good of Quincy, was drowned off Commercial wharf, Boston, Sunday night. He was walking from an excursion steamer, the wharf, when he fell off the gang plank into the water, and before assistance could reach him he was drowned. His body was recovered.

Mr. D. V. Titus, regent of the Adams Chapter, D. R. I., is planning an all-day outing for the Chapter at her beautiful farm at Squantum. She thinks of having it on the anniversary of the erection of the cairn to Capt. Miles Standish and of having some of the state officers of the Daughters of the Revolution come out in the afternoon as the guests of the Adams Chapter.

Two society ladies, both recent comers, who have taken their vacation here, declare Quincy to be a most delightful summer resort. With increased facilities of getting about in the electric cars, our proximity to beaches, our hills and quarries, from which we can see the town away from the rounded dome of Massachusetts. Home is not a bad place even in the heated term.

WOLLASTON.

Mrs. Newell O. Parker and daughter Ethel, of Belmont street, have just returned from a visit among friends in New Bedford.

Mr. O. M. Whittier of Farrington street was completely surprised a week ago Wednesday, when a few of his relatives came to his home to celebrate the anniversary of his birthday. Mr. Whittier was presented with a very pretty dinner service of 14 pieces. Ice cream and cake were served during the evening, and a jolly good time enjoyed by all.

The hall at Wollaston on Wednesday afternoon was so severe that it was wholly unnoticed.

Mr. M. R. Sparrow has bought out the fruit store of G. T. Lang in Wollaston and now runs it in connection with his ice cream parlors.

The Wollaston I. O. G. T. cycle club had a ride to Loyal and Keystone lodge, Hyde Park, on Monday evening.

At the last meeting of Honesonauca Tribe of Red Men of Wollaston six pale Indians were adopted and one application for adoption was refused. The Warrior's degree was also worked. The tribe is in an unusually flourishing condition.

The Wollaston Cycle club was represented Thursday evening at the opening of the new rooms of the Riverway Cycle club, at Milton. Lower Middle street.

The city fathers have placed a heavy granite watering trough on Hancock street opposite Barry's store, Atlantic.

Sunday evening services at the Methodist church, Atlantic, will begin half an hour earlier than during the summer past.

Mr. H. J. Preston, who has been spending the last week in Atlantic, has returned home.

The Atlantic defeated the St. Mary's Y. M. C. A. of Boston in a well-played game last Saturday afternoon.

A large number of Atlantic people spent Sunday at Nantasket beach, taking the trip on the new line of electric cars.

Miss Gertrude W. Hall of Atlantic is spending her vacation at North Scituate beach, with a party of friends from Co. Cass.

Dr. Alden's charming daughter of Atlantic has returned after almost a year's absence. Miss Alden's trip has not only included the continent and southern states, but also a winter spent at all the beautiful, California resorts, a trip to Alaska, Yosemite Valley and Yellowstone Park, and through Montana, Utah and all Colorado's grandest scenery.

Miss Alden's friends will find her more charming than ever.

The floral decorations of the Methodist church, Atlantic, were unusually busy last Sunday in preparing for the service in bathing of John's lumber wharf, Saturday afternoon, stepped on a broken bottle and cut a deep gash in his foot, which required the services of a surgeon to dress.

Samuel Oxford left Friday for a brief visit to Braintree, Vt.

Charles Hall has entered his b. m. Mollie June, in the 229 class at the races to be held at South Weymouth on today.

WEST QUINCY.

Miss Alberta Turner of Miller street has just called on her friends in West Quincy.

Harlow's band of Brockton, gave two concerts at Houghs Neck, Sunday, which served to attract quite a large number, but would have attracted a much larger number had it been generally known that a hand concert was to have been given.

The season at the beach is fast drawing to a close, and two weeks more will see many of the cottagers headed for their winter homes.

The committee in charge of the annual illumination are working hard to make the affair a success and to eclipse any previous illumination.

The life boat should be taken out occasionally to be sure that she is all right should an occasion demand her use.

The only shady place along the beach is in front of Mear's hotel and it is therefore a much sought for place.

Guests at the hotel cottage are Miss Blanche McIntire, Miss Annie Purinton of Bath, Me., and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Warren of Roxbury.

Mr. George Coburn, Mr. C. H. Barnes and family, Mr. and Mrs. William, George Sears and Mrs. Uley of Westboro are in the Wigwag cottage.

New arrivals at the Loretto are Mr. and Mrs. Brown, Sharon; Misses Mary, Margaret and Marcel McDonald, Mabel Ellis, Cambridge; Miss Margaret King, Taunton; Misses Della and Kittle Shannon, Malden; Miss Annie O'Connell, Lynn; Misses Mary, Miss Louise Norton, Weymouth; Mr. J. L. Tookill, E. McMahon, Fred Maple, J. W. Clark, John Hogan and John Powers, Worcester; Henry Hoey, Boston.

C. A. Lustin Keefe of Boston is a guest at the Bijou cottage.

C. A. Duxie and family, and A. W. Jones and family, of Brockton, are in the Abington cottage.

J. Walter Bradlee and family, and Chas. Bradlee and family, of Milton, are in the Revere cottage.

The concert at the yacht club house Friday evening of Baldwin's Cadet band, and the concert and dance of St. Francis' church, furnished all the amusement necessary for one evening.

W. F. Macy, the real estate agent, was out for Nantucket for a two weeks' outing. Harlow's band which gave two fine concerts last Sunday has been engaged to give a concert at the Casino on Tuesday.

One of the features for illumination day will be a game of ball for a purse of $20, between a local team and some strong out-of-town team.

There was quite a hail storm Tuesday afternoon but no damage was done.

The St. John cadets of Worcester have taken their departure.

Capt. Reed of Milton is at the Turner house on Rock Island.

The Union chapel is appreciated at Houghs Neck, and it should be free from debt. Only about $200 of the cost remains unpaid, and it is hoped to wipe out most of this at a concert next Wednesday evening.

Good talent has been secured. Once more this season has Houghs Neck volunteers of Houghs Neck covered themselves with glory, for at about 4:30 p. m. Costello's bowling alley was discovered to be on fire in the rear of the basement in a pile of shavings, probably caused by a cigar butt. Mr. Mark Lynch, an old Boston veteran who is a summer member of Houghs Neck, together with other members, succeeded after about ten minutes hard work in extinguishing the flames by forming a line of buckets to the sill cock. There is no doubt but what the quick action and cool head of Mr. Lynch saved the building from quite a scorching.

Speaking of Houghs Neck it might be well to mention the fact that they have not as yet been provided with the necessary rubber boots and fireman's coats such as are furnished the other companies. They should be for firemen and able as well as a couple of lamps with a little kerosene to burn in them. Those that are now in use belong on the wood pile. The proper furniture has been promised to them for a few days but not yet arrived, and considering that no pay is received for services the wants of the company should be attended to.

Not Afraid of Ghosts.

Officer David J. Barry thought he saw a ghost Wednesday morning. It was about 10 o'clock, when walking along Hancock street near Costello's alley, he had his attention attracted to a white object sitting against Packard's fence, near Cottage street. Officer Barry thought at first he had seen a ghost, but as it took more time to look at it, he noticed it was a white cat, and he walked cautiously over to the object and with quick movement he had the ghost in his arms.

This was one of those kinds of ghosts that do not vanish, and proved to be a woman who was hardheaded and bareheaded, and in fact the only covering she had on was a short robe-de-chambre. Officer Barry thought at first that the woman was insane, but as she returned his warm embrace, the smell of liquor was so strong that it nearly floored the officer.

After some questioning the officer learned that the woman was married and had a husband and family of children, and looking her squarely away under his coat he escorted her home.

HOUGH'S NECK.

Blue fish are running in the bay. Several small catches have been reported.

Harlow's band of Brockton, gave two concerts at Houghs Neck, Sunday, which served to attract quite a large number, but would have attracted a much larger number had it been generally known that a hand concert was to have been given.

Not Afraid of Ghosts.

Officer David J. Barry thought he saw a ghost Wednesday morning. It was about 10 o'clock, when walking along Hancock street near Costello's alley, he had his attention attracted to a white object sitting against Packard's fence, near Cottage street. Officer Barry thought at first he had seen a ghost, but as it took more time to look at it, he noticed it was a white cat, and he walked cautiously over to the object and with quick movement he had the ghost in his arms.

This was one of those kinds of ghosts that do not vanish, and proved to be a woman who was hardheaded and bareheaded, and in fact the only covering she had on was a short robe-de-chambre. Officer Barry thought at first that the woman was insane, but as she returned his warm embrace, the smell of liquor was so strong that it nearly floored the officer.

After some questioning the officer learned that the woman was married and had a husband and family of children, and looking her squarely away under his coat he escorted her home.

McKinley's Letter.

Major McKinley's letter accepting the nomination of the St. Louis Convention for the Presidency, has printed this week in the daily papers and probably read by many of our readers. It gives the friends of honest money the utmost confidence. From its opening paragraph to its closing sentence it bears the unmistakable stamp of sincerity.

The Boston Herald says: "His attitude on the currency question fully meets the requirement of the situation. In saying this we say a good deal, for the situation imperatively demands the expression on his part of sound financial views in an unmistakable manner, and he has fully answered the call. The position which he has taken up cannot but have an excellent effect, both politically and from a business point of view."

Mr. Charles Francis Adams said: "So far as it relates to the currency issue, Gov. McKinley's letter seems to me admirable. It shows very clearly the educational results of the campaign now going on."

Mr. McKinley declares that the country is in need of prompt protective legislation and says that if elected it will be his duty to promote this object. He quotes from messages of Presidents Harrison and Cleveland, contrasting the property under protection and that of the present time. It is "not more coinage that we want but more active use of the money coined."

Hospital Festival.

The committee on the grand Hospital festival held a well attended and enthusiastic meeting on Thursday evening. Ex-Congressman H. M. Folsom, president, and Timothy Reed were present.

Several organizations were represented by committees, and all suggestions were duly considered.

The festival is regarded Saturday as the best day for them and the people generally, and it was decided that the festival should be held on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 17, 18 and 19, instead of the dates first selected.

The committee was also disposed to grant the request of the firemen for a band and also for prizes, and it is hoped to arrange a contest between Braintree, Hingham, Milton, Quincy and other hand engaged.

A balloon ascension and sports for the opening day with favor and will undoubtedly be the attractions for Thursday, Sept. 17. A band concert will be given. Friday will be children's day and Grand Army day, and it is hoped that Acting Governor Wolcott will be a guest.

Each night there will be entertainments in the large tent under the auspices of different local organizations.

The Quincy Electric Light and Power Company made a satisfactory offer to furnish all the light needed, and this means that the grounds at Merry Mount park will be brilliantly illuminated.

No season tickets will be issued this year, but single tickets good for any afternoon or evening will be sold for the small sum of 25 cents, and half tickets for 50 cents. A house to house canvass for the sale of tickets will be made.

V. M. C. A. Reception.

The members of the physical department of the Young Men's Christian Association are to tender a reception to Mr. Joseph E. Merritt, the physical director, on Wednesday evening, Sept. 2. Mr. Merritt has resigned his position in the local association, and his many friends take this method of showing their appreciation of his services for the past two years and to wish him success in the new step he is about to take.

Mr. Merritt enters the International Association Training school at Springfield next month, as a student. He has taken three years and includes, physiology, anatomy, hygiene, physics, chemistry, psychology, sociology, bible study, methods of association work, gymnastics and athletics, both theoretical and practical, etc.

Mr. Merritt is a Quincy boy and has a bright prospect before him. His influence over the young men and the boys who have been associated with him during the past two years has been helpful.

The young men invite all of Mr. Merritt's friends, both ladies and gentlemen, to be present Wednesday evening. There will be an interesting entertainment during the evening.

Bicycle Parade Today.

The greatest cycling demonstration that the East has ever witnessed will take place this afternoon in Boston. Over six hundred cyclists have signified their intention to participate in the unattached wheelmen division.

It will be a grand sight. Mechanical features will be introduced in the trade division that have never before been dreamed of. The fancy dress division will have some beautiful and some exceedingly funny costumes. The line of march will be taken up at three o'clock last night. There is no fee of admittance, but the Boston Herald bears the whole expense.

Season Closes Tuesday.

The Quincy Yacht Club's next and last event of the season will be a race, which occurs on September 1. This will virtually close the most successful season the club has had since its organization. Everything, including the open regatta cruise, ladies day, hop, concert and other social functions, have been a success, and have been carried out as quietly and systematically as the running of a clock. Wherever the club flag has been carried, whether on the north, or the south shore or the cape, its members have been received with unusual courtesy. The club is the recognized leader in the racing of small yachts, and its boats have captured about all of the prizes offered in these classes on the coast.

Good Tempers.

At the regular meeting of Wollaston lodge, I. O. G. T., on Tuesday evening, several candidates were initiated, thus making the membership over 100. Visitors were present from Quincy, Boston, East Braintree, East Milton and Hyde Park. The following members contributed to the evening's entertainment:

Mrs. M. Kelly, song; Mr. Evans, song; Miss DeLoe and Miss Beaudine, duet; Miss Ella Chubbuck, song; Mr. Brooks, piano solo.

Remarks by Brothers Bishop, Allen, Chubbuck, Berry, Taylor, Wadlin and Mrs. Chubbuck.

Red Men.

Clark and J. W. Smith officiated. Their friends will find Mr. and Mrs. McKeezie at their future home at No. 2 Jackson street.

School Ventilation.

Parents will be glad that, with our crowded school rooms, some improvement has been made during the vacation, in regard to heat and fresh air. Ventilation is a difficult thing to gain in a room where there is a large number of people.

The practice that of late years has crept into our schools of opening all the windows at certain intervals, thus completely changing the air, allowing the children to stretch their cramped limbs in a cool room, as free ventilation is thus gained, and no artificial method is better. This is good as far as it goes.

We told a few years ago that in the laboratory at Harvard a costly and what was supposed to be a scientific system of ventilation was adopted to ensure a freedom of escape of the bad odors generated there. All was done successfully, it was supposed. The whole work failed and the penetrating odors do not go the way the authorities had them go.

This fact of fresh air, so necessary for little bodies and brains is more important than any teaching on books. Our very large number of school children lead a good wish Quincy had some free baths, where once a week at least, children whose homes have no bath privileges beyond the laundry and bathing.

This tabling process is a very good one, and it turned out some nice old grand parents in former days, yet statistics lie longer than did these worthy people. Quincy people seem to feel that "they," the City Council are to accomplish all we need for the good of body and soul. This is wrong, it is we, the people, who are to do the good work needed in every direction in our city.

Last winter we had many, too many cases of diphtheria here, and in many households, during this past year, death in terrible form took little innocents who should have been spared, and who ought to have lived, because we have learned that diphtheria is a preventable disease.

Perfect cleanliness everywhere, will undoubtedly, in measure, prevent, and other such diseases. This means a great deal, but it is more vital than the need of fine houses, fine furniture and fine clothes. It means life, happy life to little children, it means less grief, less sorrow, it means the possibility of men and women to help in the work of the world.

Public spirit, philanthropy, generosity, missionary work are needed right here, while Quincy is growing so fast, before it gets so large that the evil which spring from carelessness and ignorance are too great to be met wisely.

It is easy to build a contagious ward, but it is not so easy to maintain one. Every case of contagious disease among us, should be at once isolated. This can not be properly done at home. Last winter three babies in one home were swept from loving parents' arms within a few days of their birth, because of contagious disease. What help is there for this? A need of co-operation, a need of improvement societies in each ward where what touches the heart of our life shall be taken up, where mothers are overburdened and hard working fathers shall be taught this simple primal law of God that touches so closely every household and every child within it, that "Cleanliness is next to Godliness." May, cleanliness be Godliness, and creates it.

The Bogle Match.

Eight men participated in the bogle match of the Wollaston Golf club, Saturday, at the links at Bellevue park. The bogle score was figured on 70 strokes in 18 holes. The first class man were handicapped 14 strokes and the second class men 24 strokes.

HOUGH'S NECK.

Quite a delegation from Quincy attended the concert given in aid of the Union chapel at Houghs Neck, Wednesday evening, and they, together with the cottagers, held the chapel to standing room only. There were a number of changes in the programme, three of the numbers being left out entirely. The concert opened with an instrumental selection by a trio consisting of Mrs. E. L. Greene and sons. This was well received and enjoyed, and was followed by a soprano solo by Miss Christian of Trinity church choir, Boston, who gave two more selections during the evening, all of which were very pleasing. The violin solos of Miss Olive Mead of Cambridge were particularly fine, as were the correct solos of Mr. Ernest M. Coleman of Baldwin's Cadet Band. There were readings by Miss S. M. Kelley of Hyde Park and altogether the concert was a very successful affair given for a worthy cause.

A trolley party which came all the way from Holbrook by a special car was entertained at Pierce's hotel, Tuesday evening. Prices for the best illuminated cottages will undoubtedly stimulate the residents to eclipse the many handsome displays of the past. The other features are as usual.

The Hull Yacht club race scheduled for today has been indefinitely postponed because of the result of the Beverly open race.

In the opening race of the series at Duxbury on Tuesday legs were secured by the Harbinger, Tacoma, Arab, Glide, Slip and Dolphin. The Bostonian, the fourth in her class and the Cleopatra third. The Beatrice and Cleopatra took second prizes in the second of the series of yacht races off Duxbury on Wednesday. Legs were secured by the Arab, Tacoma, Arab, Alpine, Skip-Jack and Trouble.

NICE FRUIT,

want this more than we do, but is glad to the Populist to gain his end. Very few who are not big game hunters are made so as to try to keep what little value there may be in our money and save the shreds of our dishonored flag. For years to come I foresee nothing but uncertainties and fears, poverty and dire distress, unless we succeed in effecting our reforms now. This happy result will ensure peace and prosperity throughout the land. If in your busy lives you have not, read this history, I beg you to read John Quincy Adams' Period of American History." If you do read this history, financial questions, do read and so avoid the mistakes many times repeated of ignorant peoples. With your better education, your wiser council should prevail.

And now, I am glad to see that the Democrats ally. I entreat you all to read and understand the campaign books published and sent free to all who ask for them. Equip yourselves with information to answer the plausible but false teachings of the Populists, and their ignorant appeals to the greed of the ignorant. Show how impossible is the realization of their promises of prosperity, with constant work and higher wages. Show those who have been misled the folly of giving their votes for their own ruin, and for the suffering and distress of their friends.

Will you read and distribute an entire pamphlet entitled "Wages, Fixed Income and Free Silver. Colman" will arrange to supply free of all that you ask for. Write to me at Quincy for them.

Let us put our shoulders to the wheel and make a good thing out of this. Let us be warned in time and be not over-ruled.

I really believe that the success of Mr. Bryan's war would cost this country in the financial ruin and destruction of many, in the loss of your wages, in the sacrifice of our savings more than a hundred foreign wars. May your work prosper.

Yours truly,
Wm. Quincy Avenue.

Shawmut Spring Water.

How many people realize the importance of drinking only pure water in large quantities in order to keep in absolutely good health? When we consider that two-thirds of the human body is in the form of water, and that in order to supply the losses from excretion and evaporation it is necessary to drink from one-half to one gallon of water daily, it is of the utmost importance that should be of the very best quality, perfectly free from the slightest trace of organic matter.
The Shawmut Spring Water stands second to none as a pure drinking water. Hundreds of families are using it every day. It is an important factor in maintaining health, building up and restoring the organs of digestion and excretion. Cures Rheumatism, Kidney and Bladder troubles, when drugs have proved useless.
Send your order for a 5-gallon sample package. If you don't like it, it costs you nothing. Drink it and you will be satisfied of its purity.

AS WOMEN ARE MADE.
He had been coming to the house for months, and the smiling nod with which she greeted him as he passed the drawing-room window would have been just as if only friendly acquaintance had existed.
But people said there was something more than that, at least there were those who were concerned themselves about these two atoms in the whirling world. Her sister Helen, with whom she lived, fancied there was enough between them to call for womanly confidences, and Monica's brother-in-law guessed enough to make him chaff the girl unmercifully at times.
"And for years left within to make nice distinctions. Gather your roses while you may," the moral being that they would accept Mr. William Hartley whenever he chooses to ask you."
"I did not say so," Monica put in somewhat severely, "you seem very anxious to get rid of me."
It was a womanly thrust with a weapon of which she often made ungenerous use, and it had the usual effect of silencing her brother-in-law. Every evening of his life, the girl was of him, and not being a rich man, he made many sacrifices, and submitted to many petty economies in order that Helen might take her in. That was probably the reason why they smiled so frequently.
"Helen is coming this evening, is he not?" Helen asked, when her husband had caught his city-bound train.
"I believe so."
Mrs. Leyton was in a receptive mood that morning, which was unfortunate, since her sister seemed far from communicative. With a little sigh of resignation, Helen lifted her hand and stretched away industriously, glancing now and then at the dressing eyes opposite.
It was nearly an hour later when Monica raised her head.
"Helen,"
"Well, dear!"
"Do you think Mr. Hartley wants to marry me?"
"Why, of course," Helen said, looking rather surprised; "his behavior has pointed to that ending for the last six months. But what a question, Monica! Surely you are the one who ought to know best!"
"I was not thinking of Mr. Hartley," the girl said, "I was thinking of someone else who spoke sweet words and looked out of dark eyes into mine once, when I loved and who rode away. Do you remember Captain Montague, Helen? He stood six feet two in his stockings, and was the best built man in his regiment. I do not think his greatest friend would call Mr. Hartley well-built, and a bit more, shifty forehead and bald crown he was not entirely free from defects in physique. Harry is married now; I saw his wife's name in the 'Births' in the Morning Post yesterday, and Mr. Hartley is single and wants to marry me, you say. Dear me, what a happy man I should be!"
"Don't be cynical, child," Mrs. Leyton said, laying a kindly hand upon her sister's arm, "you have been growing sterner and sterner, wondering even then if his countenance could possibly become any more pure when the light collar had done its deadly work, noticing the chameleon-hued cravat, the closely-buttoned frock coat and aggressive trousers with an almost perceptible shiver. Mark Grover had stood in that very spot in the forenoon. What a difference, what a desecration!"
The color rose to Monica's face.
"I am deeply honored by your preference, Mr. Hartley, but I regret -"
"You are going to refuse me, I know

Poetry.

The Last Eve of Summer.

BY J. G. WHITTIER.
Summer's last sun, high unto setting shines
Through your columnar pines,
And on the deepening shadows of the lawn
Its golden lines are drawn.
Dreaming of long gone summer days like this,
Feeling of the winds soft kiss,
Grateful and glad that falling eve and sight
Have still their old delight.
Sit alone, and watch the warm, sweet day
Lapse tenderly away;
And, wistful, with feeling of forecast,
Ask, "Is this the last?"
"Will evermore for me the seasons run
Their round, and will the sun
Of autumn summers yet to come forget,
For me to rise and set?"
Then shouldst be here, or I should be with thee,
Wherever though may be,
Lips meet, hands clasped, in silence of Each answering unto each.
For this hour, this sense of mystery far Beyond the evening star,
No words would suffice on lip or scroll;
The soul would find with soul.
Wait, while these swift passing days fall
The wise-dispensing Will,
In the evening, as at morning, trust
The All Merciful and Just.

The solemn joy that common life feels Immortal life reveals;
And human love, its prophecy and sign,
Interprets love Divine.
Come, then, in thought, if that alone may be
O friend! and bring with thee
Thy calm assurance of transcendent spheres,
And the eternal years!

Why It Was Dropped.

The New York World talks straight as to facts and can be relied upon. Here is a question and answer which we commend to our readers. The answer conveys information we have never seen given before, and which is especially interesting:
At whose request was the standard silver dollar left out of the coinage act of 1873?
At the request of the Comptroller of the Currency, John Jay Knox, informed by the Secretary of the Treasury, George S. Boutwell. Their recommendation was approved by thirty experts in metals and coinage - the reason being, as stated by ex-Director of the Mint, Linderman, that "having a higher value as bullion than its nominal value, the silver dollar long ago ceased to be a coin of circulation, and being of no practical use whatever, its issue should be discontinued."
The action of Congress in dropping the silver dollar was natural under the circumstances. It should be borne in mind also that for more than eleven years before, no coin money had circulated in this country, and did not for more than three years after. -North Atlantic Public.

A Household Adjunct.
A lady of my acquaintance, living in the upper part of this city, wanted a cook who would go to work at night, and an advertisement in the paper setting forth her wants. Among the applicants was a negro woman of large proportions. The lady looked at the negroes and thought of her children. She did not want to state the real reason, for fear of giving offense, so she said:
"I'm afraid that you would not get here in time in the morning, you live so far down town."
"Don't you fear about that, honey," said the negroes. "I won't take me no time to come up on my bike."
The lady was too dumfounded to say much, but she declined to take her on the ground that there was no place in the flat to store the wheel. She wrote now that she did not ask this wheelwoman whether she wore bloomers or knickerbockers. -Critic.

Testing the Eyes.
A locomotive engineer was to have his sight tested by a doctor who lived in a house facing a large park. The doctor asked him to go to the window and look out, and tell him what you can see. When the engineer learned that his sight was to be tested he had arranged with his son to take his bicycle half a mile into the park and be riding it. In due time the old man was led to the window, the doctor saying as usual: "What do you see?"
"I see a young man stooping beside his bicycle." "Do you?" said the doctor.
"I don't see anything at all," "Nonsense," said the engineer, "why do you ask me that?" The doctor took up a pair of field glasses and plainly saw the same. "Magnificent sight!" he said. The engineer is still drawing his wages. -Boston Traveller.

A Bunch of Herbs.
In the fall weather there comes a day when in most old country houses the garret is visited with bundles of herbs in the arms and trays of lavender and rose leaves in the hands. For the herb garden has yielded its increase, and there are bunches of sage and savory and marjoram and pennyroyal and saffron and pepperwort and many others to be hung to dry, and other long dried bunches to be taken down to store-room and kitchen.

Perhaps we have not been in these precincts for a year before, when we have a lumber-room, and rather in the light of a nuisance, as a place that ought to be cleared out and never arrives at its destiny. But, going there, it seems all at once as if we were in a new world, and the air is hung to dry, and other long dried bunches to be taken down to store-room and kitchen.

"It is a difficult question to decide," he replied, the kind face growing very grave, "it is not for me, who am, after all, a comparative stranger, to bias your decision in any way. But I cannot help thinking you are too good for Mr. Hartley - much too good for him, and if you will permit me to say so, I am sure happy over it."
"You don't mean it?" he cried incredulously. "Are you really about to be married?"
She nodded briefly.
"Well, I am astonished," he proceeded to say, "and who is the happy man? Mr. Hartley, of course?"
"Mr. Hartley," she said. The eager light had died out of her eyes and her face was almost gray. She had struck her own card and miscalculated the game.

The Quincy Patriot.

SATURDAY, SEPT. 12, 1896.

September and Work.

Vacation days are things of the past, and early in September work commences. The most serious and necessary work for Quincy citizens during these halcyon days when nature makes such perfect harmony, will be the building of the new hospital, which will be the center of the city, and the rallying point for all the citizens of the city, as Mr. Butler so happily christened our little hospital. This church is surrounded by a banner, except one under which all sinners as well as saints are fighting, the banner of Christianity, and this emblem is not sub-divided into sects. This little church on the hillside takes into its sheltering fold, all, with no enquiry as to faith, or no plummet to sound the depth of their sinners. Suffering humanity goes here for the blessed healing which cannot always be purchased with gold, nor gained within the walls of one's home; because it is a special place, built, equipped and cared for by specialists for a purpose not realized before its erection, in Quincy. It is this, which this month appeals to us for help, for help from us all.

The City Hospital of Quincy has not grown old enough to receive in money the liberal donations by bequests, that similar institutions in other cities receive. Quincy is almost a mushroom growth in the rapidly with which it so suddenly became populated. Let us not allow the comparison to go further, by our sloth or negligence in this matter. Tomorrow any one of us may be thrown upon the mercies of the hospital. May we find our shelter already erected to us by our generous work of it. Better, if we keep our vigor, if we have paid the fare for one less fortunate.

There are at the hospital a corps of conscientious workers, daily do their medical men give freely of their strength and skill.

We can not afford to add this to the city burden formally until we have become in reality as in name, a city well developed every way.

A No-Licence Conference.

The Citizens Temperance Committee have arranged for a conference on Monday evening, to be held in the Young Men's Christian Association in the interests of no licence.

Mr. Frank Foxcroft, of the Boston Journal, who has been the active agent in planning and carrying on the no licence campaign in Cambridge for several years will be present and tell how Cambridge fights the rum element.

It is urgently requested that every church, Young People's society, or any other society or organization which desires to protect the home against its deadliest foe, the rum, will send representatives to this meeting. The meeting will begin at 7.45. The large increase of "yes" votes during the past few years make it evident that the temperance people must be roused or Quincy will no longer be a safe place in which to raise a family.

Less House Building.

The greatest disappointment in Assessor's figures is the small number of houses erected during the year closing May 1, although considering the time 121 may be a good number. It is however 37 smaller than last year and 112 less than in 1892, the banner year. With the exception of 1888 there has not been a year since 1885 when so few houses were built. The summary shows the number and gain for each year:

Year.	Houses.	Gain.
In 1880,	1,753
In 1881,	1,773	24
In 1882,	1,894	59
In 1883,	1,919	83
In 1884,	2,033	84
In 1885,	2,089	85
In 1886,	2,219	130
In 1887,	2,292	133
In 1888,	2,484	101
In 1889,	2,616	163
In 1890,	2,761	150
In 1891,	2,852	109
In 1892,	3,169	234
In 1893,	3,392	167
In 1894,	3,486	150
In 1895,	3,644	158

Another Tool Thief.

Those thieves who think that they can come to Quincy and help themselves to tools of various kinds and get away without being apprehended will soon learn that they are mistaken, for while they only take the officers for a few weeks it is only a matter of time before they will occupy one of those luxurious rooms in the basement at City Hall.

Last week when the fellow who had been stealing carpenter tools was arrested, it was stated in the LEDGER that there had been other breaks which the police had kept to themselves in order that the party who committed them might be captured. One of these breaks was at the Thomas Owens & Son's shoe store, which were entered on the night of August 31, when four plain hammers valued at $8 were taken.

A few days later Inspector McKay recovered the hammers in a Boston pawnshop and as the fellow was expected to return with other tools a watch was kept on the place. Thursday the fellow again put in appearance, this time having an armful of carpenter's tools, which he tried to pass. It was then that Inspectors Whitman and Shields arrested the fellow and turned him over to Inspector McKay who brought him to Quincy. He was arraigned in court on Friday.

John Hancock.

A shaft recently erected by the Commonwealth in the old Granary burying ground in Boston, to mark the grave of John Hancock, who was born in Quincy on the lot where the Adams Academy now stands, Jan. 23, 1737, was appropriately dedicated on Thursday afternoon. Owing to the storm exercises were held in Park Street church.

The slab is 18 feet high, of Tennessee marble, with a base of pink granite. It is in the form of a Greek stele, the top having a decorative rendering of the Hancock coat of arms, with the motto, "Obsequia principis." Just below is a wreath of oak leaves, surrounding a bas-relief of Hancock, taken from a portrait by Copley, now in possession of one of the family. This head was modelled by Mr. H. Cairns, the sculptor. The likeness is said to be very striking.

The inscription reads: "This memorial erected A. D. MDCCCXCV, by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, to mark the Grave of John Hancock."

It stands over the old family vault.

Gospel Tent Meetings.

The gospel tent work in Quincy was carried on successfully for two weeks while the tent was located on Mr. King's field. The gospel tent was the Swedish tent as in the English language that good many people have heard the gospel word perhaps not have heard it had it not been in a tent. But cold hard evenings came on and the hearers became scarce. All returned home satisfied.

The advice of several friends of the gospel work to remove the tent to a more convenient spot in the city where people would not have to travel through lonely fields in the dark.

After careful investigation Mr. John son, who is in the charge of the tent work, found Mr. Faxon's lot off Pleasant street the most suitable as it was near one of the principal streets in the city, and as he thought by the outward appearance of the neighborhood it would be one of the safest places to put up a gospel tent.

He therefore applied to Mr. Faxon who responded willingly to the request and a tent was raised on the said lot. But to their great surprise on Friday forenoon last in the storm, the tent was blown away, the tent blew down and the posts were pulled out of the ground.

Then another effort was put forth and the tent was moved by Mr. Johnson's men, and the tent was raised again. Since then it has been blowing a gale and the rain has been falling heavily and the result was that the tent was blown to pieces at the nearest end to the street. But the greatest astonishment was when they found that the tent was blown away and the result was that the tent was blown to pieces at the nearest end to the street. But the greatest astonishment was when they found that the tent was blown away and the result was that the tent was blown to pieces at the nearest end to the street.

THE NEW MILTON HIGH SCHOOL.
This excellent new building, just opened at Milton, is considered one of the finest and best equipped high school buildings in the State.

Work was commenced on it some over a year ago. It is situated on the town land, and in front of the old building. The architect was Bradford O. Hamilton, one of Milton's well-known citizens, whose plans were accepted only after critical inspection.

The exterior walls of the building are of red brick, with terra cotta and brown stone trimmings. On the front it has a length of 108 feet, and there is an average width of 60 feet. Inside it is finished throughout in ash, with oak and pine floors, and plastered with expensive hard finish.

Brother Cox felt the trouble more than the other members of the community, for he knew that he was partly responsible for it. To think that his nephew, his only brother's son, should come out to Hingham in these few short months raise such a

Hospital Festival.

The second annual three-days' festival for the benefit of the Quincy City Hospital, opened Thursday at Merry Mount park.

The fair is being held on that part of the park near Hancock street and the grounds have been laid out as advantageously as possible.

A certain portion of the park has been roped off, the line being distinguished at night by a row of electric lights which surround that part devoted to the fair purposes.

Directly in the front, near Hancock street, is the large tent, which is 340 feet long and 60 feet wide, being forty feet longer than that used last year.

One end of the interior has been partitioned off for a theatre and in the other part are sale tables, which are arranged along the sides and ends.

The headquarters of the executive committee are near the entrance to the theatre and for their convenience the New England Telephone and Telegraph Co. have put in a long distance telephone which is very much appreciated by the committee who frequently have occasion to use it.

Back of the tent are the usual number of side attractions found at agricultural fairs and the beaches, such as a fish pond, where there are no blanks and fishermen get a bite every time they throw a line. There is also the African doctor, shooting gallery, cane ringer machine, swinging hammer, fortune teller and branches.

In the rear is a large enclosure in which the balloon is inflated and there was another enclosure inside of which was a pit where the ox was roasted.

At night the grounds are brilliantly illuminated and it is almost as light as day, for the Quincy Electric Light & Power Co. have covered the ground with lights, the total number being 58 series and 14 arc lamps.

The attendance Thursday, the opening day, was quite large. It was called "Children's Day," and in honor of this the schools were closed and the children flocked to the grounds. They found plenty to amuse themselves with, but the branches were their favorites.

Thursday's Programme.—At 2:30 o'clock Paul Revere Post 28, G. A. R., formed at headquarters on Hancock street, and headed by the City Band marched to the park. When they arrived it was raining slightly and they immediately entered the tent and took seats in front.

On the platform in a semi circle were the pupils of the High school who were to take part in the singing and directly in front were seated Chairman, Herbert M. Folsom, Mayor Adams, Capt. J. G. Adams and Hon. William B. Rice.

The exercises in the tent consisted of musical selections by the school children and brief remarks by Mayor Adams and an address by Capt. J. G. Adams. The latter was speaking for the younger generation and so long as a drop of American blood runs through our veins, that drop of blood will thrill when we think of that Grand Army and what it has done for us.

Capt. Jack Adams, as he is familiarly known, said: "As he saw the boys of the Grand Army and heard the singing, his mind had gone back to the days before we enlisted, when they sang the same songs we sing today."

In the schools they used to read the Declaration of Independence every day and then the boys would go out and think about it and when we thought of the poor negroes we thought it was not right to have a slave. Then in 1860 we had an election and resolved that the Confederacy should not exist, and early in '61, we threw down the lanterns we had carried in the campaign and took up the guns.

We cannot forget that the preservation of the Union cost, how we continued to fight for its preservation. From early '61 to early '65, we fought, and when we came home we left 400,000 dead. We brought home thousands of poor cripples, fellows and they have banded themselves together to drive poverty out of the homes of their comrades as we did the enemy. That was why the Grand Army was formed.

Remember what the peace and preservation cost. These men before you, gave the best part of their lives, and now when they ask for aid, give it to them, but not as charity but as a public debt. The Grand Army stands for the Union, clean honest politics, and the honor and integrity of the Union forever.

It is a grand thing that we are to leave the flag in safe hands. We will do it with a proud heart, but if it were not, we must ask the boys to preserve this country and its flag, as did their fathers in '61, and the girls to as their mothers did.

The selections included "To Thee, O Country," "Onborne on Wings," "White and Blue," "The Land of the Living," "The Quincy Song," "The Quincy Hospital Song," and "America." The Hospital Song was original, words being by Mr. Frederick Allison Tupper, the band master of the High school. The other songs were by the 325 voices from the High, and the solo for "Red, White and Blue" by Misses Hayden, Lind, Osborne, Phelan, Sprague, Ward and Winslow.

Following the exercises in the tent was a band concert from 4 to 5:30 by the city band inside of the tent, while outside the children found plenty of amusement in riding the bronchos about the grounds and other sports.

Shortly after 4:30 came the barbecue and the delicious joint was served with sweet potatoes and corn to a crowd of hungry people who enjoyed it much. They nearly finished the ox and what there was left in the afternoon was sold during the evening.

The balloon ascension and parachute drop by Prof. Joseph La Roubx was announced to take place at 5 o'clock but it was nearer 6 before the big canvas bag was inflated and then the boys pulled on some of the ropes so hard that the canvas was torn somewhat. It was intended to have two parachute jumps but something did not work right. The first man was taken up into the air about 25 or 30 feet so that that the second, or longer, was just leaving the ground when something gave away and down came the top man with a bump. He landed on the soft ground and although it took some of the wind out of him, the fellow was not injured and a glass of water fixed him all right. The balloon released of its weight sailed up into the air and finally toppled over and came down in the rear of the stable on the Adams farm.

There was also many adults present, but the evening saw the largest crowd, the rounds being crowded.

It was a good natured crowd as well as a large one, and it was also a crowd that seemed to spend its money freely and in many of the tables the ladies in charge reported very large sales, and that most of their articles were sold. This was perhaps due to the fact that the ladies this year realized that the times were hard and had not marked the article at an exorbitant price, as is usual on such occasions.

Capt. Morrison was early on the scene in the evening with about 30 members of Co.

WEST QUINCY.

A surprise party was tendered to Mr. Joseph Prario, Saturday evening, at his home on Filbert street, West Quincy. It proved to be a great success, he being completely surprised. He was presented with a very handsome, Clanton Kidder made presentation speech. There were selections on the piano and songs by William Anderson and Miss Williams, followed by games up to quite a late hour. A collation was served, after which they departed and said he did not feel like buying more of the new line.

E. H. Dishing & Co.'s stores are being painted.

Ground has been broken for the foundation of a new house on Copeland street, opposite the Norfolk Granite works.

We have received from Mrs. Robert McGuinness of England, formerly of West Quincy, a copy of The Humanitarian, a monthly published at London to freely discuss all matters which concern the spiritual, moral and physical well-being of humanity. The copy which we have received deals with money under the head of The Unsolvable Riddle, and just at this time is of interest to the people of our own country.

Who's making a row of the past perhaps in Brockton, Inspector McKay in the gold watch and chain that was stolen from Patrick Curry at West Quincy some weeks ago by a man whom he had taken to board. When the fellow applied to Mr. Curry for board he said that he was going to work upon the Grizzly Bryant school, but when he left the next morning the watch and chain went, and the man never came back.

DOWN AND PARK.

Another cellar is going in on Hancock street, opposite the Billings estate at Norfolk Downs.

One of the men who works at the Tubular River works when asked to buy tickets for the Hospital Festival bought a lot. Some thirty or more called to congratulate him; among the number were his daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Carr, of Somerville. He was quite smart and was pleased to have so many friends remember him.

Miss Corlie will open classes in dancing and deportment in Faxon hall on Saturday afternoon, Oct. 10. The classes will be matronized by Mrs. Theodore H. Hurd, Mrs. Frederick Holbrook, Mrs. Herbert Lawton, Quincy; and Mrs. Sylvester Brown, Wollaston. Applications may be made to the matrons.

MILTON COUNCILS.

The Republicans of Milton passed resolutions endorsing their highly respected townsman, Capt. Edwin D. Wadsworth, and their candidate for county commissioner, and in a close fight elected Barrows delegates to the Congressional convention.

It was the largest caucus ever held in the town, and likewise the hottest contested. The total vote was 356, of whom 187 were for Barrows and 169 for Atwood.

The S. A. delegates are for Col. Samuel E. Winslow, for lieutenant governor, and the Representative delegates are for H. E. Pierce, although unpicked. The preferences of the Senatorial and Council delegates are unknown.

Joseph Whitney, recognized in the past as a Republican leader, was thrown down.

Horace E. Ware was chairman and J. P. S. Churchill secretary of the caucus.

These delegates were chosen: State, J. J. Merrill Browne, Edward L. Pierce, J. P. S. Churchill, H. Clifford Gallagher, William B. Webster, J. P. S. Churchill, Horace E. Ware, Arthur A. Gardner, Arthur Edgely, Arthur A. Hibbard, William H. Sias.

Congressional, Joseph C. Whitney, William B. Webster, J. P. S. Churchill, Russell Hall, Greenville S. Webster, County and District Attorney Conventions, John Graham, Dexter E. Wadsworth, John Bradley, Frederick D. Leslie, George B. Pierce.

Somerset, J. Walter Bradley, Alfred H. Crossman, John Graham, Theodore T. Whitney, Thomas B. Gordon.

Representative, H. Clifford Gallagher, Arthur H. Tucker, John Swift, Robert T. Ford, Walter C. Shapleigh, Theodore T. Whitney, Thomas B. Gordon, Theodore T. Whitney, Charles H. Thayer, William B. Weston, L. Tucker Burr.

Town Committee, J. Walter Bradley, John Swift, Thomas B. Gordon, Harvey Chute, John Graham, J. Merrill Brown, Jesse B. Baxter, Arthur A. Hibbard, George D. Peirce.

Sunday's Storm.

Saturday's thick fog developed on Sunday morning into a driving easterly gale, and the sea was very rough.

Yachts at Houghs Neck and Wollaston labored hard at their moorings. At Houghs Neck a cat boat went ashore early in the afternoon near the foot of Bell street. All of the yacht tenders, numbering about a dozen, were hauled up the beach on the beach out of reach of the waves.

Several yachts were noticed in the bay running under fog and four reefs and storm sails.

During the fog early on Sunday morning, a schooner ran ashore on a sunken island, near Hangman's. Two tugs came down from Boston and hauled her off at high water. She was towed to Boston.

The dora dora was very profuse among the beach and broke down the bushes with the word "Mother" and 61 white pins with ribbon from the children; a wreath with "Grammy"; a crescent with "At Rest," from Mrs. Stanley Meads and Mrs. G. N. Nash; bunch of white roses and ribbon from Mrs. James Meads; flat bouquet of purple china asters and ribbon from Mrs. Sadie Nightingale; ivy wreath and passion flowers from Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hayden; mound from Mr. and Mrs. Allen Clark; wreath from Mrs. W. W. Brown and laughter; bouquet from Mr. and Mrs. Webb Hayden; flat bouquet from Mrs. Ewell; mound from Mr. and Mrs. Owen Jones; and several other flowers.

LAUNDRY. It will be seen by our advertising columns that A. J. Preston has commenced the laundry business for himself. Having had laundry experience he feels that he can give his patrons the best of work at reasonable prices.

The Herald reports two of the Wilcetts, who were present on the Dedham train, to be delegates to the county convention. They probably want to be "vindicated" as about burning their books. The third man is Charles A. Gross.

WOLLASTON.

Invitations are out for the wedding of Miss Margaret L. Fenton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Fenton of Wollaston and Mr. John Ball, Jr., of the same place at the residence of the bride's parents, Beal street, on Tuesday evening, Sept. 20, at half after seven. A reception will follow the ceremony.

Mrs. Edith Delano of Wollaston has leased one of the Corbells houses on Farrington street.

A patent was issued on Tuesday to Walter L. Whittemore and P. R. Glass of Quincy.

Mr. H. W. Marsden and Mr. George H. Brainerd of Wollaston are in New Hampshire after partridges.

Mr. H. T. Whitman is mourning the loss of his staunch clipper dog "Pearl's Soap." Mr. Whitman on finding from her a few days ago omitted to make her fast. As the sail was up the dog took flight and went down the bay on an excursion of her own.

Mr. Charles H. Backus, of Wollaston, is quite sick at the Quincy school has been completed, and steam was made for the first time Thursday. The heating was a success.

Faxon lodge, I. O. G. T., has returned to its former quarters in the vestry of the Methodist church, and in the future will hold its meetings every Monday evening.

Sunday will be a red letter day for the Methodist society. In the morning Bishop R. S. Foster, D. D., L. L. D., will preach; and in the evening at 7 o'clock the society will conduct the annual conference, assisted by a number of students from the Boston University and a well-known cornetist. Bishop Foster will visit the Sunday School, and he desires to speak to and shake hands with each member.

Faxon lodge of Atlantic met Monday evening with a good attendance. The members are earnest in the work and intend to make their lodge a grand success. Initiations occur at every meeting. The lodge received a visit from their Deputy Grand Chief Templar, Mrs. Eugene E. Jordan, who has just returned from her vacation in Maine.

Poetry.
I Wouldn't Be Cross.
MRS. M. E. SANGSTER.
I wouldn't be cross dear, it's never worth while.
Disarm the vexation by wearing a smile.
Let hap a disaster, a trouble or loss,
Just meet the thing boldly and never be cross.
I wouldn't be cross dear, with people at home.
They love you so fondly; whatever may come,
You may count on the kinfolks around you to stand,
O, loyally true, in a brotherly hand!
So, since the fine gold far exceedeth the dross,
I wouldn't be cross dear, I wouldn't be cross.
I wouldn't be cross with a stranger, Ah, no!
To the pilgrims we meet on the life path we owe This kindness, to give them good cheer as they pass,
To clear out the dirt-stones and plant the soft grass.
No, dear, with a stranger, in trial or loss,
I perchance might be silent; I wouldn't be cross.
No bitterness is sweetest; no sharpness may heal
The wound which the soul is too proud to reveal.
No envy hath peace; by a fret and a jar
The beautiful work of our hands we may mar.
Let us open what may, dear, of trouble and loss,
I wouldn't be cross, love, I wouldn't be cross

Linoleums.
I was the happy thought of an Englishman, years ago, that placed a floor covering on the market that would wear like iron. American wit and ingenuity soon caught on, and today we are selling at 50 and 60 cents per yard the nicest substitute for oil cloth ever invented.
They are especially commendable for Dining Rooms, Halls, Kitchen and Pantry.
Thick and substantial, soft to walk on, easy to take care of, bright, cheerful, attractive, and best of all, they'll last you nearly a life time. If you've never used a linoleum, there's an object lesson in store for you.

Annual Reunion.

Three Boston boys, two brothers of the late Dr. Harlow and Mr. Edward Perry of New Orleans, have met each summer for many years. These last years, this reunion has come in the city of Quincy. The boys nestled in the hollow of the hills, we know so well. It is not often that childhood friendships survive the changes of time as these have done. Mr. Perry has lived in New Orleans for many years, is ninety years old and makes this yearly pilgrimage to his old home alone. He carried some old New England notions to the Crescent city, one of which was, the commencing a mercantile career by not opening his store on Sunday as was the universal custom when he went there. He told the people if he could not live seven days upon the labor of six, he would close his store entirely. His shutters were put up Saturday night, and before long his next door neighbor followed his example, another did the same, and eventually this act of his had made a good impression upon tradesmen there. Mr. Perry thinks slavery had it as it was, the means of raising the black race from barbarism; long and harrowing as was the process. Providence seems to choose crooked paths to lead people from darkness to light.

At the time of the civil war, he was obliged to subscribe to certain obnoxious terms, saying, while his friends tried to hush him, "I don't believe in these sentiments, neither do any of you."

We asked this aged man how he had kept so well, for except in failing sight which impedes his motions, he seems in the prime of life. I have used, said he, but little tobacco, take my morning coffee, largely diluted with milk, and have never used wine or strong drinks. Further, he said careful orderly habits of living had been his. What we believe has given this beautiful old age to Mr. Perry has been moderation in desires. He says he is richer than a Vanderbilt. In the prime of life he had a competence sufficient to live in simplicity, so he decided to retire from active business and enjoy this marvellous world. He has lived over a great portion of his life, always carrying the sunshine of a happy contentment.

He married early in life a cultivated lady from a fine Newburyport family. His sons, one is an artist in New York; while another, Dr. Perry in New Orleans, made a great reformation in the use of stimulants in yellow fever, and working strenuously in regard to stringent quarantine measures, he with associates have made almost a clean sweep of this contagion that earlier, made such terrible ravages each summer that well to do citizens left the city.

He believes in gold as the standard nearest to perfection in a money basis. Unlike most very aged men, memory of recent events is as active with him as with us. He lives in the prime of life, in his recollections days and events in early political affairs. He thinks our constitution, rightly carried out, sufficient to wisely control a much larger territory.

With our best thinkers, he believes, that our nation has been prodigal; we have wasted everywhere. That overpopulation has helped to put us in a trying position as to business and finance.

A prosperous Quincy merchant said the other day, "people are doing with less, and they must have the gospel of still further going without."

Flowing soft white hair resting upon his shoulders, bright eyes, courteous manners, this gentleman makes a deep impression upon one. He is grandfather to Mr. John G. Faxon of Fitchburg, and visiting Quincy for the first time, young Mr. Faxon gave him a hard forenoon's walk around Holliston quarry and elsewhere; and said, "Excuse me, sir, but I forgot you might be tired now and need rest."

"Young man," said he "why should I need rest now?"

Ninety and with no desire to bid adieu to the life so many fret under, because like him, they can not find joy in what they have, but reach out to, grasp more than their hands can hold.

Half a Century.

It isn't often that a man begins business in youth and hangs tight to it all his life, or more than fifty years, as Benjamin D. Freeman, of Plymouth has done. He completed half a century as a baker the 17th of July, having begun work on that date in 1846 as an apprentice.

George W. Prescott can not quite come up to Mr. Freeman in length of time; but in other particulars may surpass him. He started as an apprentice in the Quincy PATRIOT office in May, 1856, and has continued in the printing business from that time; forty-three years in the same building and the same office. The office has, however, grown some in size, as Mr. Prescott has in years. During this long period he has not lost ten days by illness.

A Smart Man.

The Whelan Times says: "Nathaniel Nightingale of Quincy was a guest of Henry Luzzarid last week. He is about 80 years of age, yet appears not over 40 by his quick walk and lively air. He keeps a cobbler shop in that city and has not lost a day's work for twenty-five years on account of illness."

Mr. Nightingale we think is eighty-four years old, and a smarter man we do not know of in Quincy. He walks daily three to four miles and from his work, and does as nice work as a young cobbler of this city.

Two Wonderful Biddies.

Mrs. C. W. Merritt of School street has two hens, but they are equal to a dozen of some other people's biddies, as their record will show. The two hens have laid 25 dozen eggs in six months and one-half, one laying just 25 eggs each month. These hens are wonderful in other ways. They are real pets of the family. When they desire to lay they make it known and it is necessary to put them on the nest and they will remain there until called, but they will make a noise. When one of the nest the other will stand by apparently crying. During the day they are kept in the garden tied to a brick, and at night they have to be put to bed like babies.

UNIVERSALIST CONVENTION.

The annual session of the Massachusetts Universalist convention was held for three days at Haverhill this week. Those attending from this city were Rev. Charles S. Nickerson, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Prescott, Mr. Joseph T. French and Mrs. Harriet A. Lombard.

The large and beautiful church recently built in that city was filled each day; the business sessions were very harmonious; and the remarks and addresses were able and interesting, and were received with much pleasure.

The reports of the various committees showed the work of the Universalist Church the past year as very encouraging. Notwithstanding the hard times the denomination had increased in members and in financial contributions. The good work is being furnished through funds which are being contributed by citizens and graduates who are interested in the school. More apparatus will be ordered at once. New classes will be opened at the benefit of a well-equipped laboratory, which will enable Quincy, to enter college by the experimental method in physics instead of by the book-method as heretofore.

One of the most enjoyable meetings ever held by the Adams Chapter, R. was on Monday afternoon with Miss Prescott. An outing is to be held next Wednesday with the Regent, Mrs. N. V. Titus, at Squantum and on Oct. 5 the first regular meeting after the summer vacation is to be held at the old Adams house at South Quincy, to plan for an informal reception on Oct. 19 the birthday of John Adams when all the Daughters of the Revolution are invited to inspect the old home.

The first consignment of apparatus for the new Physics Laboratory at Adams Academy arrived this week. This apparatus is being furnished through funds which are being contributed by citizens and graduates who are interested in the school. More apparatus will be ordered at once. New classes will be opened at the benefit of a well-equipped laboratory, which will enable Quincy, to enter college by the experimental method in physics instead of by the book-method as heretofore.

CITY BRIEFS.

There is a lot for heavier clothing. Frank A. Locke, piano tuner, say adv. Only Forty-four degrees early Wednesday morning.

The free evening schools will open Monday evening, Oct. 5.

Miss Annette Burrows has gone on a brief visit to Kittery, Me.

The Knights of Honor have held four assemblies for October.

Miss E. B. Collins will have her fall military opening next week.

The Quincy Quarry company is flourishing and has declared a dividend of $6.

Postmaster Burke says the employees of the post office are paid fifty-two dollars.

Arthur W. Ryder severed his connection with the Granite Clothing Co. this week.

Mr. G. W. Stone of Boston will occupy the pulpit at the First church on Sunday.

It is about time for our local foot ball eleven to be thinking about giving us a few games.

The Mitchell children of South street, are rejoicing over the arrival of a new cousin; he is a boy.

Mrs. Frank Packard and children and Mrs. Whall have returned from a visit to Mr. Joseph S. Whall.

Miss Lulu P. Rudy of Lynn is the guest of Miss Abbie L. Plume and Miss May H. Purdy of Bigelow street.

Fred Goss, clerk for John W. Nash, was taken ill Tuesday afternoon and was obliged to give up work.

The rebuilding of Adams street is about half completed and when finished will make a fine piece of road.

One of the bank carriers at the new Savings Bank building fell Tuesday afternoon and was bruised somewhat.

Mrs. C. C. Hearn left Monday for a two weeks' trip through New York state, where she will be joined later by Mr. Hearn.

The engineer of the Sewer Commissioners is making soundings near Merry Mount park to determine the kind of soil they have got to dig through.

The lawyers of City Square have agreed to continue the early closing of their offices on Tuesday and Thursday evenings for one year.

Lightning struck the large oak in front of the late residence of Albert Holt on South Walnut street about 7 A. M. Saturday.

Everybody is asking how much was made at the Hospital festival last week. Can the committee give us any enlightenment about it?

Chief of Police Hayden has filed charges with the Mayor against Albert J. Shackley, a special officer, for insubordination. The date of the hearing has not been given out as yet.

Rev. H. E. Cotton was in town on Sunday, the guest of Mr. W. W. Osborne of Bigelow street, and took part in the service at Christ's church where he was formerly rector.

The work on the handsome granite and brick block for the Quincy Savings bank is progressing rapidly. The walls are nearly to their full height, and make a fine appearance.

Mrs. Edward Russell has issued invitations for the marriage of her daughter Edith Gertrude and Mr. Walter B. Holden, to take place on Wednesday evening, Oct. 7, at First church.

Wednesday was perfect for the excursion of the Daughters of the Revolution to Plymouth. Over one hundred left Boston by special train at nine o'clock and several from Quincy were among the party.

Prof. Frank Wigley is planning a musical service to be given in a few weeks at Christ's church. The chorus was formed and the first rehearsal held in the choir room on Wednesday evening.

One of the show windows of C. M. Jenness's store has been fitted up as a sportsman's window, and is attracting considerable attention, showing as it does all the paraphernalia for gunning and fishing.

Mr. N. B. Fernald has raised this season twenty-seven pound of potatoes from one potato which he brought from New York last season. It is known as the white elephant, and a very excellent variety.

Mrs. Annie E. Faxon of Spear street is receiving the congratulations of her many friends on entering the ranks of grandmootherhood this week, a little one being welcomed into the home of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Faxon of Fitchburg.

There will be a prize service at the Universalist church, next Sunday evening, at 6 o'clock, followed by a short address by the new pastor, Rev. C. S. Nickerson, upon the subject: "Ingersoll and Christianity." Seats free.

A goodly attendance is already assured for the "Training School for Christian Service" to be instituted next Monday evening by the Bethany church. The course is entirely new, and is being watched eagerly by other Congregational churches.

About 20 members of Paul Revere W. R. C. sewing circle met with Mrs. Fannie Newcomb, Tuesday afternoon. All remained and enjoyed a lake lunch supper, for which Mrs. Newcomb is famous. The next meeting will be at Harrison Square, with Mrs. Electa Field. Thursday Oct. 1, leaving Quincy at 1 o'clock electric car.

The executive committee of the Yacht Racing association held a meeting on Monday evening. The committee ruled out the Gleaser, which was protested for fouling the Bonanza at the Quincy Yacht Club's July 18th race, and also allowed the Alpine's protest over the Fantasy, Sunbeam and Sphinx on the July 30th race.

The letter carriers through the efforts of Postmaster Burke were permitted to deliver the festival Saturday, having been exempted from making the afternoon delivery. Postmaster Burke applied to the department for permission to allow the carriers to omit the afternoon delivery, and Saturday morning he received a reply by telegraph granting the request.

It is a novelty to see a fine horse driven almost at a trot, and the horse is hitched twice consists of a light saddle by which the horse is attached to the wagon. A bridle, reins and overdraw check rein completing the harness. There were no traces, breeching, girth, blinders, martingale or any thing to impede the freedom of the animal. Leaving off the check which is a matter of diverse opinion, "Dumb Animals" would give a prize to this team.

One of the most enjoyable meetings ever held by the Adams Chapter, R. was on Monday afternoon with Miss Prescott. An outing is to be held next Wednesday with the Regent, Mrs. N. V. Titus, at Squantum and on Oct. 5 the first regular meeting after the summer vacation is to be held at the old Adams house at South Quincy, to plan for an informal reception on Oct. 19 the birthday of John Adams when all the Daughters of the Revolution are invited to inspect the old home.

The first consignment of apparatus for the new Physics Laboratory at Adams Academy arrived this week. This apparatus is being furnished through funds which are being contributed by citizens and graduates who are interested in the school. More apparatus will be ordered at once. New classes will be opened at the benefit of a well-equipped laboratory, which will enable Quincy, to enter college by the experimental method in physics instead of by the book-method as heretofore.

The members of "Wollaston" lodge of Good Templars visited "Keystone" at Hyde Park, Monday evening. The bright moonlight was well as the cheerfulness of the younger members made the large ride one of pleasure and enjoyment.

ATLANTIC.

Miss Etta Johnson of Canton, Maine, is visiting with Mrs. W. I. Scholes.

It was a large and appreciative congregation which listened to Bishop Foster last Sunday at the Methodist church, Atlantic.

The originality and vividness of his sermon as he preached upon this life and the life to come, will probably never be forgotten by those who heard him.

N. S. V. and Atlantic, is now closed to public travel, caused by putting large culvert across the street prior to raising the grade.

Miss Ruth Basset of Walker street has returned from Onset.

The grade on Old Colony street should be raised; as at present there is a large pond which covers the street.

The attendance at the Memorial Congregational church, Sunday morning was exceedingly large; as was also the case at the evening service.

Dr. and Mrs. W. G. Kendall have been spending the past week in New York, taking in Coney Island, the parks and all the cycling resorts on their tandem. While away they attended the large Queen County dog show, when "Squanto" the head of the Squamunket kennels won first prize, "His Nibs" second prize, "Grig" second prize, and between them they rode to Atlantic the three silver cups offered by the Boston Terrier club for the best dog, the best bitch and the best brace in the show.

At the rate his dogs are now winning prizes the doctor will soon be able to set up a jewelry store.

Mr. J. Arthur Gray and his daughter, Miss Maud, leave this week for a two weeks' vacation at Bar Harbor, Me.

The work of regrading Newbury avenue is now well advanced, a large culvert has been placed across the street at Teal pond, and that portion of the street will be raised nearly four feet.

Someone is making a public dump of the marsh along Hancock street between Squantum street and the beach. The place, being covered with old cans and rubbish of all sorts.

One hundred and fifty persons crowded into the vestry of the Methodist church, Atlantic, to be entertained by the pictures "Betsey Bobbie's family album" exhibited by Mr. E. J. Joseph. Financially and as an entertainment it was a marked success.

A number of new families have been added to Atlantic Methodist society of late, the last one being Rev. A. L. Broken and family who will reside in Atlantic for the present while he is attending school in Boston. He and his wife will assist Mr. Price in the work of the church.

A Wollaston Pioneer.

Mr. Charles S. Thomas, one of Wollaston's oldest residents passed away on Thursday, at noon after a sickness of a month's duration of Bright's disease.

Mr. Thomas was a member of the Paul Revere Post, G. A. R. He was mustered in at Lynnfield in 1862, having enlisted in the Andrew's Sharpshooters, which was subsequently attached to the second company of the 22d Mass. Volunteers. He was in the battle of Gettysburg and other important battles of the war.

He was a member of Tremont lodge, K. of H. of Boston, and Wollaston lodge, K. of H. A son survives him.

The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock from his late residence.

Won First Prize.

The old Union of Braintree participated in the 30th Boston Women's Union first prize in the second class, throwing a stream 150 feet and 2 inches.

Previous to the play there was a parade through some of the principal streets in the Congress street grounds. The Union company made a good appearance and with them was Capt. Powers and many of the crew who formerly ran the old Granite. They helped man the brakes and rendered the Union boys material aid in carrying off the prize.

The Union passed through Quincy on her way home about 7:30 p. m. and the new brooms with which she was decorated were evidence even that she was decorated victoriously, if the cheers that greeted her from the sidewalk had not already told the story.

For the benefit of those who are travelling between the east and the west, it is announced that the world-famous Phillips Rock Hotel, weekly California excursions, that for years have left Boston on Tuesday, will in the future leave on Wednesday at 5 o'clock, making a trip to California in less than five days. For detailed information regarding fare, etc., address I. L. Loomis, 296 Washington street, Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Stevens were the recipients of many valuable wedding gifts.

SOUTH QUINCY.

Charles S. Beare, of East Milton, has entered the employ of L. M. Pratt & Co., Children's 1-2 story will be observed at the First Presbyterian church at the morning service Sunday. The pastor, Rev. Robert Westly Pace will make a special address to parents. The Sabbath school children will sing the beautiful hymns of the rally-day exercises. All are welcome.

Mrs. Mattie left this week for a gunning and fishing trip of several weeks in Nova Scotia. His milk business will be left in good hands.

Miss Winnifred I. Macdonald has returned from a two months' visit to her parents on Prince Edward Island, Canada, and resumed duty on Monday in the Centre school, Malden.

Miss Ada Gordon Macdonald of Prince Edward Island is spending the month of September with her sister, Mrs. Lloyd W. Jones of Pleasant street, after which she enters Princess of Wales college, Charlotte, N. C.

Mr. L. J. Pastor, Ph. G., the South Quincy druggist, has been confined for the past few days with imminent pneumonia, but is now able to be out again.

Mrs. Alice Higman, late of Quincy, was surprised at South Braintree, Monday evening by a few of her friends from Quincy with a lady's suit mounted dress and a gold chain. A most enjoyable evening was spent in singing and dancing. Songs were rendered by Messrs Parker, McCormick, Knowles and Kingslee. The presentation was made by W. A. Kingslee, to which Mrs. Higman responded in a few words in a most effective manner. The party broke up at twelve o'clock by singing old Lang Syde.

A trio of male voices makes its musical call after the singing of the hymns.

Rev. J. Jones was elected one of the vice presidents at the meeting of his old regiment, the 23d Massachusetts Veterans, at Gloucester on Thursday. The meeting next year will be in Beverly.

WEST QUINCY.

Thomas Foley of West Quincy, an employe at the Custom House, Boston, fell down the elevator well last week fracturing three ribs.

John Leslie, a stonecutter employed at the Granite Railway Co. sheds, was severely injured Tuesday afternoon, caused by public travel, caused by putting large culvert across the street prior to raising the grade.

Thomas & Dacey, the proprietors of the new lively stable on Madison street, have had a large, plain sign painted on the front of their stable.

QUINCY POINT.

The Quincy and Boston street railway company has taken up the spur track this week that they put in on Washington, between Elm and Edwards streets, when they rebuilt that line.

Mr. C. C. Mosher, the Universalist artist, enjoys an evening at home when opportunity offers, and it required considerable persuasive power to get him out Thursday evening, as it was his birthday. But it was best he should not stay in, for he was wanted, and he found several of his friends assembled at the Monastiquet house to give him a little surprise. Landlord Taber served a grand supper and a social hour or two followed.

John H. Libby of Pearl street, North is now convalescing. His brother Dr. Bruce of Everett takes his place.

DIED OF MALARIA.

Mrs. Mary E., wife of Mr. Charles Crane, died Wednesday morning at her residence, 123 South street, after a brief illness of malaria, aged 56 years.

Mrs. Crane was well-known in Quincy, where she had a large circle of friends and acquaintances although going but little into society, and her death will be a surprise to many who had not heard of her illness.

She was an honored member of Maple lodge 313, Knights and Ladies of Honor, of which organization she had been affiliated for nearly fourteen years. She leaves a husband, a son and daughter, and an adopted daughter.

New Yacht in Fleet.

The latest addition to the Quincy Yacht Club fleet has arrived in Quincy this morning in the shape of the Herringhoff 15 foot water line with all the overhanging forward, and 6 feet beam. She is built extremely light, but in the strongest possible manner, fitted with silk sails, aluminum centerboard, hollow spars and Tobin bronze balance rudder. An expert yachtsman says she is easily the fastest thing in her class, the fourth.

MILTON.

The people of the East Milton Congregational church tendered a reception to their pastor and his bride, Friday Sept. 18, at their residence, corner of Brackett and Washington street, from 8 to 10 o'clock. The affair was an entirely informal one and was for the purpose of affording the pastor and his bride an opportunity to meet their people and become better acquainted. The evening was passed in a pleasant manner and a general good time enjoyed. Refreshments which the ladies had not neglected to bring were served during the evening.

Timothy McDermitt, Deputy Supt. of Police is having a brief vacation.

Charles S. Beare has accepted a position with Lester M. Pratt & Co. at South Quincy.

Fall Carpets.

Just a reasonable word or two, to-day.
When you're buying, think about quality as well as price.
Remember that the w.c.s. "Aminster," "Wilton," "Brussels," etc., can be made to cover a multitude of sins.
Remember, too, that our stock is far larger than that of any other Boston house, and that no body can possibly buy to better advantage than we can, it is reasonable to suppose that our ability to name very low selling figures is also unsurpassed.
We are combining high quality with moderation in price. This fall, more effectively than ever before.
We ask for your patronage on this basis—the basis of "goods for the money."
